R.U.JOHNSON RESIGNS AS CENTURY'S EDITOR

Robert Sterling Yard Succeeds Him in Charge of the Magazine.

FOURTH MAN IN THE PLACE

J. G. Holland the First, Then Gilder, Then Johnson—Careers of the Retiring Editor and His Successor.

Robert Underwood Johnson, editor of The Century Magazine since 1910 and associated with it in an editorial capacity for forty years, has tendered his resignation and it has been accepted. He finished his work on Thursday. Robert Sterling Yard, formerly of the publishing house of Moffat, Yard & Co. and recently a member of the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES, succeeds Mr. Johnson with the title of managing editor.

The Century Magazine was originally Scribner's Monthly, and was founded in 1870. The Century Company, of which Roswell Smith was President until the time of his death, bought the magazine from the Scribners and changed its name to the Century Magazine. The first editor was Dr. J. G. Holland. At his death, in 1881, the late Richard Watson Gilder succeeded to the place. At that time Dr. Johnson succeeded Mr. Gilder as associate editor, and when Mr. Gilder died in 1909 he again succeeded him as editor. Mr. Yard will be the fourth editor in charge.

Mr. Yard's Career.

Robert Sterling Yard, the new managing editor of The Century, was born in Haverstraw, N. Y., on Feb. 1, 1861, the son of Robert Boyd and Sarah (Purdue) Yard. He was graduated from Princeton University in 1883, and in 1895 married Miss Mary Belle Moffat, daughter of the late Dr. James C. Moffat, a professor in the Princeton Theological Seminary. They have one daughter, Margaret.

For three years Mr. Yard was associated with the firm of W. R. Grace & Co. as head of their foreign cables and correspondence department. During the three succeeding years he was a reporter for The Sun of this city, and afterward was a reporter and Sunday Editor for The New York Herald. He remained with The Herald for eight years. He then was engaged for a year in the publishing business, in charge of the establishment of R. H. Russell. When his association with that establishment ended, he entered the employ of Charles Scribner's Sons, and was made manager of the book advertising department. He was with the firm for four years. For this firme he edited The Lamp and The Scribe for two years. When he resigned he went into business for himself, becoming a member of the firm of Moffat, Yard & Co., of which he was Vice President and Editor-in-Chief. Recently and until he joined The Century he was a member of the staff of THE TIMES.

Mr. Yard is prominent in the Princeton Alumni Association, and was the founder of the Montclair Princeton Alumni Association. He is the second President of the Federation of New Jersey Princeton Clubs. Mr. Yard has also been associated with the National Citizens' League for the Promotion of Sound Banking, and was Secretary in charge of organization. He has contributed many articles to magazines, and is the author of a book on publishing, which will be issued in the Fall by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. of Boston, under the title of "The Publisher."

Dr. Johnson's Work.

Dr. Johnson joined the staff of The Century in 1873, and since Mr. Gilder's death has been its editorial head. In 1883, Mr. Gilder intrusted to Dr. Johnson and C. C. Buel, then assistant editor, the conduct of the famous Century civil war series, suggested by Mr. Buel, and the two men had charge of the series both in the magazine and in the revised book, "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War."

Mr. Johnson was prominent in the long campaign against literary piracy which ended in the International Copyright bill. For this activity he was decorated by France and Italy. He originated the Yosemite National Park and suggested to President Roosevelt a conference of Governors upon plans to conserve the forests of the whole Appalachian range. This was the first suggestion of the White House conference on conservation. He also initiated the project to buy the house in Rome in which the poet Keats died and to found therein a memorial library. In this he enlisted the interest of the King of Italy, who officially dedicated the library.

Dr. Johnson was born on Jan. 12, 1853, on Capitol Hill, Washington, D. C., in a house that has been replaced by the rotunda of the House of Representatives office building. He is the son of Nimrod Hege and Catherine C. Johnson. His father was a lawyer and jurist originally from Eastern Indiana.

Educated in the high school in Centreville, Ind., where he spent his boyhood, Dr. Johnson later attended Earlham College, an institution of the Society of Friends, at Richmond, Ind., where he was graduated in 1871. In 1889 that college awarded to him the honorary degree of Ph. D.

When he finished his college course, Dr. Johnson went to work as a clerk in the Western agency of the Scribner educational books at Chicago. After nearly two years of this work, including the year of the great fire, he became associated with the editorial staff of the Century Magazine, then Scribner's Monthly.

He married Miss Catherine McMahon of Washington, D. C., in 1876. They had two children, a son, Owen Johnson, who was graduated from Yale in 1900 and is the author of "Stover at Yale" and other novels, and a daughter, Miss Agnes Johnson, who married Frank H. Holden.

Dr. Johnson has been a leading advocate of peace and international arbitration. He is a member and Permanent Secretary of the Academy of Arts and Letters, having succeeded John Hay, and was Preliminary Secretary of that body, organized out of the membership of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, of which he was Secretary from 1903 to 1909. He is also an Elector of the Hall of Fame, and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the Authors', Century, and Players Clubs, the New York Civil Service Reform Association, Society for Italian Immigrants, American Forestry Association, and the Free Art League. He is a Director of the MacDowell Association. He has received honorary degrees from Yale and New York Universities.

Proposed for a Diplomatic Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The President has received a dozen or more letters, mostly from literary men who take an interest in politics, suggesting the appointment of Robert U. Johnson, the retiring editor of the Century Magazine, to a diplomatic post, and THE TIMES's information is that the French and Italian missions were mentioned. It could not be learned to-night whether the President contemplated the appointment of Mr. Johnson to any diplomatic post.

KING LEAPS FROM TRAIN.

Alfonso's Impulsive Effort to Save an Injured Child.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, May 30.—According to Gen. Azena, the chief of the King's military household, King Alfonso recently performed an act of heroism near Utrera while traveling in the royal train. Two little girls had been playing on the railway line as the train approached; one was actually lying alongside the line, apparently asleep. The engineer tried to stop the train, but was unable to do so quickly enough to prevent injuring the girl on the head.

King Alfonso saw what had occurred, and, although the train was moving, jumped out of the saloon window, nine feet from the ground, and ran to aid the girl. The train stopped, and when those in it arrived on the scene they found the King, with the girl in his arms, endeavoring to stanch the blood; but she died in a few minutes. The King was profoundly impressed, and endeavored to console the mother, who was the woman in charge of the railway crossing, and gave her a present.

WIFE SUES ORLEANS DUKE.

Duchess, Francis Joseph's Cousin, Demands Maintenance by Pretender.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 30.—A sensational law suit comes on to-morrow before the Brussels civil court, when the Duchess of Orleans, cousin of Emperor Francis Joseph, brings action against her husband.

The Duchess is suing for maintenance and reimbursement for the large amounts she advanced to the Duke. She is at present staying in Hungary with her mother, the Archduchess Clotilde.

The Duke of Orleans is one of the two pretenders to the French throne. The Duchess always has a lady in waiting, belonging to the French nobility, in attendance on her person.

The Duke of Orleans is recognized by French Royalists as the head of the royal line and the legitimate King of France. He is a grandson of the last King of France, Louis Philippe, who was forced to flee to England by the Second Revolution in 1848. Louis Philippe was the son of that brother of the ill-fated Louis XVI., who threw in his fortune with the first Revolution, and is held up to contumely by Carlyle by the name he took when titles of nobility were abolished, Louis Egalité.

The present Duke was born in Twickenham, England, on Feb. 6, 1869, his father being the late Comte de Paris. Though he has had no reasonable chance of regaining the throne of his ancestors, he has been noted for the state which he has always maintained in his exile. For years he has lived at Wood Norton, near Evesham, in England, and has there refused to lead the life of the ordinary English country gentleman, keeping up a semi-regal court, to which only French royalists of approved pedigree have been admitted.

He was married on Nov. 5, 1896, at Vienna, to the Archduchess Marie Dorothea Amelia of Austria. She is the daughter of the Archduke Joseph, who, as the great-grandson of the Emperor Leopold II., is one of the distant cousins of the present Emperor Franz Joseph. She has had no children.

KILLED ON MOTOR CYCLE.

Girl Riding Ahead of Fiance When Shock Came—He's Badly Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

HOPATCONG, N. J., May 30.—Miss Ida Palmer, 18 years old, was mortally hurt here last night, when a motor cycle on which she was riding with her fiancé, Frederick Schlagintweit, crashed in the dark into a hay wagon at the upper end of the lake, near the Woodport House. She died in the Woodport House a few hours later. Schlagintweit was badly hurt.

The dead girl was the daughter of Ludwig Palmer, who killed a woman and shot himself to death on Dec. 9 at Swartswood Lake. Both lived in South Orange.

Schlagintweit has been unconscious since the accident. He is still at the Woodport House, and is not expected to recover.

Those who saw the young man and woman along the lake shore declare they were going at a rate of forty to fifty miles an hour.

WANTS EDITOR OUSTED.

Stockholder Asks Receiver for Scranton Tribune Company.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, May 30.—Alleging mismanagement on the part of its President, Robert D. Towne, a bill was filed in the United States Court here to-day by E. A. Whitehouse of Newark, asking that a receiver be appointed for The Tribune Publishing Company. The bill places the value of the property at $702,362.36, the outstanding indebtedness at $452,168.11, and the net earnings not more than $40,000 a year.

The property includes The Scranton Tribune Republican, a morning newspaper, and The Scranton Truth, an afternoon publication. Mr. Whitehouse started the action as majority stockholder of the company and as a creditor. He charges Mr. Towne, who edits the two newspapers, with thwarting all efforts to readjust the affairs of the company.

FRIEDMANN WON'T DECAMP.

Nothing Clandestine About His Departure Next Month.

In behalf of Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, it was emphatically denied yesterday that he planned to make a departure from this country either abrupt or clandestine. The German physician, whose turtle vaccine cannot be used in this city until it has been approved by the Board of Health, does plan to sail from these shores on June 19. As to whether he will ever return the testimony is conflicting.

He returned to New York yesterday from Providence, where no attempt has been made by the authorities to halt the work of the Friedmann Institute there. He spent the day with Moritz Eisner, head of the distributing company that has paid him $50,000.

ROOSEVELT VERDICT WON'T STOP NEWETT

Michigan Editor Intends to Carry Fight to Highest Court if He Loses Now.

OLIN YOUNG A BIG FACTOR

Colonel's Attacks on ex-Representative in Local Politics Elements in the Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

MARQUETTE, May 30.—Memorial Day intervened to separate the embattled hosts in the Roosevelt-Newett libel case, but the day was enlivened by a report that Mr. Newett was determined to take the case to the highest court if the jury returned a verdict against him. The editor's friends assert that he will appeal the case even though the jury may assess only 6 cents damages against him.

Mr. Newett went home to Ishpeming to-day, and so did his lawyer, William P. Belden, who took with him Horace Andrews, the senior counsel. As for the prosecution, it had no home to go to, and spent the day marooned in a strange town. All except W. S. Hill, the junior counsel, who lives here.

Most of the Roosevelt army broke up into little groups and took long walks. The Colonel himself spent most of the time reading a magazine and a book called "Stories of Mystery and Adventure, by American Authors," which he took to bed with him last night. He also took a ten-mile automobile ride with George Shiras, Lawrence Abbott, Philip J. Roosevelt, and William Jopling of Marquette. They visited the farming district. In the afternoon Frank Harper, the Colonel's secretary, turned up after a disappearance of several hours and explained that he had been walking, and the Colonel seized upon him, disappeared with him into an ocean of correspondence, and did not emerge from the depths until some hours later.

The Colonel had withdrawn his acceptance of the invitation to deliver the Memorial Day address at the Marquette Opera House, but Albert Jackson Post, No. 300, G. A. R., went up to the Shiras home, and the Colonel made a little speech to them in one of the great rooms in that very ample dwelling. He talked to them of the battle for good government, and how the same qualities were needed for it they had displayed in 1861. Then the Rev. Bates G. Burt of St. John's Episcopal Church introduced the old soldiers one after another to the Colonel, who chatted with each of them and asked them about their war experiences. Two of them were brothers, but one had fought in the Confederate Army and the other on the Union side.

The Union brother, who is the Quartermaster of Jackson Post, is Robert P. Byrne, who served in the 118th Pennsylvania Regiment under Meade, and the Confederate brother is Samuel E. Byrne, who served in the First Maryland Battery under Stonewall Jackson.

During the war neither knew that the other was in the opposing army. The Colonel said it was the first time he had seen such a case, and that he was especially pleased to see a Confederate veteran with members of a G. A. R. post.

There at Colonel's Invitation.

The veterans were there at the Colonel's request. He told them this was the first Memorial Day in many years that he had not made an address. He didn't feel that he ought to do it in view of the thing which had brought him to Marquette, he said, but he couldn't feel comfortable if Memorial Day went by without his having a chance to make some kind of talk to the veterans.

The truce in the trial will end to-morrow morning, but only for three hours, for court will adjourn at noon. Mr. Pound says he will not be able to finish the plaintiff's case by then.

The probability is the testimony of William Loeb, Jr., will occupy considerable time, and there are still other witnesses to be heard, although some of them will be reserved for rebuttal.

The names of the defendant's witnesses have not yet been made known. The defense has taken a mass of depositions in different parts of the country, largely from persons who think they have seen the Colonel drunk when he was making speeches or leaving or entering his railroad car. But there is no linking of the identity of the witnesses who are to appear in person for the defense.

It was probably as well that a day of rest and reflection intervened, for the temper on both sides was getting pretty well frayed by yesterday afternoon. The battle is steadily narrowing to the question of the Colonel's conduct in the anteprimary campaign in Ohio in 1912 and when he was in St. Louis in 1910, and the plaintiff is determined to get in evidence which will take the charge out of that gun when it is to be fired. The defense being equally determined the other way, the tension yesterday was extreme.

Judge Wins Admiration.

Nothing but the icy firmness and the austere authority of the Judge held the case where it belonged. All the attorneys feel a respect for this man which is not merely the respect due to the Judge of the Marquette County Court, but the respect which goes involuntarily to Richard C. Flannigan. This respect is echoed every hour of the day in expressions of admiration heard from the hardest-boiled party part of the Union who have been watching the Judge since this case started.

In spite of that the feeling is so high that the attorneys on both sides have burst into sharp little crackles of resentment at this or that ruling. Such things neither disturb him nor affect his decisions, although he always is open to argument and perfectly willing to change a ruling if there is any ground for it.

The feeling is high on both sides, particularly so far as the principals in the suit are concerned. On Col. Roosevelt's side this feeling is not against Mr. Newett particularly, but against all persons who have circulated such charges as finally got into print by means of Newett's iron Ore. Last September, during his swing around the circle, the Colonel informed the newspaper men who were traveling with him that the moment any paper owned by a responsible man or firm published the story he was going to settle the thing by suing for libel. Soon afterward The Salina Gazette published it and the Colonel instituted inquiries about it, but was informed by Senator Bristow of Kansas that The Gazette could not pay damages, also that it was ex-Senator Burton's paper; Burton being a man whom the Colonel had prosecuted and put in the penitentiary when he was President.

Then came the publication in The Iron Ore. The Colonel again started inquiries and learned that The Iron Ore and its editor were responsible, and promptly sued. So his bitterness is not against Mr. Newett and antedates his knowledge of Newett's existence. Probably he is more bitter against the persons who have signed and sworn to deposi-

TWO YOUTHS HOLD UP AN ATHLETIC CLUB

At Revolver's Point They Force Fifteen Members to Give Up Cash and Jewelry.

Fifteen young men, all members of the Trojan Athletic Club, were sitting in the room the club occupies, in the basement of a house at 103 East 101st Street, last night at 11:30 o'clock, when a stranger entered and asked where he could find "Butch." No one there could tell him, so he went out, after bestowing several searching glances about the clubroom.

In some five minutes the same young man came back. This time he had a revolver in his hand. He stood in the door and waved it about the room, telling the athletes to line themselves up against the wall of the room and put their hands above their heads. He was accompanied by another youth, and he directed his companion to go through the pockets of the club members.

The assistant had not got very far with his task when the leader seemed to think he was not going fast enough. He handed over his revolver to the second man, and they changed occupations. As the searcher came to Max Palitsky in the line, Palitsky made a sudden movement, as if to resist. The man on guard, remarking that this was "a fresh guy," hit him over the head with the revolver butt, and he fell unconscious.

When Palitsky recovered consciousness he found that the two thieves had made off with all the valuables of the club members. It was estimated that in cash and jewelry the highwaymen obtained loot worth $300.

It was said that when the pockets of all the members had been searched, a third stranger came into the clubroom and told the robbers that everything was clear outside. Then the leader of the gang, flourishing the revolver that had already been used on Palitsky's skull, told the club members that if they made any attempt to follow him and his associates they would be shot.

Then the members of the athletic club telephoned for the police. They did not chase the thieves. When Capt. Savage of the East 104th Street Station arrived with Detectives Kahn and Cruise and hear dtheir story he asked if any of them thought they could identify the men who had robbed them. Louis Lowenholz, Meyer Emanuel, and Nathan Freeman thought they could, and started out with the policemen.

The Captain took them through several of the streets of the near by Italian district walking them from the east to the west boundaries of his precinc on every block, starting at 106th Street. When they arrived opposite 212 East 107th Street Lowenholz told the Captain that two men who could be seen in the hallway were the men they were after. The police sauntered carelessly by the house, and, when out of sight, turned and distributed their forces so as to cut off escape.

Then they arrested the two men. At the police station they said they were Charles Lizzio of 217 East 107th Street, and Frank Cimino of 236 East 107th Street. They were identified by all the club members, who pointed out Lilo as the first man who had come in and Cimino as the one who had taken his place holding the revolver. A revolver was found in Cimino's possession.

The two youths were locked up on a charge of highway robbery. The third man, the detectives said, was revealed to them by the two prisoners, and they spent several hours last night looking for him.

AUTO OVER HIS HEAD.

Lurched Out Into Country Road Just as Machine Came On.

Special to The New York Times.

SUMMIT, N. J., May 30.—With his skull broken by an automobile, William Wade was brought last night to Overlook Hospital. He was run over on the White Oak Ridge Road, Chatham, last night by Harry Meeker, who was driving the automobile belonging to his father, Frank W. Meeker. Meeker took the injured man to the office of Dr. William J. Wolfe in Chatham and the doctor ordered his removal to the hospital. Meeker was not arrested.

He told the authorities that Wade was walking at the side of the road as he approached at an ordinary road speed. Then Wade lurched into his path and was struck, the wheel passing over his head.

Wade lived alone in Livingston, of which place Meeker is also a resident.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, May 30.—Milton Simon, 19 years old, and residing at 28 West 129th Street, New York, is dying in the Homeopathic Hospital here as the result of an automobile accident this afternoon. Simon was returning from the Rochester-Montreal ball game, when the automobile in which he was riding struck a trolley car. He was hurled forty feet, and fell on the pavement. Several of his ribs were broken, and his right lung ruptured. Lester Rosenbloom, who was with Simon, was thrown from the machine, and his shoulder was broken.

Simon is a Christian Scientist, and at first refused to allow the hospital surgeons to attend him. Later, however, they prevailed upon him to accept treatment, but said he had little chance of recovery.

100 LOST CHILDREN IN POLICE ROUND-UP

Youngsters All Stray from Parade Crowds—Most of Them Restored.

More than 100 lost children were rounded up by the police yesterday and taken to stations. They ranged in ages from 2 to 6 years, and had become separated from parents in the Decoration Day crowds, or else had run away from home to follow in the wake of the various parades, lured by the blaring of bands.

Patrolman Williams of the East Sixty-seventh Street station made the record catch of the day, returning with one youngster in each of his arms and two more clinging to his coattails, to the great amusement of his comrades on reserve duty.

Lieut. Gaffney, in the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, found himself forced to play nurse to fifteen lost children, many of whom had reached the crying stage. Aided by Matron Doyle, he tried to coax them to play games together, but the lost ones refused to be comforted until the matron in desperation sent a policeman out to buy ice cream and cake. Then the youngsters dried their tears, and all hands had a nice little party.

One little girl 3 years old made the trip to the East Twenty-second Street Station sound asleep in the arms of Patrolman Pauls, who found her sleeping at Fifteenth Street and Avenue B. Still fast asleep, the little girl was carried to the Children's Society.

Forty-three lost children were collected in the Bronx alone, mostly in Bronx and Crotona Parks. Twenty-five of these were taken to the Tremont Avenue Station, ten to the Bronx Park Station, and eight to the Morrisania Station. All were restored safely to their parents before nightfall.

Twenty-eight unclaimed children were collected from police stations in Manhattan and were taken in a body to the rooms of the Children's Society, at Twenty-third Street and Fourth Avenue, where a crowd of anxious mothers was awaiting them. Some of the children were claimed, and the rest were forced to spend the night away from home in the society's care.

FAVOR BRYAN PEACE PLAN.

Eight Nations Reply Sympathetically, but Want Details.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Secretary Bryan selected Memorial Day to announce that his peace plan was meeting with gratifying approval by the other powers. Eight nations have thus far responded favorably: Italy, Great Britain, France, Brazil, Sweden, Norway, Peru, and Russia, in the order given. Some indorse the principle and ask for details. Others have replied that the plan is received sympathetically, and express a willingness to consider the details.

The peace plan, as submitted to the diplomatic representatives of the nations by Mr. Bryan at the President's direction, was as follows: First, that the United States was prepared to enter into an agreement with each and every country severally, providing for the investigation of all disputes of every character and nature by an international commission, the contracting parties agreeing not to declare war or begin hostilities until an investigation was made and a report submitted; second, the investigation to be conducted as a matter of course upon the initiative of the commission without the formality of a request from either party; third, the report to be submitted in a given time to be agreed on; fourth, the parties to reserve the right to act independently on the subject matter in dispute after the report was submitted.

The composition of the commission and the period of time within which the report was to be made, were both to be matters of agreement by the contracting parties.

Secretary Bryan has submitted to the representatives of the nations that have expressed willingness to consider details a tentative draft of an agreement embodying suggestions of the President. This has been offered for consideration only and with no idea of insisting on any detail.

Secretary Bryan says that if the peace principle is indorsed this Government is willing to confer with open mind as to all minor details.

Secretary Bryan said that no nation to whom his peace plan was submitted had replied adversely, although some had asked more time for consideration.

BIG SAILING SHIP WRECKED.

The Freia, Lumber Laden, Dashed to Pieces Off Yarmouth, N. S.

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 30.—During a sixty-mile gale on the Nova Scotia coast yesterday the Norwegian ship Freia was dashed to pieces on the rocks at Sunday Point, off Yarmouth, and her cargo of lumber was strewn along the coast for miles. Capt. Olsen, his wife, and the crew escaped after a thrilling experience.

The Freia was lying in what was considered a safe anchorage awaiting a part of her crew from Boston, having cleared from here on May 26 for Bahia Blanca with the largest cargo of lumber ever shipped from this port. The gale snapped her cables and she was pounding on the rocks when her boats were lowered. The trip through the surf was a perilous one, and for a time it was feared that at least one of the boats would be swamped.

The Freia was a full-rigged ship of 1,593 tons, the largest seen in these waters for some years. She was an iron ship, built in 1872, and formerly was the Industry. Her cargo of 1,700,000 feet of lumber was valued at $32,429.

Although somewhat fatigued by the trial, the prisoner is in good health.

BALKAN FOES SIGN TREATY OF PEACE

Proceedings in London Concluded Quietly in an Hour's Time.

SIR EDWARD GREY PRAISED

Bulgarian Delegate Expresses Gratitude to Him—Montenegro Signs, but Accuses Britain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 30.—The treaty of peace between Turkey and the Balkan allies was signed at St. James's Palace at 12:40 P. M. to-day. Thanks to the firm action of Sir Edward Grey, the trusted and respected spokesman of the European concert, the Balkan war, after a duration of nearly eight months, was definitely terminated by a ceremony lasting exactly one hour.

Five copies of the treaty, one for each of the belligerent States, on plain printed sheets, with blanks left for signatures, lay on the polished mahogany table when Sir Edward opened the proceedings by inviting the delegates to sign the treaty. Thereupon the copies of the treaty were passed from hand to hand by the different delegates for signature as they sat around a long table.

The proceedings were businesslike and brisk. The only jarring note, from the point of view of the Servians and Greeks, was the discovery of an annexe to the treaty, believed to have been drafted by the Bulgarians, proposing that the treaty should come in force without further ratification. This annexe was not signed.

LONDON, May 30.—Dr. S. Daneff, the Bulgarian peace delegate, in the course of an interview after the signature of the preliminary treaty of peace, said:

"I am rejoiced. It means not only Balkan peace, but general peace, for Europe is saved from one of the most thorny problems of the Near East. We owe a deep debt of gratitude to Sir Edward Grey, whose enduring and untiring mastery in treating diplomatic problems has brought about peace much sooner than some of us had expected."

The first meeting of the peace conference has been fixed for Monday, June 2.

M. Popovitch, the Montenegrin chief delegate, after signing the preliminary treaty on behalf of Montenegro, delivered a short speech, in which he said:

"We have signed the preliminary treaty because nothing else remained for us to do. We are glad to have peace, but are profoundly dissatisfied with the terms we have been obliged to accept. We have been despoiled of the fruits of our victories. We have been made the whipping boy of Europe. Great Britain took the leading part in depriving us of Scutari. We look here to secure a modification of the Albanian frontier, so as to give us lands for cultivation and a natural route between Podgoritza and Ipek."

The Bulgarian and Turkish peace delegates also signed a protocol providing for the immediate removal of their respective armies from the scene of operations.

After informing the Ambassadorial Conference of the signing of the peace draft Sir Edward Grey suggested that the conference limit its discussions to three questions—a Constitution for Albania, the delimitation of the southern frontier of Albania, and the status of the Aegean Islands. The Ambassadors are now awaiting further instructions from their Governments regarding a Constitution for Albania, but the conference is working in greater harmony and expects to conclude its labors by the end of June.

The relations between the Balkan Allies show a distinct improvement. The postponed meeting between the Servian and Bulgarian Premiers is now definitely fixed to take place on the frontier to-morrow evening. The latest suggestion for a settlement of the quarrel between the two countries is that Servia and Bulgaria denounce the old treaties and conclude a new alliance providing for a joint administration of Macedonia.

ROME, May 30.—The signing in London to-day of the preliminary peace treaty between the Balkan Allies and Turkey caused great satisfaction both at the Quirinal and the Vatican, and the hope was expressed that further complications between the Balkan States might be avoided. In Government circles it was said that Greece should understand that Italy held no hostile feelings against her, but was merely desirous of protecting her own interests in the Adriatic.

ATHENS, May 30.—Artillery fire was opened on the Greek positions in the direction of Eleuthora yesterday by the Bulgarian troops stationed at Prawa, to the east of Salonika. The Bulgarian commander refused to enter into negotiations with the Greek commander for the purpose of stopping the firing. Details of the engagement have not yet been received.

Owing to this aggression by the Bulgarians a portion of the Greek fleet has been sent to Eleuthora.

BELGRADE, May 30.—The Pravda says that Bulgaria is ready to negotiate with Servia for a revision of the treaty of alliance on condition that all the Balkan Governments order a demobilization of their forces.

HOW THE WAR WAS FOUGHT.

Turks' Power Crushed at Kirk Kilisseh, Salonika, and Adrianople.

The Balkan war was expected by those who studied European affairs closely as soon as the Turco-Italian war began, but it was not till Sept. 30 last year that it was learned that the forces of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro, and Greece were actually mobilizing.

It was the occurrence of a series of massacres in Macedonia and Thessaly, almost on the frontiers of the Balkan States, which gave the final impetus to the alliance between them, which had for so long been regarded as an impossibility. At Otchana in August the Turks had massacred a number of Bulgarians, and at Philipopolis the people held large gatherings to demand the liberation of Macedonia. The Montenegrins were stirred by the news of other atrocities at Berane, and a mutiny occurred at Monastir.

The great powers, which always watch the Balkans with the keenest anxiety, and were conscious that their own subjects might force them to observe the responsibilities they had assumed for decent government in European Turkey, became seriously alarmed and addressed many exhortations to the Balkan States on the danger and folly of upsetting the status quo.

Mr. Venizelos, the Premier of Greece, however, was at work, and through his ability Bulgaria, Greece, Servia, and Montenegro agreed to forget their mutual hatreds and to advance together against the common foe. On Oct. 13 Bulgaria,

DOCTOR DIES A MARTYR.

Infected with Blood Poisoning While Treating Charity Patient.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 30.—As the result of blood poisoning, which he contracted while treating a charity patient, Dr. Hugh Baker of Connellsville, Penn., died in Wilmington, Del., last night. Dr. Baker was taken to Mercy Hospital in this city on May 18, but his case baffled the skill of the physicians there, and when he found that his life was to be the forfeit of his benevolence, he asked that he be taken to his old home in Wilmington.

Although Dr. Baker had a large practice among the wealthy residents of Connellsville, it was his custom to treat many persons who were too poor to pay for his services, and it was in a surgical operation on one of these patients that he became infected.

MAY SURVIVE BICHLORIDE.

Woman Who Took Poison Like Walker Is Improving.

The condition of Mrs. Rae Chessman, the young woman who took bichloride of mercury in mistake for a headache remedy on Tuesday evening and whose case was like that of Sanders B. Walker, the Georgia banker who died after a week's fight against the poison, showed improvement yesterday at Fordham Hospital, where she was a patient.

The doctors said they had more hope for her recovery than they had had at any time since she swallowed the poison. They said three or four days must pass before they could be sure of saving her life. Mrs. Chessman is the wife of a druggist who lives at 1,192 Fox Street, the Bronx.

SHIPS VAINLY SHELL AIRSHIP

Aviator Masson Sails Over Mexican Fleet—Ready for Battle.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 30.—Didier Masson, the aviator, sailed his big biplane over the gunboat Guerrero in Guaymas Bay yesterday. The ships' gunners attempted to shell the aeroplane, which remained at a height of 5,000 feet. None of the shells took effect, nor did Masson attempt to drop any bombs. To show his defiance of the Federal gunners he made five flights over the bay.

In the meantime the State troops were driving the Federals back toward Guaymas. It is deciared by the State officials that all is ready for a concentrated attack on Guaymas with Masson assisting from overhead, while the insurgents attack from three sides.

Mrs. Wilson Buys Handiwork of Southern Mountaineers.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—As a rival to the historic East and Blue Rooms, the White House is to have a room decorated largely with the handiwork of the mountaineers of the South.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is interested in the work of the Southern Educational Association, has ordered duplicates of many of the exhibits of weaving on view in the association's rooms here. The wife of the President and Mrs. Marshall, wife of Vice President Marshall, visited the exhibition frequently.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 30.—E. O. Painter, a manufacturer who recently fell from a ferryboat during a violent coughing spell and was drowned in the St. Johns River, held life insurance policies amounting to $1,178,000.

About half the insurance was made payable to Mr. Painter's family and the other half to his firm. Most of the insurance was taken out last month. An investigation of Mr. Painter's death is being made by insurance companies.

DOG CLEARS CEMETERY.

Tarrytown Scare Continued at Memorial Day Exercises.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 30.—Hundreds of people in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery were terrorized this morning by a dog, the fourth suspected of being mad here since last Saturday. Parties of women and children were driven to take refuge on the tops of tombs.

The dog, a black and white terrier, was first seen near the Whitelaw Reid tomb, and a party near by hastily climbed to the top of a vault. The dog continued toward the upper part of the cemetery, and the usual Memorial Day pilgrimage to the grave of Washington Irving was broken up. As the alarm spread, most of the crowd left the cemetery and those who stayed either climbed to the tops of tombs or stayed close to shelter. A large force of cemetery employes armed with clubs and a detachment of police searched the grounds for the dog, but were unable to locate it. The cemetery was deserted during the afternoon as a result of the scare.

RACING BEGINS AFTER 3 YEARS

Opens in Belmont Park and Whitney's Whisk Broom II. Takes Metropolitan.

One Arrest for Bookmaking—District Attorney Satisfied—August Belmont Points Out Club's Sincerity.

Degambleized horse racing was placed on trial yesterday at Belmont Park, after three years of enforced idleness on the metropolitan tracks. Almost 30,000 spectators participated in the trial, in which they occupied the position of quasi-defendants with the officials of the Westchester Racing Association, who had covenanted to insure a day of clean sport.

Gambling of the sort inhibited by law was absent. There was one arrest for alleged bookmaking, and it was described by District Attorney Charles N. Wysong of Nassau County as an isolated case. Layers of odds, veterans in the betting rings of many tracks, were on hand, but not to accept the wagers of Tom Dick, and Harry. In fact, they were attracted to the course more by curiosity than by the hope of plying their calling. The public made no effort to patronize them. Anyway, the racing officials saw to it that patronage was impossible.

"I trust this will prove that our efforts to insure clean racing are sincere," said August Belmont, as he stood on the clubhouse lawn at the end of the programme.

"The law was not violated, according to reports made to me. I have seen no violation," said District Attorney Wysong.

The above facts supplied the evidence on which a popular acquittal was returned after what was described as one of the most remarkable days in the history of the turf in this country. Those who viewed the occasion in other than its legal aspects said it was the greatest tribute ever paid to a sport in New York.

Clarion Call Brings Cheers.

Spontaneity attended almost every expression of the public's joyous reception of the thoroughbred's rejuvenation. When the rippling notes of a bugle sounded shrilly above the hum of voices from crowded grandstands, clubhouse, lawns, and paddock, and that call to the post was recognized, a roar of approval arose. It swelled into deafening volume. it was sustained at full-throated strength for half a minute, diminished slightly, and then came forth anew.

All eyes were turned toward the path winding out of the paddocks. Moncreif, son of the swift Cesarion, appeared, leading the parade for the first race. At sight of him and the other th written large was heard to remark. He took off his hat, opened the window and breathed deeply. There was subdued chatter about betting, but the chatterers always seemed interested in what their neighbors were going to do.

On one of the trains—typical of the others—a vender came through, calling: "Maraschino cherries, fresh and juicy!"

"That's a brand new one, ain't it?" queried Mr. Broadway, and thereupon he recalled to his companions memories of "Old Daddy" of the white whiskers and battered silk hat, who was beloved by all race-goers as he proffered toothsomely sour lemon drops, announcing:

"Take one a day and live forever. A winner in every package."

Except for the maraschino man, there was none of the old-time ballyhoo calls, with tipsters crowding through the aisles, newsboys with their "dope" sheets, or the pencil seller. Somehow, going to the races was different yesterday, except for the crowds, and even they differed in character. The tout was absent. Something which the regulars described as refinement entered subtly into the situation. If that were it, it made its influence felt on arrival at the track. There was a dearth of frantic rushing out of the cars. Gone were the hordes of tipsters that formerly hung around the platforms. Just one venturesome hawker invaded the park, and he was suppressed after shouting a few dismal plaints from behind a wire screen.

Crowd Sees Beauties of Nature.

Perhaps for the first time in metropolitan racing history the rank and file took occasion to enjoy the environment under which they were to spend the day. Hundreds stopped along the walks leading to the stands and viewed the natural loveliness of the place. They spoke of the trees, for which the grounds of Belmont Park are famous; the shrubbery, on which much time and money have been expended, and of the rhododendrons in gorgeous bloom.

In the three years' absence of racing English ivy has clustered thickly over the outer walls of the buildings. In fact, the natural beauties of Belmont Park have taken on somewhat the mellowed attractions of an old English park. And, mark you! the crowds took the time and had the mental capacity to appreciate those things.

As the seemingly endless procession moved through the barren spaces of the former betting ring, expressions of wonder arose. None appeared to see the gambling-mad scenes of other days, when 300 or so bookmakers clung to their little blackboards as bettors fought to get bargains in odds, but it required actual survey of the deserted ring to clinch the fact that race track gambling in New York apparently was a thing of the past. A few in whom the old passion was not dead shook their heads somewhat sadly, but the great majority threw its shoulders back proudly, in recognition of the fact that it wasn't gambling that brought it to the races.

Those who were most observant noted as they walked up the asphalt paths toward the entrance that keen-eyed men were stationed on the levels above them. Those men noted every person who passed through the gates. On rare occasions, a signal was passed. It was followed by a quick word to a new arrival, who bowed in acquiescence to a suggestion that he was not wanted.

Word had gone forth to the erstwhile bookmakers that it was futile to attempt to resume business. They talked of their affairs frankly with those in whom they could confide, and that talk quickly became known throughout the concourse. It was to the effect that professional laying of odds would not be tried, even though the officials had not raised an insurmountable barrier. Leaders of the "Mets"—the bookmakers' organization—said they knew well that public betting would mean the death of horse racing in this State, and that they had no intention of dealing the blow. What might develop in the way of quiet betting later did not concern yesterday's activities.

Big Rush Surprises Officials.

As the grand stands began filling, shortly before 2 P. M., the Westchester Racing Association heads realized that their estimate of the popularity of the sport under untried conditions was all too small. For instance, 15,000 programmes were provided. That supply was exhausted early. The gates continued their incessant clicking from 1 o'clock until almost 3, or half an hour after the first race was scheduled to start.

The rush of late comers literally swept attendants off their feet. Lovers of the thoroughbred demonstrated that they considered $3 none too much to pay for an afternoon's enjoyment. For those who could not afford that entrance fee, a third of the huge grand stand was reserved at $1 a ticket. What was known as the field stand in former days was deserted yesterday. All who came could witness events from a common viewplace, except that the holders of three-dollar tickets were a little nearer the wire where the races were finished.

The clubhouse welcomed its distinguished patrons early. Tables were set on the broad verandas for many luncheon parties that were attended by men and women notable in society.

Members of those parties, their friends who later made gay the lawns in front of the clubhouse, and also the casual patrons of the grand stand spoke deferentially of the absence of James R. Keene, whose death deprived the turf of one of its most admired enthusiasts. His son, Foxhall Keene, was there, with Harry Payne Whitney, Richard T. Wilson, August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club; Andrew Miller, Phil J. Dwyer, Henry E. Page, and other leading turfmen.

The presence of women in the clubhouse precincts, in the paddock, and on the lawns lent brilliancy to the crowds. Old acquaintances were renewed on every hand, and the spirit of jollification and good-fellowship seemed epidemic.

The stands were filled and then the lawns before it came home to the racing officials that the occasion was ripe for a decisive verdict on the racing question. Watchers observed that there was no forming of mystic groups like bees at swarming time, indicating that bookmakers were quietly at work. It did not take long to establish the conviction that there was no gambling. With that idea firmly implanted, the crowds gave their undivided attention to the joys of racing.

The demonstration attending the sounding of post call and subsequent acclaims as the successive six races on the day's programme were contested were accepted as proof that the New York public would patronize horse racing with the gambling feature eliminated.

An arrest was made by a Nassau County detective just before the fifth race. Men calling themselves Herman R. Sinkerstein and Samuel Kornblum, both of Brooklyn, were taken from the track. The detective alleged he heard Kornblum place a bet on a horse with Sinkerstein, and hand $10 to the last-named man. Sinkerstein was held for trial on Monday, and Kornblum was detained as a material witness. The latter man was paroled afterward. District Attorney Wysong told a NEW YORK TIMES reporter that Sinkerstein said the money described in the transaction was in payment of a debt.

It was reported that Adjt. Gen. De Witt Hamilton would attend the races as Gov. Sulzer's representative and submit a report, but officials at the track said he had not consulted them. He was at the track, but he did not make himself prominent.

SOCIETY FLOCKS TO RACES.

Summer Hues Prevail in the Beautiful Gowns in the Boxes.

Society thronged jubilantly through the gates of Belmont Park yesterday, some coming from the Turf and Field Club, where there were many luncheon parties; some from near-by country estates, where house parties were being held over the week-end, while others came down by motor from town. All the Meadow Brook set were there, and scores from Long Island's North Shore, and expressions of keen pleasure over the revival of racing on the old grounds after a lapse of three years were heard on all sides.

The clubhouse enclosure and the boxes were the last to fill, for society always comes late, even to the scene of thrilling turf sports. Then everybody seemed to arrive at once, and the majority of fashionables saw the first race. The glorious weather contributed to the enjoyment, and the green enclosure was turned into a garden of beauty and fashion.

There was no startling color among the gowns worn, save for a touch of the Oriental here and there, and the combination of Summer hues—rose, gray, tan, black and white, all black, mustard and brown—seemed to be the prevailing note in the women's attire. There were moncled girls to be sure, and [illegible] walking sticks, and a display of variegated hosiery, with purple in the lead, disclosed by the many slashed skirts.

Much Visiting in the Boxes.

There was a lot of visiting among the occupants of the boxes, and there was much promenading on the green, which was banked with comfortable cane chairs between the races. Many persons paid a visit to the paddock, especially the women whose husbands had favorite horses on the card. Oral betting became popular among the women after the first race or so, for at first none of them seemed to know just how to proceed.

One fashionably attired woman was heard to exclaim, after the Metropolitan Handicap: "You owe me $5, Ida!"

Her companion replied nonchalantly that she had only $3 to her name. Another was heard to assert, at the close of the sixth race, that she was $200 richer than when she arrived. Thus the oral betting in the little groups of friends went on at a merry clip.

When Whisk Broom II. won the handicap there was a lively gathering about the box occupied by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and she was showered with congratulations. Mrs. Whitney, who paid several visits to the paddock with Mr. Whitney, appeared in a costume of black satin with a tailored coat of black cloth and a small and rather flat hat, trimmed with white and black novelty feathers.

Mrs. Payne Whitney had with her in the grandstand box for a while Mrs. J. Smith Hadden and Mrs. Cambridge Livingston. Mrs. Whitney wore a blue and white striped foulard with a white sailor collar and a leghorn hat of brown straw with a single cluster of Spring flowers.

Mrs. August Belmont was among the early arrivals. She was in a tailored suit of slate blue, with a rose straw hat. Among her guests in the box for a time were Justice and Mrs. Francis Key Pendleton, Mrs. Pendleton in rose ratine; Mrs. Oliver W. Bird, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont. Mrs. Perry Belmont wore a dark blue frock and a blue straw topped with black feathers.

Of course, the spirit of informality prevailed everywhere, and persons who were in the boxes for a quarter hour would be seen later in the paddock or bowing to acquaintances in the clubhouse inclosure.

One of the most attractive costumes seen, as the majority of women went in more for tailor-mades than dressy effects, was that worn by Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden. It consisted of black charmeuse and a deep wine-colored chiffon, which draped the bodice and fell in a clinging, veiled effect almost to the bottom of the skirt. A large black hat and a modish black parasol completed her outfit. With Mrs. Burden was Mrs. James B. Eustis, who wore a suit of brocaded blue cloth and a gray hat, with a corsage bouquet of mauve orchids.

Mrs. Goelet in Black Satin.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet occupied a grandstand box in the front tier during most of the session. She was gowned in black satin, with a big black hat. With her was Mrs. F. Gray Griswold, who wore a mustard-colored cloth suit and a blue straw hat, topped with a bird of paradise. Miss Anna Sands, who visited Mrs. Goelet for a time, wore a white flannel tailor suit and a small white felt hat, trimmed with pond lilies. Mrs. F. O. Beach, who also spent some time in the box, appeared in a costume of blue silk, with a hat and parasol to match.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., wore a white diagonal serge and lace frock, with a black silk cutaway coat and a large black hat. Mrs. Arthur Iselin, who was with her in the box, appeared in a tan and dark blue combination costume, with a black hat. Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt wore a white serge suit and a blue cloth jacket, and her white hat, which drooped about her head, was faced with black and topped with a single red rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., were present. Mrs. Roosevelt wearing a white ratine costume and a green and white felt hat. With them was Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, who was in a pale pink ratine suit. Mrs. Herbert Harriman wore black moire, with touches of white at her throat, and a small black hat. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Brown also were there, Mrs. Brown appearing in a costume of black and dull bronze, with a small black hat. Mrs. W. M. Fleitmann was in white serge, and Miss Lida Fleitmann wore a black and white checked suit. Frederick Edey escorted his daughter, Miss Julia Edey, who was in blue.

Miss Celestine Eustis, an aunt of Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., who sat among a group of admiring friends, was one of the most enthusiastic spectators of the races, for she has been attending them for many years, and seemed happy over the revival.

Many Prominent Boxholders.

Among others seen in the boxes and promenading on the clubhouse inclosure were Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. J. Lee Taller, Miss Marie Taller, Miss Helen Coster, and her fiancé, Sumner Gerard, Justice James W. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, Mrs. Albert Zabriskie Gray, Elisha Dyer, Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Potter, Richard Harding Davis, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Regan, Clarence Dolan, and his young daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Laimbeer, Foxhall Keene, Harry Page, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haight, Maurice Burke Roche, Mrs. A. Butler Duncan, Miss May Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mott Warner, Mr. and Mrs. W. Goadby Loew and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Middleton S. Burrill, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Durant, Dr. and Mrs. Preston Satterwhite, Mrs. Adolf Ladenburg, and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Phipps.

Members of the Turf and Field Club who have badges for the season, many of whom were at yesterday's meet, include John G. Agar, Henry M. Alexander, Francis R. Appleton, Joseph S. Auerbach, Leroy W. Baldwin, Edward F. Whitney, Sumner Ballard, J. Searle Barclay, Jr., Jay F. Carlisle, Milton S. Barger, Charles B. Beckwith, Gordon Knox Bell, L. Le Grand Benedict, C. K. G. Billings, James A. Blair, Jr., W. Scott Cameron, James J. Coogan, William du Pont, James A. Burden, Roswell Eldridge, Amos F. Eno, William G. Sprague, Arthur P. Sturgis, Frederick H. ## METROPOLITAN WELL WON.

Performance of Whisk Broom II. Adds to Its Traditions.

Whisk Broom II.'s victory in the Metropolitan Handicap will take its place among the best traditions of the classic. The colt's owner, Harry Payne Whitney, was congratulated warmly on the success of his stable. Although the prowess of this chestnut son of Broomstick was not unknown to horsemen, few believed he could contend against such emergencies as confronted him as the result of racing luck.

His victory supplied a climax to a day's racing of much excellence, judged even from the standards prevailing when the sport was at its height in New York. The programme of the day, with its six well-filled races, whetted the appetites of the tremendous crowd. When eleven of the thirteen entrants for the first event, a six-furlong dash over the main course, paraded to the post, the enthusiasm of the spectators was limited solely by their capacity to cheer. They saw several horses which were recognized as performers on local tracks before the ban was placed on racing. There were Moncrief and Sickle, for instance, but the winner turned up in a new arrival, Ella Bryson, from the Carman stable.

Prior to the second race, there was much gossip about the fitness of Punch Bowl. That this was justified was apparent when the Ornament colt jumped away in the lead and thereafter held command in spite of determined challenges in the stretch by Surprising. The third race went to Everett after a nip-and-tuck finish with Donald Macdonald, Star Gaze being only a half-length back as the three flashed under the wire.

Looking Over Handicap Field.

There was an exodus toward the paddock at the conclusion of the third event to inspect the candidates for the day's classic. Of all the candidates, Whisk Broom II. attracted most attention, although this does not mean the others were neglected. The Broomstick colt was in superb condition and possessed of such conformity as appeals to horsemen. Sprite, famed for his sprinting victories in the South, was another much-talked-of candidate, as was Aldebaran, the Wilson eligible.

August Belmont was represented by Merry Task, a nice-looking six-year-old son of Octagon. Of the fourteen horses carded Nightstick, Harry Payne Whitney's candidate, and Yankee Notions, from the Oneck Stable, were the only absentees. There was much disappointment over the withdrawal of Nightstick.

On the parade to the post Whisk Broom II. was on his bad behavior. He was too full of spirits to appear orderly, and Joe Notter, who received from his admirers a rousing welcome, had his hands full preventing his mount from bolting.

There was a ten-minute delay at the post before the field was sent away to a bad start. Springboard broke in front, attended by Bard of Hope and Merry Task. Whisk Broom II. had refused to break and was last, except for G. M. Miller, when the others were in full motion. Within a quarter of a mile Whisk Broom II. had worked his way under the patient handling of Notter along the rail and into the fast-moving bunch. At the half he was sixth, with Bard of Hope swinging along in front with apparent ease, Springboard, Guy Fisher, and Merry Task following. At the seven-eighths, Bard of Hope chicked it and Whisk Broom II., which had forged steadily ahead, took command.

Whisk Broom II. in his Stride.

G. M. Miller also had come through the field, attended by his stable mate, while Aldebaran, one of the last to break, had made up ground rapidly. Rounding the bend into full view of the cheering throngs, Whisk Broom II. could be seen striding along well in hand and moving with perfect rhythm. Horsemen marveled at the speed and courage which enabled the Broomstick colt to overcome seemingly impossible obstacles, burdened as he was with top weight, 126 pounds.

Nearing the finish the Carman pair challenged determinedly, but Notter, casting an eye behind and also feeling under him the strength and bravery of a superb thoroughbred, did not go to the whip. Urged only by hand, the Whitney colt dashed under the wire in the excellent time of 1:39 flat for the mile. In view of the fact that he practically was left at the post, horsemen figured that he ran the mile in something like a 1:37 clip. Aldebaran was beaten for third place by a head after a game finish.

The race had $2,500 added money and plate of the value of $100. The richest Metropolitan was won by Charade, when the event was contested at Morris Park, the value being about $13,000.

A steeplechase, won by Roland Pardee, was the jumping event of the day, and the last race, a five-furlong sprint down the straight, was won by Naiad.

Jockey Hurt at Belmont Park.

Rothwell York, 25 years old, a jockey employed by a stable at Belmont Park, was injured yesterday morning. He was exercising a horse about 10 o'clock when he lost his seat in the saddle and fell. One foot remained in the stirrup, and the boy was dragged some distance before the horse was caught. When picked up York was bleeding from the mouth and ears. At St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, to which he was taken by Dr. Stark in an ambulance, it was found that his body and head were badly bruised where he had been bumped along the ground and where he had been hit by the hoofs of the frightened horse. York's home is at 154 Garfield Place, Brooklyn.

Police Officials Scared Over Governor's Secret Meeting with Whitman.

GAYNOR MUST FACE DEMAND

Curran Committee to Call for Action and if It Is Refused Will Call on Albany.

For two hours preceding daylight yesterday morning Gov. Sulzer and District Attorney Whitman talked together in a room at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel about the New York City police. A prediction freely made among persons in the confidence of the Governor and Mr. Whitman was that the conference would result in the next week in a decision by Gov. Sulzer to oust from office Police Commissioner Waldo, who is the third man to head the police force since Mayor Gaynor took office.

In police circles the news that the Governor and the District Attorney had been together and had taken up the theme of police administration was received with a good deal of alarm, as it was known to Police Headquarters that the Governor had twice before consulted with Mr. Whitman about police policies.

Commissioner Waldo, while he would not admit that he felt alarmed about the secret conference of yesterday morning, was ill at ease when he met Gov. Sulzer at the reviewing stand in Riverside Drive. The head of the police force was the only one of the city Commissioners who failed to remain in the stand until the parade had passed by. He shook the Governor's hand coldly and almost immediately sought a place by himself on the Drive some distance from the stand in which the Governor was the centre of interest.

Later in the day Commissioner Waldo attacked the work of the Curran committee of the Board of Aldermen in a speech delivered at a luncheon of Spanish War Veterans.

Curran Committee a Factor.

The Curran Committee, it is understood, intends to appeal to Mayor Gaynor at a meeting to be held on Monday to remove Commissioner Waldo on the ground that he has abused his authority in dismissing and demoting policemen who have given information to the committee after being summoned before it. If the Mayor refuses to act against Waldo it is understood that the committee will ask the Board of Aldermen as a whole to pass resolutions calling for the dismissal of the Police Commissioner. If the Aldermen should fail to pass the resolution it is then the plan of the committee members, according to apparently authentic reports, to appeal to Gov. Sulzer as individuals.

Gov. Sulzer is said to have knowledge of this plan, and those in his confidence assert that his conference yesterday morning with Mr. Whitman was arranged in order to help him make up his mind how to act when the petition from members of the Curran committee comes before him.

One big objection to the summary removal of Commissioner Waldo which Gov. Sulzer and Mr. Whitman were said to have considered had to do with Tammany's attitude toward Waldo. It was represented that Tammany really would be glad to have Waldo go, so that the chieftains of the Fourteenth Street Wigwam might contend in the next campaign that they had nothing to do with police crookedness, as it was all up to the administration of Waldo, whom Gaynor appointed without the advice or consent of the organization.

The possibility that summary action against Waldo might comfort Tammany and lead to the gaining of some votes for Mr. Murphy's organization that otherwise would be withheld on account of hostility to grafting methods of the police, at present charged to Tammany, was said to have been carefully weighed by Gov. Sulzer. It is understood that he is seeking the advice of others familiar with police conditions besides District Attorney Whitman, and that he is most anxious about the point of what advantages Tammany may gain from a change in police administration.

Neither Gov. Sulzer nor Mr. Whitman would talk about police affairs or their conference at the Waldorf. Emory R. Buckner, counsel for the Curran Committee, refused to forecast what action the committee would take at its meeting on Monday, but it is known that he believes that the various examinations of Commissioner Waldo by the committee have made a clear case against him. It is expected that Gov. Sulzer will confer with Alderman Curran and with the heads of various civic organizations about police matters before he returns to Albany from his present visit here.

Waldo's Speech of Defense.

Commissioner Waldo, who is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, was the chief speaker at a luncheon of the George B. McClellan and William McKinley Garrisons of the Spanish War Veterans, held at the Parisienne Gardens, Fifty-sixth Street and Eighth Avenue. All the members of these garrisons are policemen and firemen.

"The Police Department has met with much censure and criticism," said Waldo. "Every time we close a gambling or a disorderly resort some people say the Police Department is not efficient. Sometimes friends of these resorts make these statements. The Police Department has been the object of attack during the past year. They haven't shown anything wrong with the administration.

"Some of these resorts were open because sometimes they were able to buy some one. The large mass of the police represent decency, but of course in a large body of men, 10,500, you will always find a few scoundrels. It seems that the Board of Aldermen, so-called investigating committees, and everybody else who has nothing else to do, criticise the Police Department.

"The investigation of the Aldermanic Committee seemed confined. They do not ask about the administration of the department."

Another speaker at the luncheon was Fire Commissioner Johnson. He also retorted to some criticism received lately in the newspapers. It was thought that he referred particularly to the case of Miss Juliette Arden, the woman who headed the woman's civil service list of applicants for inspectorships in the new Bureau of Fire Prevention. Commissioner Johnson gained her enmity because he refused to appoint her as an Inspector.

"Commissioner Waldo is not the only man who has trouble," said Commissioner Johnson. "Suppose you had the women after you? He chiefly has the men. I believe men are better qualified physically to become Fire Prevention Inspectors, and when I made public this opinion, I drew the women upon me. What can you say when a dear woman flbs about you? It's a good thing for me that they haven't got the suffrage.

"Public officials must expect criticism. However, the press does not interest people by describing virtue, but faults. We must extend our charities to them. That a man or woman falls from the right path makes a headline. That is the logic of the newspaper game."

Commissioner Johnson, like Commissioner Waldo, was received with great enthusiasm, and at the close of his address Police Inspector Dwyer, Commander of the McClellan Garrison, pinned a medal on him, making him an honorary member of the Gen. McClellan Garrison.

Assistant District Attorney Sullivan was called on to speak, and he tried to stem the tide by assuring every one present that District Attorney Whitman was really working in harmony and co-operation with the police. The remark brought a laugh from several parts of the room.

FALL STOPS BURGLARY.

Rope Ladder Breaks as Youth Descends from Roof.

Mrs. Anna Senior was in the kitchen of her apartment on the top floor of 215 West 120th Street yesterday evening preparing supper, when she heard a cry outside and the sound of a falling body. Looking down the airshaft between her's and the next house she saw in the yard underneath the body of a man, who she thought was her son. Mrs. Senior, who is an elderly widow, screamed and fainted.

Her daughter, Theresa, also thought it was her brother who had fallen, and hastened downstairs with other tenants. In the yard they found a young man lying unconscious and bleeding from the mouth, but Theresa Senior's fears were relieved when she found he was a stranger. Patrolman Nelson of the Lenox Avenue Station was called, and sent word to Dr. Coban of Harlem Hospital, where the injured man was taken still unconscious.

Then Detectives Hyams and Hughes took up the question of what had caused the fall. Ascending to the roof they found that an old clothesline had been fashioned into a rope ladder which hung over the parapet directly above a window of the top-floor apartment. The rope was old and rotten, and a broken end which swung in the wind told the story of the fall. Near by on the roof the detectives found a man's hat and a jimmy. Marks on the locked door which led from the roof into the stairway of the house, showed that attempts had been made to enter that way.

In an interval of consciousness it was learned at the hospital that the young man was John McKnight, 17 years old, of 104 East 124th Street, where he said his father was the janitor. The youth said he was an errand boy, but his father, when detectives saw him, said that for some time his son had not been working at any regular occupation. It is said at the hospital that McKnight has little chance of recovering.

CALL TONG TRUCE A BLIND.

Whitman's Informants Say Chinese Societies Mask Gamblers.

The recent peace agreement arranged by Judge Warren W. Foster of General Sessions, and which was signed by the On Leong Tong and the Hip Sing Tong, was said yesterday to be simply a blind to cover the warlike spirit still existing between those Chinatown societies. That information came to District Attorney Whitman from men familiar with Chinatown. They said the Chinese Merchants' Association, designated as the sole arbitrator of the feuds, included many On Leongs. They added that the arbitration section of the treaty was out of keeping with the oaths of the Tong members, as the Tongs, though posing as benevolent associations, in reality were the mediums through which gamblers in Chinatown obtained protection. The District Attorney's informants asserted that was the cause of Tong wars.

Lucian S. Breckenridge, Assistant District Attorney in charge of the prosecutions against the Tong men, received information that each Tong had gunmen who acted as go-betweens for the gamblers and outsiders and also attended to misleading the police. It was said bitter rivalry existed between the gunmen of the hostile Tongs, as they had the task of getting protection money from the gamblers, amounting to from $5 to $15 weekly for each gaming table.

Mr. Breckenridge will communicate with Capt. William Tierney of the Elizabeth Street Police Station and will suggest a way in which the peace agreement may be made lasting. There are two Chinese Merchants' Associations, one being at 14 Mott Street, the other at No. 16. The headquarters of the On Leong Tong is No. 18.

Montana Man Also Repudiates Confessing to Other Murders.

MISSOULA, Mont., May 30.—"I swear before God I am an innocent man—innocent of all charges they have tried to make me accuse myself of." Thus did Frank Diamon, arrested at Plains, Mont., yesterday, conclude in jail last night a complete denial of a remarkable confession of a series of crimes, which he was alleged to have made.

Among the murders which Diamon is supposed to have confessed having committed was that of the former Territorial Governor of Montana, Thomas Francis Meagher. Diamon now says that all he knew of the death of Gov. Meagher was what he read, and that he never killed a man in his life.

In passing an automobile he got too close to the trolley tracks and was struck by a car. He was hurled from his wheel and landed on his head some distance away.

Servia, and Greece sent Turkey a note demanding an autonomous Macedonia, and four days later Turkey handed the Balkan Ministers at Constantinople their passports.

Considering the interior position, which Turkey occupied, the military strength of that empire and of the allies was not unequally matched. Turkey could muster, it was estimated, 500,000 men, Bulgaria 300,000, Servia 200,000, Greece 80,000, and Montenegro 50,000. Montenegro struck the first blow and carried on independent operations which led her to Scutari, but the decisive operations of the war were conducted by Bulgaria, with Servia acting as an invaluable ally on her right.

The Servians were making for Durazzo, which they actually reached on Nov. 28, and the Greeks were pressing forward to both Janina and Salonika. These operations hampered the Turks by distracting their attention, but the mistake which cost them their European dominions was committed in not appreciating the strategy of Bulgaria. The army of this kingdom, as expected, moved at once upon Adrianople and invested it; but instead of stopping there it threw forward one army corps on the left, and in rapid succession drove the Turks back from the Kirk Kilisseh and Lule Burgas positions in disastrous retreat upon Constantinople.

The Bulgarians had, however, outrun their strength and supplies, and seem also to have been infected to some extent by the cholera, which had appeared in the Turkish ranks. So, when they reached the lines of Tchatalja, they were unable to force them, and on Dec. 3 an armistice was signed between the Turks and the Allies.

Though operations were still carried on by the Greeks, the negotiations for peace were undertaken in London. Nothing was accomplished, as the demand of the Allies for a large indemnity was refused by the Turks. The result was that the war was renewed on Feb. 4, and on March 27 Adrianople at last fell before the Bulgarians and Servians. Still the Allies were held back by the lines of Tchatalja, and the result was a second armistice.

On the western frontier of the Turkish Empire, however, King Nicholas of Montenegro, fearing for his throne, refused to lay down his arms, and on April 24, in spite of the protest of the Great Powers and the presence of their fleets in demonstration against him, conquered Scutari. A few days later, however, he was forced to evacuate it in the face of the enormous diplomatic pressure put upon him.

SULZER THREATENS AS HIS TOUR ENDS

Calls Himself Man of Peace, but Would Flay Opponents.

NIGHT TOUR OF SIXTY MILES

Addresses Three Meetings in Behalf of His Direct Primary Plan—Hints at Albany Scandals.

Gov. Sulzer, in the course of a sixty-mile automobile ride, taken within the confines of New York City last night to promote sentiment in favor of his Direct Primary bill, said in three speeches along his route that first of all he was a man of peace. He insisted that he loved peace. Then he said that he "would strip any man who fought against him of his hide and tack the hide to the ceiling of the Capitol at Albany."

Gov. Sulzer did not content himself with this threat. He warned his hearers that, while he was too busy just at present to tell them all he knew about Albany, he might be compelled to come back and tell them things that would make them want to join in lynching bees.

Gov. Sulzer's sixty-mile automobile ride had Brownsville, in Brooklyn, as its first stop, and included two Staten Island appointments, one at Tottenville and the other at Stapleton.

The three meetings wound up the Governor's stumping tour of this part of the State. Great crowds turned out at each stopping place to greet him, and as many as could jammed their way into the halls where he spoke. The crowds cheered him loudly, even at the Staten Island meetings, where State Senator Blauvelt, author of the primary measure which Gov. Sulzer vetoed, shared the platform with him.

Blauvelt Stands Fast.

The primary object of the Staten Island tour was to convert Senator Blauvelt to the Sulzer direct primary views, and also to convert the Staten Island member of the Assembly, R. R. McKee. The tour, so far as this purpose was concerned, was a failure, as Senator Blauvelt announced as the crowd and the Governor departed that he would vote against an extra session against the Sulzer measure. Assemblyman McKee made a slightly evasive answer to friends who insisted that they had heard that he intended to become a convert to the Sulzer views.

"Wait till you hear me say that myself and don't fool yourselves by making guesses in advance," was the most definite reply he would make.

It was after a few persuasive sentences addressed to Senator Blauvelt, urging him to become converted, that Gov. Sulzer made his comment as to possible lynching parties in Albany.

"I am trying to work for you people," said the Governor, in a tone warmer than he had previously used at any time in his stumping tour. "I find it rather hard. If I were working for my own pocket the leaders would pat me on the back and call me the best Governor New York ever had. But as it is, I am considered a rather queer kind of Governor. They do not pat me on the back. Instead they are digging pits for me to fall into.

"I have not time to tell you all about conditions up at Albany. But I may be obliged to return here at a later date and tell you a great deal more. If I should tell you some things I know about Albany conditions it would make you want to come out with a rope in your hands."

Gov. Sulzer then turned his attention to Charles F. Murphy and to Senator Blauvelt, who was seated beside him. He said that under the present boss-controlled convention system, one man sitting in Fourteenth Street and another man in the private office in Albany had more power than the 1,500,000 voters of the Empire State. He said that the very fact that he was forced to come into the district of Senator Blauvelt was evidence that Mr. Murphy and Mr. Barnes could hold the Legislature against the will of the people of the whole State.

Says Bosses Forced Fight.

"The bosses forced me into this fight," said Gov. Sulzer. "Ordinarily I am a man of peace. But if anybody carries a scrap to me I am willing to accommodate him. I warn anybody who attacks me that I will strip him of his hide, and tack the hide on the ceiling of the Capitol at Albany."

At first the Governor was not very bitter in his references to Senator Blauvelt and Assemblyman McKee.

"If they will be converted," Gov. Sulzer said, "why then I will come into this district and help them to be re-elected."

The audience cheered and whistled. Gov. Sulzer smiled over the crowd, and then said:

"I think your elected representatives will find that I have some influence here. I plead with Senator Blauvelt and Assemblyman McKee to forget their prejudice and stop listening to the telephone calls from Fourteenth Street. I plead with them to listen instead to the voice of the people, which is the voice of God.

"But if they will not listen to me now I promise you, the people of Staten Island, that I will come back here and will do all in my power to help you to defeat them and to retire them from the public life of the State."

Gov. Sulzer expressed his confidence, at the close of his tour, that he would have votes in plenty to pass his primary bill when the Legislature reconvenes on June 16.

BARNES GIVES HIS VIEWS.

Republican Attitude on the State-Wide Primary Plan.

William Barnes, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, said last night.

"The repetition by Gov. Sulzer at his meetings in New York City of his misrepresentation of my attitude regarding primary legislation calls for further definition on my part concerning it.

"The Republican Convention at Saratoga declared in favor of making nominations by political parties direct in all political sub-divisions of the State, and that State nominations should be made at conventions by delegates chosen directly by the enrolled voters of the party. In accordance with that platform declaration, Senator Brown and Assemblyman Vert introduced measures in the Legislature two months before Gov. Sulzer took any action on the primary subject, but the bills were beaten in both houses by the Democratic majority.

"The Governor says I am interested in the defeat of the primary legislation which he has advocated, which is practically identical with the Republican proposals with the exception of the abolition of the State Convention. He is entirely mistaken. I am not interested in the sense that he uses the word one way or the other. As Chairman of the Republican State Committee, it is my duty to urge upon the Republican members of the Legislature that they should support in this matter, as in all others, the provisions contained in the Republican pledge to the people. That duty I have performed. I am not concerned or interested whether the Democratic Party is run by a Sulzer machine or a Murphy machine. They present a great simil

TAFT ORATOR OF THE DAY

Gen. James Grant Wilson, William R. Hearst, Secretary Daniels, and Others Pay Tribute to the Dead.

The National Maine Monument, erected to commemorate the martyrdom of the officers and men of the battleship Maine, who went to their deaths when the warship sunk in Havana Harbor on Feb. 15, 1898, was unveiled yesterday afternoon with an impressive ceremony. It is certain that no similar event in the history of the city was ever attended with more fervor. The monument ornaments the Columbus Circle entrance to Central Park.

The Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of War, the Governor of New York and the Governor of Maine, the Comander in Chief and the Division and Ship Commanders of the Atlantic Fleet, the Mayor of New York, and scores of the best known citizens of New York and neighboring States, were there. George Hearst, the little son of William Randolph Hearst, pulled the silken cords that released the large American flag which covered the monument, and then, as the thousands cheered, the superdreadnoughts, dreadnoughts, and first line battleships of the Atlantic Fleet anchored in the Hudson thundered out their simultaneous salute of twenty-one guns, the tribute of the navy to the men who went down with the Maine.

The unveiling ceremonies were preceded by one of the greatest parades ever witnessed in New York on a Memorial Day. The regular army men from Governors Island and the forts in and near New York; 5,000 officers and men of Admiral Badger's fleet in the harbor; National Guardsmen and naval militiamen, and a long column of khaki-clad veterans of the Spanish war made up the line. The march began at Forty-second Street, and continued up the Avenue to Fifty-ninth Street, and through Fifty-ninth Street to the monument. The streets were lined with flagwaving, cheering men and women and children, who stood four or five rows deep.

Grand Marshal Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, the commanding officer of the first division of the Atlantic Fleet, rode at the head of the column, and behind came Lieut. Zoobaum, Flag Lieutenant, and then Col. Mallory of Governors Island, who commanded the division of regular troops. After the regulars came the 5,000 bluejackets of the Atlantic Fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, and then the National Guardsmen and the naval militiamen, and the veterans of the war that was hastened by the sinking of theold Maine.

Sailors and soldiers from Cuba had a prominent position in the column, and none of those in line got a greater reception. The Cubans were headed by the Cuban National Band of eighty-two pieces, and marched like West Point cadets. They were commanded by Commander Quevedo of the cruiser Cuba.

The reviewing stand was in the Plaza at Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, those who occupied the stand being Gov. Sulzer, Gov. Haines of Maine, Admiral Badger, the Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet; Mayor Gaynor, Rear Admiral Sigsbee, who as a Captain was in command of the Maine when she was blown up; Father John P. Chidwick, who was the chaplain of the doomed ship; Mayor Gaynor; Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, U. S. A., and the members of the National Maine Monument Committee.

As soon as the column had passed the reviewing officers were carried in automobiles to the monument, where the formal dedicatory exercises were immediately begun. The Right Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of New York, offered the opening prayer, after which the venerable Gen. James Grant Wilson, Chairman of the Monument Committee, advanced to the front of the speakers' stand and delivered the address presenting the monument to the city.

Raised by a Million Hands.

"No equally important function of this character," said Gen. Wilson, "has occurred since Lincoln pronounced his immortal tribute to the patriotic men who fell at Gettysburg fifty years ago. That event was only celebrated by the loyal States, while this is commemorated by the entire reunited country and the Republic of Cuba, so that it is really an international tribute rendered to our honored dead.

"The idea of a monument in this city to the memory of the 267 officers and men who went down with the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor on the night of Feb. 15, 1898, originated with William Randolph Hearst. Her loss was the greatest disaster, save one, recorded in the annals of the American Navy, the only instance that surpassed it in the appalling loss of life being when the Randolph of thirty-two guns engaged in March, 1778, the British ship Farmouth of sixty-four guns, and during the action was blown up with Capt. Nicholas Biddle and 510 officers and men. But four of her crew were saved.

"The monument was to be a memorial to the hundreds of gallant soldiers and sailors who lost their lives during the late war with Spain. The total cost is about $175,000, chiefly the result of a popular subscription among the poor and plain people of almost every State in the Union, and numbering more than a million contributors, but a few large amounts being received from rich men of New York.

"The sculptor, Attilio Piccirilli, and the architect, H. Van Buren Magonigle, both of this city, are with us this afternoon, and will please stand up."

The speaker then gave the monument in keeping to the Mayor and his successors.

Little George Hearst, dressed in the white duck uniform of an enlisted man of the United States Navy, stepped out of the stand and took his position near the monument. Around were half a dozen stalwart seamen of Badger's fleet, who had been assigned to assist the little fellow in releasing the flag that hid the monument from the multitude.

The signal for the unveiling was "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the fleet band, and as the National anthem started the little boy gave a jerk at the silken ropes and the memorial was disclosed to view, while the great crowd before it cheered and cheered and from the river came distinctly the mighty salute that was thundred forth by the battleships of the Atlantic Fleet at anchor.

As soon as silence came Father Chidwick advanced to the base of the monument. He bore a great wreath of flowers, the gift of the President of the United States. He placed it at the base of the monument, kneeling in prayer as he did so. Brig. Gen. Elliott T. Dill, Adjutant General of the State of Maine, followed and placed in position the wreath given by his State. Then came Commander Robert P. Forshew of the Naval Militia of New York, who placed the wreath that was the gift of the State of New York, and after him Miss Marion Gaynor, daughter of the Mayor, who laid the floral tribute of the City of New York on the monument. After her Consul General Rocafort of Cuba placed the tribute of the Island republic, and last was Rear Admiral Sigsbee, the gallant commander of the old battleship, who with tears in his eyes slowly advanced and laid reverently in position the flowery tribute of the officers and men of the Atlantic Fleet.

Mayor Gaynor then arose and in a short speech accepted the monument in the name of the city.

This letter from President Wilson, addressed to Gen. James Grant Wilson, was read:

The White House.
Washington, May 19, 1913.

My Dear Gen. Wilson: I wish most sincerely that it were possible for me to be present at the dedication of the Maine Monument. My thoughts will be very much with you that day, as will, I am sure, the thoughts of the whole country. All Americans must look back to the tragedy of the Maine with the profoundest sentiments of sorrow for the fine men who there so tragically and unexpectedly lost their lives, and must always feel that to have been one of the turning points of our consciousness of what was involved in the struggle for human liberty.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Taft Speaks the Words.

Ex-President William Howard Taft was then introduced. He was the orator of the day and never received as President a warmer welcome than was accorded to him then and there. He bowed time and again his appreciation.

"The monument we dedicate to-day," said Mr. Taft, "is an enduring witness of three facts. The first is the gratitude that our country feels toward the men who went down on the Maine, in that they gave up their lives in her service. The second is the birth of a new people and the founding of a new nation through our disinterested aid and sacrifice. The third is the expansion of this Nation into a wider sphere of world usefulness and greater responsibility among the nations than ever before in its history.

"The honored dead to whom this is an appropriate memorial were a heavy part of the cost to the country of our war with Spain. This is not to charge responsibility to the Spanish Government for the explosion of the Maine, except in so far as it may be said to be responsible for the protection of the warship of a friendly power in its own harbor. The careful report of two boards of sworn experts, however, leaves no doubt that the explosion was due to an outside cause and to a hostile hand. The tense feeling between the two nations growing out of the intolerable conditions in Cuba, intolerable to her people and intolerable to her neighbors, needed only the explosion of the Maine, under conditions which existed, to render war inevitable, and the candid and careful historian must always date the coming of the Spanish-American war from the heartrending cries of the brave jack tars whose souls were hurried into the presence of their Maker on that night of the 15th of February in Havana Harbor, fifteen years ago. They were on duty when they went down; they were wearing the uniform of their beloved country, and they have a right to that place in that roll of naval heroes whose steadfastness and courage have given the American Navy the high place it has in history among the navies of the world.

"We are now gathered, upon this memorial day of the year, devoted by Nation and State, law and custom, to renewing the memories of all who died for us in all our wars, here to dedicate a monument that shall stand in this metropolis in the country, and in one of the greatest and busiest marts of the world, and shall recall them from the thoughts of their daily vocations and of their selfish interest to a contemplation of the sacrifices necessary from time to time on the part of some of their fellows that the Nation may live, and that the march of human progress may go on."

Cuba Has Stood the Test.

Out of the Spanish war, he said, came the Republic of Cuba. Prophecies of impending danger to it if a change of administration in the United States were to come had been freely made, but in the last year one President of the United States had peacefully given over his office to his successor and the Cuban people had successfully met the test.

"Cuba is our foster child," he observed. "As she errs in the childhood and youth of her national life we must bear with her and aid her. Again and again it has been said, and without a thought of the new responsibilities and the new burdens we would have to assume and the plighted fate we would have to break, that if Cuba again stumbles and the United States is obliged to intervene to prevent a fratricidal war and great disaster, then we must end the republic and take over the island within our jurisdiction and protection. This is said without regard to the moral relation he, and our continuing duty to help her, and to be patient with faults that may be expected in her struggles to govern herself."

Mr. Taft spoke of the responsibilities that the Spanish War has thrust upon the United States in the possession of Porto Rico and the Philippines, and it was the duty of this country in good faith to those peoples and to the nations of the world to give them the best government it could, until by both experience and education they became self restrained and capable of governing themselves.

"This monument marks the time in the life of our Nation," said he, "when it awakened to the consciousness of its increased power for good in the world and its larger share in the burden of the world's advance.

Secretary Daniels's Tribute.

After Mr. Taft came the Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels.

"In the whole range of patriotic story," the Secretary said, "as it comes to us in tales of the sea, there is no finer illustration of heroism than that exhibited at the time of the blowing up of the Maine.

"The sailors on the Maine, in Havana Harbor, who were rudely disturbed from their slumber only to be hurried into what we mistakenly call eternal sleep, were at their places of duty. They had surrendered what is most prized by other men; they had consecrated their lives to the defense of the Nation and its homes, they were the guardians of the lives and prosperity of Americans at home and abroad. How beautiful is the life wedded to duty! How glorious is the spirit of the sailor who gives up all to stand watch for his race! Unafraid, he is the man on the tower answering when asked 'Watchman tell us of the night.'

"I am thrilled," the Secretary continued, "as I see with my minds eye that picture of a scene in the darkness of that dreadful night. Of private William Anthony saluting Capt. Sigsbee and reporting, 'The ship is blown up, and is sinking, Sir.' The incident gathers into itself the navy's loyalty to the flag. Sigsbee and Anthony are representative and typical—the one an officer of high rank, stumbling up from his cabin through the dark and over the dead to assert his command and snatch order out of the confusion; the other an enlisted man, faithful unto death and performing his duty at the risk of life itself, under circumstances so unusual that failure to do so would never be considered even as a breach.

"We speak of the heroes of the Maine as if they were dead," said Secretary Daniels in conclusion, "but ought we not to feel that they live always by their sacrifices, stimulating us to patriotic achievement."

"This great Republic," said Gov. Sulzer when his turn came, "should be grateful to her soldiers and sailors. This Republic owes them, living and dead, a debt it can never pay, and this monument will be an inspiration to generations yet unborn because it typifies a great idea, because it stands for a great inspiration."

Rear Admiral Sigsbee was greeted with prolonged cheering. He told the story of the Maine, of the raising of her, and the burial of the bones of her heroes in Arlington, and the burial of the Maine herself on March 16 of last year. He offered his "heartfelt appreciation and my congratulations to William Randolph Hearst, to Gen. James Grant Wilson, to the subscribers to the funds, to the sculptor and architect, and to all others whose patriotic efforts have contributed to the erection of this noble and beautiful monument, which we know accords with the hallowed sentiment of a whole people."

On Behalf of Cuba.

Señor Calderon made the speech in behalf of the Cuban Republic.

"Our presence here to-day," he said, "carries with it the fervent and heartfelt sympathy of the President and people of Cuba to those martyrs to whom this monument is dedicated. Although they rest in peace, their memory will always live in the heart of every Cuban patriot, and let us hope that the memory of this solemn ceremony will be the means of extending more and more the friendship and cordial relations that so happily exist between these two countries of ours."

Gov. Haines of Maine said that every American felt justly proud of the part we took, and the aid we gave to get a greater freedom and wider opportunity for the people of Cuba, through the establishment of a civil Government which recognizes the equality of man—that it aided in the establishment of another democratic republic on the Western Hemisphere. The monument would stand as evidence of our self-sacrifice and patriotism.

William Randolph Hearst said in his speech that it was most significant that the monument was erected by the whole people, for he thought that in the defense and development of this country the one thing next in importance to heroism and devotion was appreciation of heroism and devotion by all the people.

"We cannot all be heroes," said he, "but we can all be grateful for heroism. We are not all privileged to lay down our lives in the service of our country, but we can all love and honor and remember the men who have made such splendid sacrifices."

After Mr. Hearst came "America" by the Atlantic Fleet Band, and with that the Maine Monument was dedicated and placed in the keeping of the City of New York.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS ARE THE REAL SHOW

SEVEN ORIGINAL ZOUAVES

Charles Walters, War Color Bearer, Carries the Old Flag—Boy Scouts in the Parade.

The civil war veterans who marched past the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument on Riverside Drive yesterday morning, were out in full force for the first time in several years. There never had been a finer day in all their lives, many of them said, and if any of the 1,800 veterans of the city were not in the parade, they asserted, they must have been taken ill at the last moment. Regular year-in and year-out witnesses of the parade said it was the best that ever had been held.

Gov. Sulzer was in the reviewing stand at Eighty-ninth Street and the Drive. He was accompanied by his military staff. Chairs were discarded throughout the one hour and fifty minutes of the review. Standing with the Governor were Major S. Ellis Briggs, Commander of the Old Guard; Gen. Nicholas W. Day, Past Senior Vice Commander in Chief, G. A. R.; Gen. Anson G. McCook, Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, Col. George E. Dewey, Col. Allan C. Bakewell, Capt. William F. Kirchner, Job E. Hedges, Sheriff Harburger, Police Commissioner Waldo, Henry Clews, John D. Crimmins and many others. One great veteran, Gen. Horace Porter, was missing, and there were many inquiries for him.

The guard of honor stationed on either side of the reviewing stand, was the Veteran Corps of Artillery of the Military Society of the War of 1812. The bearskin helmets lined the Drive for several blocks, and made an impressive lane for the marching columns. The crowd in the stands immediately behind the Governor's stand, numbered about 5,000, and it was estimated that 50,000 persons viewed the parade along the route from Seventy-second to Ninety-sixth Streets. Mrs. Sulzer was in the reserved section of the bleachers.

Regulars Led Guard of Honor.

First came a platoon of mounted policemen escorting United States Regulars under the command of Major Joseph Wheeler, Jr. The National Guard of the State, led by Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, followed. There were thirteen regiments in line, headed by the Seventh, and this part of the parade alone took up almost an hour. Squadron A, First Cavalry, and the First Field Artillery, the latter dashing by the reviewing stand at full gallop, received the most liberal applause.

It required thirty minutes for the passing of the civil war veterans, who constituted the second main division of the parade. Col. George H. Stevens was the Grand Marshal with Col. Joseph B. Lord as Chief of Staff. There were marching representatives from sixty-five posts. Most of the veterans walked to the regular time of the bands, but only half a dozen color bearers out of the sixty-five were able to carry their own flags. There were many torn and tattered flags in the line, and only a few were unfuried.

Little grandsons and granddaughters marched in line with the veterans, holding the hands of their grandfathers, and equally as proud as the soldiers themselves. Here and there little girls appeared in the column, carrying miniature stretchers filled with flowers. Every veteran, too, wore a flower or a bunch of flowers, distributed by Sarah J. Loomis, who thinks that war veterans ought to be honored with flowers while they are living rather than when they are dead.

Only seven of the original Anderson Zouaves were in the parade, and among them was Charles Walters, of 22 Sumpter Street, Brooklyn, who was the color bearer of the regiment. Walters carried the colors yesterday and when he had reached the end of the march he walked back to the reviewing stand.

Gov. Sulzer saw the broad shouldered Zouave and reached over the bunting to shake his hand. The stand cheered. Walters explained that there had been 1,400 in his regiment at the beginning of the war and that only 145 had come out alive after four years of service. In 1911, he said, there were fifteen survivors in the parade. There were nine last year, he said, and two more had dropped off during the past year.

"I've never allowed this flag to get out of my house," he said, grasping the staff firmly with the remaining four fingers of his right hand. The little finger was shot off during a skirmish in 1864.

Youngsters Follow the Veterans.

The Spanish War veterans followed in the wake of the G.A. R. veterans and then came a number of organizations of young blood, including a large detachment of American Boy Scouts, led by Major William H. Elliott. Two battalions of colored Boy Scouts trailed at the end of the parade.

Then followed the Memorial Day exercises at the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument with Gov. Sulzer and Gen. George B. Loud, Chairman of the Memorial Committee, as the speakers. When the flag was run to the masthead the United States Battleship North Dakota, stationed immediately off the monument, fired the first of the twenty-one guns of the National salute. The firing continued at intervals until the Rev. William M. Grosvenor pronounced the benediction.

Throughout the flag raising the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Lead Kindly Light," and the prayer, Gov. Sulzer stood in the middle of the assemblage around the monument with head covered. Many persons in the audience asked for the identity of the man with the black slouch hat. It wasn't until he was introduced that the Governor took off his hat.

"This day is sacred to the men, living and dead, who saved the Union," said the Governor. "All honor to the great men, living and dead, who saved the Republic in the darkest hours of its history. The Government owes them and their wives and widows a debt of gratitude which it can never pay. There is no gift in the Republic too great for any one of these men. Their lives are examples for the generations. The tumult and the shouting have died; captains and kings have departed; but sacrifice lives on."

After the services the Governor was escorted to the Plaza Hotel for luncheon by his guard of honor.

Gen. George B. Loud opened the memorial exercises held last night in Cannegie Hall under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic. The presiding officer was Thomas W. Churchill, President of the Board of Education. Seated on the stage were Henry Clews, Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, Abraham G. Mills, Commander George W. Stokes, S. M. Mildenberg of Ketcham Post, and Edwin Atkinson, Post Commander of the G. A. R., State of New York.

Dr. Joseph Silverman offered the prayer, following which Gen. Loud made a short address. The musical programme was long and elicited much applause.

700 IN BROOKLYN PARADE.

Carriages Carry 200 Veterans, but Rest March to Prospect Park.

The chief event of Memorial Day in Brooklyn was the parade of the civil war veterans, escorted by regiments of the National Guard, detachments of sailors and marines from the navy yard, and civic organizations. Along Bedford Avenue to Eastern Parkway, and the Boulevard to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument at Prospect Park, there was a profuse display of flags and decorations, and the fine weather brought out an unusually large crowd.

In the past year 150 of the Brooklyn veterans have died, and many others too feeble to walk watched from windows the parade of their stronger comrades. The paraders turned out 700 strong, 200 of this number riding in carriages. The U. S. Grant Post, G. A. R., No. 327, had 288 veterans in the parade, the largest number of any of the G. A. R. organizations.

Major Gen. Isaac S. Catlin was the reviewing officer. He was deeply affected at the reception given him by the old soldiers, many of whom he recognized as his comrades in war.

Services were held at 7 o'clock in the morning in front of the Beecher Statue in Borough Hall Park. The Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, presided. The speaker was the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon of the Reformed Church on the Heights.

CANNONADE NEAR TOMB.

Ten Warships Add Grandeur to U. S. Grant Memorial Service.

Through the courtesy of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, the memorial exercises yesterday afternoon at Grant's Tomb in Riverside Park were of unprecedented splendor. Secretary Daniels offered the gunners of the combined fleet in the Hudson to the members of the U. S. Grant Post of Brooklyn, under whose auspices the exercises were held, and the result was a cannonading which brought to the services 50,000 persons.

It was this Post which buried Gen. Grant, and it was the hope of Gen. Grant's family that the Post, on each Decoration Day, would observe special services. As usual the veterans, all of whom had served with Grant, came over in a steamer from Brooklyn, and landed at the foot of West 132d Street. There were 130 of them out of a total enrollment of about 300. The Woman's Auxiliary of the Grant Post swelled the boat's list to about 500. The boat was late in landing, and it was 3 o'clock before the column, headed by Past Commander Fenwick Y. Hedley, Chairman of the Memorial Day Committee, reached the Tomb.

Park Commissioner Stover had ordered about 200 benches to be put on the east façade of the Tomb, and with the Tomb proper as a background a speakers' platform had been set up. The veterans were on one side of the stand and the wives and friends of the veterans on the other. Several thousand persons crowded in vain to get through the police lines.

The services were begun with the dipping of the colors and the guns of the battleship Georgia roared the National salute. The Georgia was stationed opposite the Tomb. The rituals of the Grand Army of the Republic were read, interspersed with band music, singing of patriotic songs, and the reading of President Lincoln's famous Gettysburg Address. The outdoor services ended with the oration of Gen. John C. Black.

At the conclusion of the outdoor services the veterans marched into the tomb. They crowded around the circular crypt inside the mausoleum, where they could look down upon the caskets of their former commander and his wife. Heads were bowed, and in the silence Veteran George R. Brown recited the memorial ritual.

At the last word a boutonniere fell from the hands of each of the 130 veterans and dropped on the caskets twenty feet below. Another impressive silence followed, and then a band played the Doxology from a recess in the Tomb and filled the stone crypt with echoes. Taps were sounded at ten minutes after five.

It was at the last strain of taps that Secretary Daniels's real part of the programme began, for immediately there began a cannonading from the ten battleships stretching from Seventy-second to 139th Street. Each ship fired the National salute of twenty-one guns, and the yellow flames and white puffs from the battleship Georgia were aimed directly over Gen. Grant's tomb. The veterans marched back to their boat at the foot of West 132d Street, and all the while the guns were roaring. The thousands who had been sitting along the Drive during the afternoon joined in the salute to the dead hero by rising, and many heads were uncovered in reverence. Officers of the U. S. Grant Post of Brooklyn said that the services had never been more inspiring since the death of Grant, almost twenty-eight years ago.

QUEENS GRAVES VISITED.

Veterans and Guardsmen with Diminishing Grand Army Ranks.

Veterans of the Spanish-American War and National Guardsmen made up in numbers for the decimation of the ranks of Grand Army men at the Memorial Day observances at the cemeteries in Queens yesterday.

Services for the day were opened in Calvary Cemetery by the celebration of mass by Father Lonergan in St. Calixtus's Chapel.

Members of the Dr. McGlynn Association met at the grave of that once famous priest, where an oration was delivered by Charles Frederick Adams, his subject being: "Dr. McGlynn, a Prophet of Justice." Appropriate music was rendered and the grave was embossed with wreathes and flowers.

The grave of Police Lieut. Joseph Petrosino, who was shot to death by members of the Black Hand gang while on a mission to Italy during Gen. Bingham's term as Police Commissioner of New York City, was not forgotten. Several large wreaths hung from his monument, and flowers covered his grave.

The Sixty-ninth Regiment decorated many graves, and the veteran and volunteer firemen's associations also visited the graves of old comrades. Wreaths were also laid at the foot of the monument erected to the memory of the Fenian martyrs of 1865-67, while fresh wreaths were laid at the door of the tomb of Frank H. Croker and Herbert V. Croker, sons of Richard Croker, formerly Chieftain of Tammany Hall.

The Lutheran Cemetery, out in Middle Village, was visited by Koltes Post, one of the largest German Grand Army organizations. Metternich Post, another famous German Grand Army post, and the J. L. Riker Post and Frederick Hecker Post.

OLDER WARS REMEMBERED.

Honors for Heroes of 1812, Mexico, and the Revolution.

Heroes who died before the civil war were not forgotten yesterday in old St. Paul's and Trinity churchyards, in the downtown part of Manhattan, but there was less decorating of graves, it was thought, than in other recent years. The sexton of Old Trinity made an observation which it was thought would go uncontradicted.

"I have been here twenty years," he said, "and in that time I have noticed the sad falling away in attendance of the grand old men who made a pious practice of coming here each Memorial Day. I remember when a hundred veterans would come to visit the churchyard and to decorate the graves. I suppose most of them have passed away now, or have become too old and feeble to come."

From the memorial tablet to Major Gen. Richard Montgomery, in the facade of St. Paul's Church, there waved a wreath of maple leaves hung there by the Sons of the Revolution. It bore this inscription:

In grateful remembrance of the patriotism, conduct, enterprise, and preseverance of Major General Montgomery, who fell in the attack on Quebec, Dec. 31, 1775. Aged 37 years.

The monuments to Dr. James MacNeven and Thomas Addis Emmet in the north and south sides of St. Paul's churchyard also were decorated.

The Martyrs' Monument in the northeast corner of Trinity churchyard also bore a wreath from the Sons of the Revolution, and a new flag was in evidence where the words "Don't give up the ship" attested to the patriotism of Capt. Lawrence, Commander of the frigate Chesapeake. Alexander Hamilton's tomb also was decorated, as were the memorials to Gen. Philip Kearny and Noah Farnham.

In the uptown Trinity Cemetery the graves of veterans were decorated by John A. Dix Post and Lafayette Post. A group of veterans went to the cemetery immediately after the morning parade. At the John A. Dix memorial service an address was made by John Dix, grandson of Gen. John A. Dix, on the life and services of his grandfather. Edwin A. Sumner made an oration on "American Ideals." Mr. Sumner is a nephew of Gen. Edwin V. Sumner, who commanded the Second Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac.

Five hundred persons gathered at the West Farms Cemetery in the Bronx for memorial services. This cemetery is more than 100 years old. Soldiers of the Revolutionary, Mexican, and civil wars are buried there. The graves of many of the soldiers are unmarked. The Memorial Park Society of the Bronx has done much in recent years to identify the graves of many of the dead.

The exercises were held in the afternoon under the auspices of the Memorial Park Society and of the Bronx Lodge of Elks. A large silk flag was raised, and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired by Battery D, Field Artillery, National Guard. Edward Polak was chairman. The speakers included Chancellor Elmer E. Brown of New York University and James L. Wells. Chancellor Brown ended his address with a peroration on international peace, and Mr. Wells offered a resolution asking the city to take possession of the West Farms Cemetery and maintain it as a public park. The resolution was adopted by acclamation. For the last six years the expenses have been met by private subscription.

HONOR UNKNOWN DEAD.

Ceremonies for Soldiers Who Are Buried in West Farms Cemetery.

At the West Farms Cemetery, in East 180th Street, near Boston Road, hundreds of persons joined yesterday in Memorial Day ceremonies in honor of the soldiers whose bodies were taken from unmarked graves and buried there. The speakers were Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University, Transfer Tax Appraiser John T. Martin, and James L. Wells. Edward Pollack presided.

A delegation of students from Morris High School participated in the ceremonies, which included flag raising exercises. The addresses were made at the grave of Capt. Rasberry, who, as a friendless boy in the Bronx, joined the Sixth New York Heavy Artillery, and later became its Adjutant. He was killed at the Battle of Cedar Creek, Oct. 19, 1864, at the time Sheridan made his famous ride.

In 1907, the West Farms Cemetery was a tangle of weeds and rubbish. At that time the Memorial Park Society was organized to reclaim the cemetery. It is now maintained as a public park through private funds. By a resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Wells, a plan to have the park maintained by the city will be presented to Borough President Miller. Most of the soldiers who lie buried there died at Fort Schuyler, where they were taken after they suffered their wounds. Hundreds of these men were buried in Potter's Field.

SIGSBEE'S BATHTUB ON VIEW

Maine Battleship Relic Shown in Findlay, Ohio, for First Time.

FINDLAY, Ohio, May 30.—Capt. Sigsbee's bath tub, taken from the Battleship Maine, after it had lain in the sunken wreck in Havana Harbor for many years, was shown to the public for the first time to-day in front of the court house, where it was viewed by thousands. On a future anniversary of the Cuban war it will be dedicated and mounted on a pedestal at the approach to the building.

It had been expected that the relic would be dedicated to-day. Its possession had been the subject of much controversy between a number of Ohio cities. Findlay finally succeeding in obtaining the memento.

PLEAS FOR PEACE AND WAR.

Arlington Cemetery the Scene of Diverse Expressions by Orators.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American Wars and members of women's auxiliaries and other patriotic societies joined today in the annual Memorial Day exercises.

The principal exercises were held at the Military Cemetery at Arlington. These began with the decoration of "the tomb of the unknown dead."

The main part of the programme was in the afternoon, when the Rev. James S. Montgomery made an impassioned plea for universal peace to take the place of disastrous wars.

At almost the same time Senator Sherman of Illinois, as the principal speaker at the Soldiers' Home exercises, was declaring that no man alive to-day would see the time when war would be no more.

"All human history is written," he said, "in the blaze of hostile campfires, and its quickening music made on the march and battlefields."

At the grave of Major Gen. William H. Lawton, who lost his life in the Philippines, Senator Nelson of Minnesota said it was the duty of Congress to see that an adequate monument was erected to Lawton's memory.

Secretary and Mrs. Bryan took part in the ceremonies at Arlington. They were participants in the circumambulation of "the tomb of the unknown dead."

ST. PATRICK, GOOD CITIZEN.

Father Kiernan Holds Him Up to Hibernians in Cathedral.

Fifteen hundred members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and their friends attended the Memorial Day mass of the order in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning. The celebrant was the Rev. William Livingston, pastor of St. Gabriel's Church, and Chaplain of the order. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Daniel Kiernan of St. Bernard's Church.

The divisions of the order met in their respective headquarters before the services and marched to the cathedral. The interior was resplendent with green and gold banners, which were carried by special squads wearing sashes and other insignia.

Father Kiernan spoke on "Civic Duty." He urged the Hibernians to work for the uplift of the commonwealth, and said the charity and kindliness of St. Patrick made him a worthy example of the best type of citizen.

PARIS HONORS SOLDIER DEAD

American Colony Decorates the Graves of Blue and Gray Alike.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 30.—Decoration Day was duly celebrated here by the members of the American colony, who visited the graves of the soldiers of the civil war who are buried in local cemeteries.

Unusual interest was taken in the ceremony this time, the Rev. Jean Monod, minister of the American Church in the Rue de Berri, having compiled a complete register of all Americans buried in Paris since 1861. Many graves of old soldiers temporarily lost sight of have thus been identified. In order to keep these graves, many of which were neglected, in order, a subscription has been opened at the Consulate General, and a considerable sum has already been obtained.

The funds thus raised, of course, will be applied impartially to the resting places of Union and Confederate soldiers.

PARIS, May 30.—Myron T. Herrick, the United States Ambassador to France, and the staff of the Embassy, to-day visited the tomb of Lafayette in the Picpus Cemetery, in celebration of Decoration Day. They placed a wreath on the grave. A large number of Americans resident in Paris and representatives of American patriotic societies were present at the ceremony.

PELLAGRA CAUSED BY INFECTED WATER

Two Italian Investigators Discover the Source of the Dread Disease.

FLINTSTONES IN SOLUTION

Addition of Carbonated Chalk Removes the Trouble — Maize Ptomaine Long Suspected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 30.—While the world is thinking of sport, pleasure, and war, two scientists of Italy have been quietly and tirelessly working and have made a great discovery which will benefit not only their own country but many others, particularly the United States.

Italy has suffered in the past from two scourges, malaria and pellagra. All the world knows that malaria has been conquered and may be regarded as a thing of the past, but pellagra has been constantly increasing.

More money, perhaps, has been spent in Italy for the protection and care of its victims than for any other disease, while the doctors searching for its cause have ascribed it to poverty and the consumption of bad maize. Notwithstanding the better economical conditions of the peasants of the north of Italy and the careful examination of all the maize eaten, the disease has increased, until in Italy there are about 50,000 cases annually.

This scaly disease, the name of which is derived from a Latin and a Greek word, (pellis, skin, and agra, catching,) attacks the parts exposed to the sun and air, and eventually leads to insanity. So terrible has been the scourge that private funds have been subscribed outside the Government appropriations for the care of the afflicted.

Profs. Scala and Alessandrini of the Institute of Hygiene in Rome began to seek a remedy, and their long search has been rewarded by the discovery that the disease came from water, drunk in the afflicted districts, which contains flint stones in colloidal solution. Thus the theory of the maize ptomaine falls to the ground and the peasants can eat their favorite food without fear.

The cure for the disease is to avoid the infected water, or clear it of the infection. The latter is easily done by putting into it a quantity of carbonated chalk.

The authorities are about to proceed with a thorough examination of all the waters of the infected districts, and thus one of the most beautiful districts of Italy will be rid of a plague.

SEIZE MORE TRAITORS.

Austrian Officials Alarmed Over Plot Headed by Col. Redl.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, May 30.—It is officially stated that three persons connected with the case of Col. Redl, who sold military secrets to Russia and was forced by brother officers to shoot himself, were arrested in Vienna today and three more will be arrested to-morrow. Investigations, made at Prague, where Col. Redl was stationed, tend to incriminate a Russian official there as well as several other persons, including a woman.

Lieut. Jandrie of the Austrian Army, who was arrested in Vienna last month, together with his brother on the charge of selling military secrets, has confessed his guilt and been sentenced to life imprisonment in a fortress. It may be recalled that an attaché of the Russian Embassy left Vienna hurriedly after Jandrie's arrest.

The dismay felt in all circles in Vienna over these revelations is increased by the knowledge that Col. Redl and Lieut. Jandrie both were employed on frontier work.

2,000 IN EPIC DRAMA.

Napoleon Chief Figure in Hauptmann's Prussian Centenary Play.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 30.—Two thousand persons will take part in Gerhart Hauptmann's Prussian centenary epic drama, which will be produced for the first time at Breslau on Sunday.

The drama, which was written for the poet author's native province, Silesia, in commemoration of Prussia's liberation from the French yoke, has Napoleon as the principal figure. He first appears as a 12-year-old boy in the midst of the revolutionary mob, later as the Emperor, surrounded by the Marshals of France, and finally as Jupiter, who causes the lightning to flash through the European night.

The lighting effects in the drama, which is staged by Max Reinhardt and will run throughout the Summer, are said to be the most novel ever attempted.

The German Admiralty has lent the management twenty-four naval searchlights for the illumination of the arena.

BARBER AT ROYAL WEDDING.

Used to Shave Prince Ernest, Who Sent Him Invitations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 30.—One of the guests at the wedding of the Kaiser's daughter, according to the Mittag-Zeitung, was a Munich barber, who arrived in Berlin and displayed, to the surprise of his humble relatives, invitations to all the functions, including the gala dinner, the torch dance, &c.

It appears that the barber used to shave Prince Ernest regularly when the latter was stationed with his regiment in Munich, and when the Prince was transferred to Rathenow the barber observed that it would be a long time before he saw the Prince again.

"Not quite so long as you suppose," replied the Prince. A few days later the barber received his invitations to the Prince's wedding.

NO CASE AGAINST KLEGIN.

Court Dismisses Charge That He Obtained Money Irregularly.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 30.—A charge of obtaining $100 by false pretenses from a branch of Lloyds Bank was heard at Fishguard to-day. It was made against Richard C. Klegin of New York. Mrs. P. G. Hoare, formerly Lady Gordon Howard, of Great Cursen Street, Mayfair, was charged with aiding and abetting Klegin.

It was explained that Klegin cashed a certificate on a French bank and that Mrs. Hoare gave as security a check on the St. James Street branch (in London) of Lloyds Bank, which was dishonored because it was signed "Gordon Howard," though she had an account in the name of Hoare.

The prosecution offered no evidence, and the case was dismissed.

Solicitor Williams explained that Mr. Klegin had tendered spurious French notes, which the bank refused. The other defendant covered the amount by a check on the St. James Street branch of Lloyds Bank, but the check was returned marked "no account." The defendants were in a hurry to board the tender at Fishguard and omitted to instruct the St. James Street branch to honor the check in another name. Meanwhile the check had been honored, and in the circumstances, Mr. Williams said that no further evidence would be offered. The Magistrate characterized the offense as serious, but said that in the circumstances the defendants would be discharged. Applause greeted the Chairman's remarks. To avoid photographers the defendants quitted the court by a back door to enter a motor car, and left later by the night mail for London.

Richard Klegin, who is an organizer of sports, began negotiations with the Italian Government early in March for a revival of ancient Roman sports, either in the Coliseum or the Baths of Caracalla. He was notified that his proposition was receiving favorable consideration.

He said that several American millionaires were back of the project and that they were ready to meet the preliminary cost of the games, estimated to be $100,000. He plans to erect a modern grand stand if he obtains the Baths of Caracalla, and to invite fencers, wrestlers, fighters, and other athletes from all nations, so as "to outdo the Olympics as an international competition." He also hopes to interest the King of Italy to the extent of opening the games.

Before beginning his negotiations with the Italian Government he spent some time in England introducing motor polo and baseball.

MEMOIRS ANNOY ROYALTY.

Chauffeur's Recollections of King Edward Resented by British Court.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 30.—The recently published volume of recollections of King Edward, entitled "What I Know," by Mr. Stamper, the late monarch's motor engineer, has caused great umbrage in royal circles. There is nothing ill-natured or offensive in the volume, but Stamper has not always showed the high standard of diplomatic reticence which is considered necessary to enhance that "divinity which doth hedge a King."

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that the volume was published not only in opposition to King George's wishes, but out of a sense of personal injury on the part of the author. Stamper was in the service of King Edward for five years, and on the death of the late King, for various reasons was not re-engaged by King George. He asked for a pension, but this was refused on the ground that he was only five years in the royal service. But a sum of $500 was offered to him, equal to two years' salary. This he declined to accept.

A year later he wrote to King George asking permission to publish his recollections of the late King. His request was refused. A rule in the royal service is that no servant must publish anything about any member of the royal family. This rule in practice can only be enforced by the fear of a servant losing a good position or pension if he breaks it.

Stamper, being without a pension, had no such fear. The book's profits, so far as Stamper is concerned, it is understood, have not been much greater than the $500 King George offered him, for he did not possess material to make a really lively volume.

In a different case is Chandler Edwards, a valet, who was in the late monarch's service for thirty-five years. What Chandler does not know about King Edward is not worth knowing, and as much as $25,000 has been offered him recently to write the life of his master. Chandler, who receives a pension of $4,000 a year, declined the inducement.

GERMAN GOLD HOARD GROWS

Bank Authorities Say It Is "In an Entirely Gratifying Position."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 30.—At the regular monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Imperial Bank today it was said that the gold reserve of the bank was in an "entirely gratifying position." There has been a regular increase since the last statement published on May 23, when the reserve exceeded $250,000,000. To-night's newspapers state that Germany has bought $4,000,000 worth of gold bars in London in the course of the last week.

The Berlin private banks have undoubtedly received an official suggestion to confine gold payments over the counter to strict necessities, but financiers say that nothing extraordinary can be read into this measure, which is merely part and parcel of the general scheme to build up the gold reserve of the Government bank as rapidly and as substantially as possible. The gold imports are said to have taken place merely because the prevailing rates of exchange have recently made such transactions natural and profitable.

ATTEMPT TO BURN THE ROYAL ACADEMY

MRS. PANKHURST RELEASED

Very Weak from Fasting, but Making Progress Under Medical Attention.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 30.—Mrs. Pankhurst was again released from Holloway Prison this evening. Since her recommital on Monday she had not touched food. She was very weak and was conveyed into a motor ambulance to the house of a friend in West London.

Mrs. Pankhurst has spent nearly thirteen days of her sentence in prison and more than six weeks out of prison. Her friends describe her condition as "very bad, indeed." To-night she is reported as making progress under medical attention "as well as can be expected" No visitors are allowed to see her.

What is supposed to have been an attempt to set fire to the Royal Academy was discovered to-night just after the exhibition closed at 7 o'clock. An official found in a small room on the ground floor a cardboard box filled with cotton, wool, and two rags saturated with methylated spirits. Wax tapers, some of which were lighted, were tightly bound about the box, which was placed in a position of danger to the surrounding walls. Scotland Yard is investigating the matter.

LONDON, May 30.—The suffragettes resumed their campaign of destruction to-night in the Lewisham Branch Post Office, which they had attacked several times previously. They set fire to the letters in the building, and the flames were extinguished only after a number of them had been destroyed.

Bottles containing corrosive mixtures and addressed to Reginald McKenna, Home Secretary, were found to-day in a mailbox. Railway telegraph and telephone wires were cut to-day in various places in Wales. Suffragette literature was found scattered near the scenes of these depredations. Automobile drivers and cyclists in the Doncaster district made complaint to-day that tacks which punctured their tires were scattered over the highways.

The Royal Academy of Arts, just off Piccadilly, is the place of exhibition every year from May to August, of the works of the foremost British painters and sculptors. Besides the works of art shown in the annual exhibition, the building contains ancient masterpieces, including Michael Angelo's relief of "Mary with Jesus and St. John," and a celebrated cartoon by Leonardo da Vinci.

CALLS CHARGES STUPID.

Justice in Isaacs Case Says His Critic Was Ignorant.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 30.—A significant remark was made by Mr. Justice Phillimore to-day in the course of the hearing of the case of Isaacs versus Chesterton.

Godfrey Isaacs was undergoing cross-examination by Cecil Chesterton's counsel as to his business career and the allegations made by Mr. Chesterton in The New Witness articles, when the court interjected the observation: "It seems to me that a great deal of this was pure bungling, wrongheadedness, and ignorance of business on the part of the person who wrote them—not venomous intention, but simply and in plain language, stupidity."

In another court counsel for the Marconi Company obtained a rule nisi for alleged contempt of court against two London newspapers which specially displayed the report of the action taken by Locker Lampson and Peter Pright against the Directors of the company on the day the Chesterton trial began. The plea was advanced that publication under certain specified headlines was calculated to affect the proceedings of the Chesterton suit.

THE REAL REASON

If there is one reason why we continue to flourish, it is to be found in the quality rather than in the amount of work we do.

The tremendous volume of construction handled by us is important only in the respect that it implies a tremendous confidence in our ability to build economically and well.

No fortuitous chain of circumstances ever could have given so many enterprises into our control, unless the quality of our work was established beyond question.

DOUBLE HOSE AT COURT.

Poincare's Staff Faces Mysteries of English Official Regulations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 30.—The visit of President Poincaré to England next month puts before the members of his official staff the mysteries of English Court dress regulations, and the subject is being discussed in the French press. One functionary who will travel with the President says:

"I was told I must provide myself with kneebreeches to wear at Court, and in addition black silk stockings. So far I understood the regulations perfectly, but then I was told that I must also provide myself with pink silk stockings to wear underneath the black ones. I tried everywhere, but was unable to obtain them. Then I was advised at last to go to a theatrical costumers for them. What I cannot understand is why silk stockings are wanted at all."

The object of the Court regulations that two pairs of silk stockings must be worn with knee breeches is to prevent the flesh being seen through the thin black material.

Our National Fire Waste

EVERY minute five hundred dollars in property goes up in fire and smoke.

The annual loss of two hundred and twenty-five millions would pay for the Panama Canal in twenty months, or maintain our Army and Navy for a year. Much of this appalling waste is due to carelessness. It is the cause of high insurance rates. Every property owner should be interested in preventing fire waste, and in reducing rates.

Every improvement in a risk helps to bring about this end.

You as an owner can do your share. We can help you. We are specialists in designing and installing fire protection equipment that reduce your fire hazard.

We plan the improvements and submit estimates of their cost. Frequently they are the means of saving from 10 to 75 per cent. in premiums in large mercantile and manufacturing risks.

We act as expert advisers of the insured, not as agents for any company.

Will you give us an opportunity to talk about fire insurance matters with you?

KING GEORGE GIVES AUDIENCE TO PAGE

New Ambassador Is Formally Presented by Sir Edward Grey.

RECEPTION MOST CORDIAL

"One of the Most Pleasing Experiences of My Life," Says Mr. Page, After the Presentation.

LONDON, May 30.—Walter Hines Page, the newly appointed United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James's was received to-day in audience by King George, to whom he presented his letters of credence.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, presented the new Ambassador to his Majesty, who in turn introduced him to Queen Mary. The King's reception of Mr. Page was a most cordial one.

Then Ambasador Page went through the formality of presenting to their Majesties the members of the Embassy staff, most of whom had attended many Courts and levees in company with the late Whitelaw Reid.

With the members of his staff Ambassador Page, who, like his secretaries, wore ordinary evening dress, was driven, together with the naval and military attachés in uniform, from the hotel where the Ambassador is staying for the present, to Buckingham Palace in royal carriages, with the coachmen and footmen in the scarlet livery of the British Court.

The string of royal carriages passing through Mayfair to Buckingham Palace attracted considerable attention.

Sir Arthur H. J. Walsh, the King's Master of Ceremonies, accompanied the Ambassador from and to his hotel.

Speaking of the audience afterward Ambassador Page said:

"It was one of the most pleasing experiences of my life. His Majesty the King and Her Majesy the Queen spoke frankly, cordially and kindly on a number of subjects. They asked after President Wilson and his family and also after my own family."

King George expressed great pleasure at meeting another American Ambassador.

Harold Fowler, the secretary of Ambassador Page, like his chief, made his first appearance as a diplomat at today's audience.

After the royal audience, Ambassador Page called on Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador and Dean of the diplomatic corps in Great Britain. Within the next few days he will pay his respects to the other Ambassadors.

Mr. Page finished his first official day as a guest at a dinner given in his honor by the Duke and Duchess of Somerset. Among the other guests were the Earl of Portsmouth, Cora Countess of Strafford; Lady Beatrice Meade, the Earl of Stanhope and the Countess of Bessborough.

After dinner other persons came in for the reception.

TO PATCH THE HAVERFORD.

Has 21 Feet in Her Forehold—Passengers Coming on the Baltic.

QUEENSTOWN, May 30.—Several powerful tugs towed the American Line steamship Haverford into harbor this morning after they had released her from the position in Rocky Bay, immediately to the west of Cork Head, at high tide at 1 o'clock.

When she was brought into port today she was down by the bows with 21 feet of water in her forehold, and a considerable quantity in No. 2 hold.

She is to be patched up as soon as workmen and material can reach her, and will then be taken to Liverpool for thorough repair.

Rocky Bay, where the Haverford struck, is in a very exposed position, and had the weather been at all rough the steamer must have become a total wreck.

The rescued passengers, nearly 1,000 in number, gathered to-day at various points of vantage along the shore in order to get a close view of the damaged steamer from which they had been saved. Among them was much fervently expressed appreciation of the value of wireless telegraphy which had so quickly brought assistance to them in their distress.

All the baggage belonging to the cabin passengers has been landed, and they are to proceed to New York on board the Baltic.

SPANISH CABINET RESIGNS.

Ex-Premier's Criticism of Moroccan Policy the Cause.

MADRID, May 30.—The Spanish Premier, Count Alvaro de Romanones, and the other members of the Cabinet resigned office to-day. Count Romanones had been Premier since Nov. 14, 1912, when he took office after the assassination of former Premier José Canalejas.

The resignation of the Spanish Cabinet was brought about by an attack made yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies by Antonio Maura, a former Conservative Premier. He asserted that the Spanish military policy in Morocco had been a failure. Senor Maura's speech was widely commented upon, and numerous newspapers this morning demanded the retirement of the Cabinet.

Count Romanones and his colleagues thereupon handed in their resignations, which were accepted provisionally by King Alfonso, who immediately called into conference the leaders of all the parties with a view to asking one of them to form a new Cabinet.

SCOTCH HOME RULE BILL IN COMMONS

Measure for Establishing a Separate Parliament Passes Second Reading.

POWERS LIKE IRELAND'S

Except in Postal, Customs and Excise Affairs, with Additional Rights in Labor Matters.

LONDON, May 30.—The Scottish Home Rule bill passed its second reading in the House of Commons to-day, and was then referred to committee. It follows somewhat the lines of the Irish Home Rule bill, and was introduced by William Henry Cowan, the member from East Aberdeenshire.

As described by Mr. Cowan, the bill represents a further instalment of the policy of devolution initiated by the Government of Ireland bill. It provides (herein differing from the Irish bill,) for the establishment in Scotland of a single chamber Parliament, subordinate to the Imperial Parliament, and consisting of 140 members representing the existing constituencies, and returned by Parliamentary electors, with the addition of Peers.

The representation of Scotland in the House of Commons will continue as at present, until separate provision has been made for devolution in England and Wales, when the representation of the component parts of Great Britain in the Parliament of the United Kingdom is to be reconsidered and readjusted.

The powers given by the bill to the Scottish Parliament include all those conferred upon the Irish Parliament, except the control of the Post Office and the power to vary customs and excise duties, but with the addition of the administration of old age pensions, National insurance and labor exchanges.

The executive power, it is proposed, shall continue vested in the King, who is to be represented in Scotland by a Lord High Commissioner, advised by an Executive Committee of a Scottish Privy Council.

The power of varying imperial taxes, except customs and excise, is by the bill to be conferred upon the Scottish Parliament, which is in addition to have the exclusive power of levying the existing imperial taxes on heritable property in Scotland. Provision is made for the payment by the Imperial Exchequer to the Scottish Exchequer out of the proceeds of Scottish taxes of a sum toward defraying the cost of Scottish services.

A Joint Exchequer Board is to be established to determine all questions arising under the financial provisions.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is in the bill substituted for the House of Lords as the final court of appeal, and all constitutional questions are to be determined by that tribunal.

It is thought not likely that the bill will go very far this session, but the Scottish Liberals are determined to show, if they can, that the movement is a live one.

Standard Oil Boat Hits a Reef.

COLOMBO, Ceylon, May 30.—The British tank steamer Saranac, chartered by the Standard Oil Company, is reported to have struck a reef off Dondra Head, at the southernmost extremity of Ceylon, while on the voyage from New York to Calcutta by way of Port Said. She was able to proceed.

HANSEN TO LEAVE ENGLAND.

Unable to Get Bondsmen, He Accepts Proposals Made Before Trial.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 30.—J. Salter Hansen, being unable to find sureties, has finally decided to accept the proposals which were made to him before the trial on Friday in connection with the squabble over the rights to "Croesus." These proposals were that he should not annoy Mr. Bourchier hereafter directly or indirectly, or send any communications to the newspapers.

Hansen will be brought up in Bow Street Court to-morrow and formally enter his own recognizances for $5,000, after which he undertakes to leave the country.

On behalf of Mr. Bourchier his lawyer asked the court to see that Hansen was accompanied out of the country by somebody upon whom the court could rely, and see that his undertaking was carried out. The magistrate said that Scotland Yard would probably detail a plain clothes detective for the purpose.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 30.—The mystery of the Berkeley Hotel burglary, when two night porters were assaulted and jewelry and money of a value of $25,000 were stolen, remains unsolved. A reward of $2,000 has been offered for information leading to the arrest of the thieves.

The only American suffering loss, as far as ascertainable, is Miss C. Andrews, daughter of a New York railway magnate.

It is believed that the burglary was carefully planned inside the hotel, and that the thieves must have stayed there as guests.

Policeman Kills It While Its Teeth Are Buried in His Leg.

Patrolman J. C. Caspers of the East 104th Street Station was severely bitten on the leg by a rabid dog yesterday afternoon while he was attempting to protect a crowd of children in Thomas Jefferson Park from the dog's attacks. Caspers shot the dog three times before he succeeded in killing it, the last shot being fired into the animal's head while it had its teeth buried in the policeman's leg. None of the children was bitten.

Five hundred children were marching through the park in a Memorial Day parade when the dog started at them. They screamed and scattered. A woman ran to Caspers, who was on post at Pleasant Avenue and 114th Street, and told him of the dog. The policeman ran into the park and attempted to knock the dog down with his billy, and, failing in that, drew his revolver and shot. The bullet entered the dog's body, but he still kept his feet, and, wilder than ever, made a rush at Caspers. The policeman fired and hit the dog again, but the animal still fought on. Burying his teeth in Casper's leg, he drew Caspers to the ground. It was then Caspers fired the shot that told.

Caspers fainted from exhaustion and loss of blood. Dr. O. E. Abamonte, a druggist at 208 Pleasant Avenue, cauterized his wound.

Caspers said that he would go to the Pasteur Institute this morning for treatment.

There is no doubt, the police say, that the dog was mad. When Caspers saw him he was foaming at the mouth and pursuing the children.

JAPAN FOR PEACEFUL TRADE

Member of Tokio Parliament Scoffs at Jingoes at Home.

TACOMA, May 30.—Japan does not want war with the United States, according to Y. Yamaguichi, a member of the Japanese Parliament, and a friend of Baron Chinda, Ambassador to the United States to-day. He is on his way to San Francisco to investigate the California alien land law and the condition of the Japanese on this coast.

"One-half of all the Japanese trade is with the United States," said Mr. Yamaguichi. "On this account the Japanese merchants and the majority of the people generally do not care to make trouble with their best customer and friend.

"Of course there are some jingoes in Japan—the same, I suppose, as there are in this country. The Japanese nation as a whole, however, is not influenced by them."

To Develop Crowless Roosters.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Roosters that will be soundless, and thus solve the problem of light sleeping city dwellers, are now the subject of experiments by experts of the Department of Agriculture. A correspondent, who discovered the process of eliminating the cock's crow, started the experiments. A simple and painless operation of cutting one of the rooster's vocal chords does the trick, he says. The rooster can fill his lungs and go through all the evolutions that accompany a hearty crow, but can make no sound.

Earthquake Far from New York.

An earthquake shock, the scene of which was apparently at a great distance from New York, south-southwest, was recorded by the seismograph at the American Museum of Natural History yesterday. The first tremors were noticed at 7:39:30, and the main waves lasted from 7:50 to 8:16.

GEN. ROSALIE JONES FLIES FOR SUFFRAGE

Woman Who Led Marchers Now Qualifies as Pioneer Air Pilgrim.

OPENS AEROPLANE CARNIVAL

Holds On with One Hand While She Distributes Votes-for-Women Leaflets with the Other.

Gen. Rosalie Jones, leader of the Albany and Washington suffrage hikers, rode the air yesterday in a Wright biplane for the cause of votes-for-women and later in the day saw a group of men dig up from the mud Arthur Latham, then supposedly dead, who had made a bad jump with a parachute from the same aeroplane in which she had made her trip.

The opening event of the Flying Carnival of the Aeronautical Society at Oakwood Heights, Staten Island, yesterday, was the flying of Rosalie Jones from Grant City across country to Oakland. It was the first time a suffragist had literally gone up in the air for the cause, or opened a flying meet. The members of the Pilgrim Army were out in good numbers with other suffragists to receive Gen. Jones in the grounds, and an open suffrage meeting was held in front of the grand stand.

Gen. Rosalie did not show a sign of fear as she took her seat in the biplane, seized a steel rod, the only thing to hold to, with her left hand, had her skirts tied down with a little piece of blue string, and, with a bunch of yellow Votes-for-Women leaflets in her right hand, nodded a smiling good-bye to the crowd below.

"Are you feeling any thrills?" someone asked just before she started.

"Would I acknowledge it if I did?" she parried.

The only sign that she had any feeling of apprehension was shown in her being a little paler than usual. She explained that after the trip was over.

Friends Got on Her Nerves.

"You see," she said, "I had been overwhelmed with letters and telegrams and telephone messages begging me not to take this trip, and none of my friends would say good-bye to me, thinking it was a bad omen. Those things do get on your nerves a little."

Gen. Jones made a short flight with Grahame White two years ago in England, when away from opposing friends, but she said yesterday that it was a much easier trip than this one made for suffrage.

"I felt very secure then," she said. "I sat back of Mr. White and in a position where I could not look directly down, and I had two bars to hold. Today I sat over an open space looking directly down and holding only one, and, being told to touch nothing on the right side, my position was much less firm. A gust of wind would come on one side and I would find myself adjusting my position to that and then to another coming on the other side. The wind was strong and my hat, which was small and fastened very securely, would nevertheless be lifted."

The flight, which consumed about fifteen minutes, was a perfect success. Harry Bingham Brown made the trip over from the grounds in his brownish-yellow aeroplane, a good suffrage color. Gen. Jones was waiting for him in the auto of Mrs. William G. Willcox, Borough Chairman of Richmond for the Woman Suffrage Party, who was there with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Reeve and Miss Margaret Reeve, who tied Votes-for-Women banners to the aeroplane.

"Come down again," cried the men, whose hats were decorated with the words Votes for Women, taken from yellow suffrage leaflets given them as the aeroplane was making its preliminary run.

Makes a Perfect Flight.

"If I come down again you must vote for me," replied the General, and the aeroplane rose. It was a pretty flight and the occupants of the automobile followed it, Price, the Willcox chauffeur, who is a good suffragist, being for once allowed to pass everything on the road. The automobile reached the aeronautic fields just as the aeroplane, dipping gently, flew over the fence, making a pretty entrance, with a cloud of yellow leaflets that Gen. Jones let fall fluttering in the air behind.

"You may have thought that suffrage had gone up in the air and that you would never hear of it again," said the General a few minutes later, speaking from an automobile in front of the grandstand, "but if you thought that, you are mistaken. Wherever you go this year you will hear the 1913 suffragist."

Corporal Klatschken of the Pilgrim Army made a two-minute speech, and Col. Ida Kraft announced that, being a law-abiding citizen, she would not speak, as the time allowed for the meeting had expired. Little "Doc" Dock of the Pilgrim Army was around selling suffrage magazines, Mrs. Olive Schultz, who drove the scout car on the Pilgrims' hiking trip, was there, Mrs. Sohpia Kremer was selling yellow flowers, and Miss Flora Gapin and Mrs. Julia Rhinehardt, the actress, who has been working for suffrage for forty years, were also on the ground. Open-air meetings were held outside the field.

A feature of the meeting after the flight was the setting free of a hundred little colored balloons. To one of these, sent off by Gen. Jones, she pinned a pass to admit the finder to the grounds free of charge during the entire carnival. She signed it in full: "Gen. Rosalie Gardiner Jones, Suffragette." The officers of the carnival will have the pass recognized. The boy scouts hunted up the finder later, Miss Katharine Decker.

Members of Gen. Jones's friendly, but anti-suffrage, family, her mother, Mrs. Oliver Livingston Jones, and Miss Louise E. Jones were to have been at the grounds to witness the flight, but were prevented by a misbehaving automobile tire.

PREPARE FOR MISSION WORK

Eighty Young Men and Women Going to Foreign Fields.

Representatives of the Boards of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, beginning today, will hold conferences in this city with eighty young men and women missionaries, including four physicians, who are about to depart for distant fields of labor. Among the missionaries is one representative of Union Theological Seminary, while Princeton, Auburn, McCormick, Western, New Brunswick and other seminaries are represented. It is the largest delegation of missionaries which the boards ever sent out at one time.

Laymen will take part in the instruction of these new missionaries in an unusual degree. The lay instructors include James M. Speers, a merchant; Dwight H. Day, a mission board Treasurer; Dr. T. H. P. Sailer, an educator; Nolan R. Best, an editor; Alfred E. Marling and Thomas F. Cummings. Drs. Hayes and Galbraith give instruction on medical work. The missionaries come from every part of this country, and are going to South America, Asia, Mexico, the Philippines, and Central America. Among the Reformed missionaries are two who will work among Mohammedans in Arabia. A very large number go to China.

The Presbyterian Board, with headquarters here, will send out 100 new missionaries within the next three years.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS CRUISE.

See Battleship Fleet and Have Picnic Aboard Hudson Barge.

More than 1,200 anti-suffragists and their friends sailed up the Hudson yesterday on the barge Starina for an all-day picnic on the water. Suffragists were permitted to go as individuals, but they were barred from making speeches. Large posters placed conspicuously about the decks announced:

"Anti-Suffrage Picnic. No suffrage debates or speeches will be allowed."

As a further warning, there followed two sections from the Penal Code relating to disturbances at lawful meetings. The committee of women responsible for the picnic explained that the outing was devoted strictly to amusement, and that whereas they had welcomed the suffragists at their meetings and debated with them, the regulations would be enforced strictly. There were many men aboard to help carry out the rules.

The barge left Pier 23, North River, at 9:30, with the anti-suffrage colors, black, white and red, flying from the forward deck, and the band playing. The "Antis" obtained a good view of the battleship fleet as the barge moved slowly up the river. The barge made no landing, turning back above Tarrytown and reaching the pier early last evening. Luncheon and dancing added to the trip.

The committee consisted of Mrs. K. B. Lapham, Mrs. Everett P. Wheeler, Mrs. Nelson H. Henry, Mrs. William Allen Bartlett, Miss Toma Lewis, Miss Charlotte F. Rowe, Miss Anna A. Sands, Mrs. Elihu Vedder, Mrs. George Phillips, Mrs. John Church, Mrs. Otto Kiliani, Mrs. Knight Neftel, Mrs. William A. Putnam, Mrs. C. C. Overton, Miss Ella Lane, Miss Madeline Stevens, Miss Anna Rogers Sloan and Miss Elizabeth Gallaudet.

At first I thought that it was either to relieve or arrest me, and promptly replied to him that my conscience was clear, vold of offense towards any man; I was prepared for his bad news. He then handed me a communication to read; which I found was an order relieving Hooker from his command and assigning me to it."

"Better than 'Queed'" is the verdict of the critics.

V. V.'s Eyes

By Henry Sydnor Harrison

EARLY OPINIONS

"Awaited with an interest that is significant of the expectations built upon Mr. Harrison's first book, his second proves not only worthy of its predecessor's promise, but a long step beyond it in craftsmanship and in breadth of outlook upon life. . . . 'V. V.'s Eyes' is far better than 'Queed.' Its plot is far more firmly interwoven with life and destiny; its characters move at the same time far more freely in this scheme of things which he has borrowed from existence."—New York Tribune.

"The author of 'Queed' has done it again in 'V. V.'s Eyes,' and done it even better. He has written an American novel that can stand up with the topnotchers. It is a good story both in the popular and in the literary sense, but, best of all, it has that rare third dimension, greatness of spirit, which connects the little drama of individual characters with the great drama of contemporary life."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Henry Sydnor Harrison, author of 'Queed,' has performed the miracle. He has come back, and with a novel that is even more entrancing and compelling than that first essay of his—the story of the odd little doctor with the big spectacles and the atrophied affections. . . . Never has the story of the joy of life through freedom and service been told more convincingly than in 'V. V.'s Eyes'; and the novel reader, being a human being after all, wants the truth portrayed so that by the truth he may be delighted and set free. Both desires Mr. Harrison has fulfilled."—Richmond News Leader.

"In 'V. V.'s Eyes' Mr. Harrison tells a story no less distinctively original than 'Queed.' . . . With the gift for the creating of exceptional personalities in fiction, Mr. Harrison sets himself down to his task of novel-writing with half the battle won. In 'V. V.'s Eyes' as in 'Queed,' to return again to a comparison impossible to avoid, may be found a group of people striking in their lifelikeness, and striking in their closeness to human nature's own self."—Boston Transcript.

An absorbing sociological love story of deep vital interest to every one

Stories dealing with the problems of the poor are often unpleasant reading, but this is one of exquisite charm and sentiment. It tells of the rise of "Mikky," a little newsboy, and of his love for Starr, the daughter of a rich banker. How they eventually struggle through class prejudice to happiness is developed through a series of absorbing incidents. The social differences which separate them are brilliantly contrasted. It is a story that both young and old will read with much pleasure and profit.

This powerful romance of business and social life is a succession of dramatic and thought-stirring scenes. John Thane early realizes that the shallowness of his wife and the duplicity of a friend have wrecked his home. His struggle to reconstruct his family life is one of enthralling interest. How he is eventually saved from his own self-destroying desire to ruin those who have stood in the way of his ambitions, and how he is gradually awakened to the true values in life through the devotion of Mary Kelly, a lovely young girl, child of the streets, makes a story of deep emotional interest.

Lady Essendine's love affair with an attractive young American, before she has obtained the degree absolute after her divorce made necessary by the dissipations of her husband, involves her in a curious tangle. The theme of the story is her extrication, which is cleverly told by the popular author of "Earth" and "Half in Earnest." The book is alive with incident, and the characters are drawn with rare artistic skill.

56,000 SEE GIANTS WIN TWO GAMES---YANKEES DROP TWO---SUPERBAS SPLIT EVEN AT BOSTON

GREAT BASEBALL PUTS GIANTS THIRD

Phillies, League Leaders, Defeated in Both Games—Polo Grounds Crowded.

The Giants won both games with the Phillies at the Polo Grounds yesterday before a combined assemblage, which is said to be a new record for one day's attendance at any ball park. In the morning a crowd of 18,000 turned out to see the Giants triumph over the league leaders 8 to 6, and in the afternoon, when the Giants repeated by the score of 5 to 1, the attendance was limited only by the size of the stands. While the exact figures are not announced the crowd filled every available bit of seating space, and must have equaled the record gathering of 38,281 persons in the first game of the world's series between the Giants and Athletics in 1911.

It was necessary to close the gates at the main entrance to the Polo Grounds on Eighth Avenue just about the time Umpire Hank O'Day called play. At that time at least 3,000 people were congregated near the entrance and along Eighth Avenue as far south as the elevated station at 155th Street. At the Speedway entrance the shutdown came earlier, and only a few ticket holders were admitted after the game began at 3 o'clock. Hundreds had turned back earlier rather than take a chance in the big "jam" at the Eighth Avenue entrance, but other hundreds remained near the entrance long after the gates were closed, hoping against hope that they might finally be fortunate enough to crowd their way inside. A rush by patrons brought about the closing of the bleacher entrance early, with the result that there were plenty of seats in this section of the stand when the game began. They were quickly filled, however, when the gates were reopened after the early rush. Before the third inning was completed every entrance to the big field was completely barred, and thousands were disappointed.

Reserves from the 152d Street Station took good care of the crowd on the outside, and despite the numbers there was no disorder. Inside everything went along smoothly, due to the refusal of the club management to oversell the seating capacity. No such gathering ever before has stormed the historic home of the Giants, and if it had been possible to admit all who tried to get in, the attendance records of other years would have been shattered by many thousands. The Giants' two victories placed them in third place in the league race.

High-class pitching by Jeff Tesreau and brilliant support by his mates, not overlooking some hard and timely stickwork by Ozark Jeff, gave the Giants a comparatively easy victory in the afternoon. Jeff distributed his eight-hit allowance over a space of six innings, and the game was never in danger after Tesreau pushed out a mighty double to left centre in the fifth inning with two Giants on the paths. Sherwood Magee with a double in the ninth inning, was the only member of the Dooin delegation who reached second base after the third inning, when Miller scored the Phillies' only run on his pass and steal and a single by Knabe.

A continuous assault on Chalmers in the fifth inning, which finally drove him to the clubhouse, decided the game for the Giants. Tesreau's triple and a single by Shafer brought home a New York run in the third inning, and this kept the two teams on even terms until the busy fifth. Murray opened this inning with a single to Lobert, and reached third on Meyers's single to right. Snodgrass's double to right sent Murray home and the Chief to third. Tesreau hit solidly to left centre for two bases, scoring Meyers and Snodgrass, Jeff moved along to third, when Burns beat out a hit, and Chalmers moved along to the club house about the same time. After Mayer had assumed the pitching burden for the Phillies Fletcher hit a long fly to Cravath and Tesreau raced home with the last run of the game. The Giants did nothing with Mayer during the remainder of the game.

Two great throws by Murray, cutting down ambitious Phillies at second and third bases, a long running catch by Burns, and the work of Doyle at second base, where eleven chances were handled without an error, were the fielding gems of the second game. Doyle, Tesreau, and Magee starred at the bat. Murray had featured in the morning game with another brace of fancy pegs which put out runners at first base and the plate, thereby making a record of getting a base runner at each base and one at the plate during the day.

The morning game was a free-hitting affair in which each team drove any opposing pitcher from the box. Merkle's two-bagger in the eighth inning with two Giants on the bases and two out put the finishing touch on the New York victory, as the Phillies had come from behind in the same inning and had overcome a three-run lead.

The Giants drove Brennan from the box in the opening inning before the second out had been made. Miller's single, Knabe's double, a sacrifice, and Cravath's single gave the Phillies two runs in the first inning against Arthur Fromme, who was making his début in a New York uniform. The Giants quickly went ahead on singles by Burns, Doyle, and Merkle, with a double by Shafer and a fielder's choice sandwiched between the first and second singles. With two runs in and two Giants on the bases Brennan gave way to Earl Moore, and the Giants scored another run in this inning on a fielder's choice.

Fromme went along well until the sixth inning, when Cravath, Luderus, and Doolan hit successively after Lobert and Magee had fanned, one run resulting. In the eighth, four hits, one a home run drive into the right field stand by Cravath, put an end to Fromme's activity, and Marquard was called to the rescue with two on bases and the Phillies one run behind. Red Dooin promptly tied up the game with a single to right, but he ended the rally by being caught between the bases.

Moore held the Giants to three singles up to the eighth inning, but he was continually in trouble because of his wildness. He walked nine Giants and hit another, all three runs scored against him being started on passes. With the score tied in the eighth Shafer singled, Doyle walked, and Merkle doubled, scoring the runs which gave the Giants the victory, 8 to 6. The scores:

Reds Victors in Thirteenth.

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—After St. Louis tied the score in the ninth inning of this morning's game with Cincinnati neither side was able to count agan until the thirteenth, when the visitors tallied two runs and won, 5 to 3. Cincinnati's winning runs were the result of timely hits. Bates walked and moved to third when Bescher singled cleanly to centre. Tinker's hot single over third scored Bates and Bescher counted on Marsan's single. Score:

Reds' Rally Falls to Beat St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—A ninth inning batting rally failed to win for Cincinnati at the afternoon game. The score was 6 to 4 in favor of St. Louis. Steele, pitching for the locals, held Cincinnati to six hits until the ninth, when two singles and a double scored one. When Kling went in to bat for Harter, Steele was replaced by Burk. He walked Kling. Devore filed out and Bates struck out. Score:

DODGERS GET EVEN BREAK IN BOSTON

Brooklyn Takes Morning Tilt, While Braves Win Afternoon Engagement.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 30.—The Superbas and the Braves split even to-day, the Brooklyn team being lucky to win the morning game 2 to 1, while in the afternoon the Braves by doing a little hitting against Cliff Curtis, and taking advantage of Fisher's errors, were able to get a bunch of five runs in the fifth inning, which made it easy for the home team to meet the odd runs scored by Brooklyn, and to canter home a winner 7 to 6.

Ragon pitched a beautiful game in the morning, as did Tyler of the home team, but in the afternoon both Rudolph of Boston and Curtis of the Dodgers were hit hard. In the afternoon game Brooklyn made a great uphill fight after Boston had secured a 6-to-3 lead, but in the eighth inning Stengel, who was away off his fielding game to-day, dropped a fly, and a hit and a wild pitch put over the one run that the Braves needed to win.

The morning game was a sort of horseshoe affair, with the Dodgers fortunate to find two nails to Boston's one. Pat Ragon was dead on the mark, allowing only one hit in seven innings, but this, combining with Stengel's bad muff of Whaling's fly in the second, gave the Braves a run which looked big to the goose-egged Dodgers down to the ninth inning. In its last session, however, Brooklyn, got a start when Devlin lost Cutshaw's little pop fly in the sun; Hummel following with a long triple to left centre, and a sacrifice fly by Smith ending the day's festivities. Boston made only two hits off Ragon and Yingling, the latter finishing out the string after Eddie Phelps had fanned in the rôle of pinch hiter for Ragon in the eighth inning.

Tyler pitched a magnificent game also, the Superbas making seven hits to be sure, but no run could have resulted had Cutshaw not had his lucky "life" in the ninth. Boston had only five men reach first base, four of them reaching second, and two third. After the second inning, however, Ragan retired fifteen Braves in order. The Superbas had men on bases in almost every inning. In the ninth inning, Boston well might have tied up the game had it not been for fast plays by Cutshaw on hard-hit balls put in before and after Boston's second hit of the game by Sweeney.

The Dodgers got away nicely in the afternoon game, scoring two runs in the first inning, when hits by Cutshaw, Stengel, and Daubert were bunched and the home team did some slow fielding. Boston then got a run, when Stengel made another muff, which allowed Sweeney two bases, and the run came across on an out at first, followed Moran's muff on a liner from Titus. Moran's hit and Cutshaw's sacrifice, with a slow hit by Stengel, and an out, put Brooklyn ahead, 3 to 1, in the third, but in the fifth the Braves got their five runs. These five came in a merry-go-round after two hands were out, and on six hits, two errors by Scretsiot Fisher, one of which was a low throw to first base, and two good, clean hits, putting on the finishing touches. The visitors were dangerous in the seventh and eighth innings, finally tieing the score, 6 to 6. Two runs came over in the seventh inning on Miller's double, Devlin's single, an out, and a fine hit by Moran. Boston, however, had a punch left, and went in to win the game in its half of the eighth inning. Things started when Stengel made another mess of a fly ball, dropping a hit from Whaling as in the morning, the Boston catcher advanced to third on a safe tap by Maranville, and scoring on a wild pitch. The score:

Pirates Win Pitchers' Battle.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 30.—Pittsburgh took the morning game from Chicago in a sensational pitchers' duel between Reulbach and Camnitz. Singles by Booe and Carey and Wagner's out gave Pittsburgh a run in the first, and they added another in the sixth on a single and Vlox's two-bagger. Three of the six hits off Camnitz were for extra bases, but sensational catches by Wilson and a phenomenal one-handed grab by Booe at the expense of Zimmerman helped Pittsburgh. Chicago got its one run in the ninth, when Clymer singled and Bridwell walked. Bresnahan forced Bridwell, and Mitchell, running for Bresnahan, then worked the double steal with Clymer, the latter scoring. Score:

PEUGEOT CAR WINS $50,000 AUTO RACE

France Defeats America on Indianapolis Speedway—Mercer Finishes Second.

Five-Hundred-Mile Auto Race.
Place—Indianapolis Motor Speedway.
Length of Course—Two and one-quarter miles.
Number of Entries—Twenty-seven.
Value of Race—$50,000.
Value to Winner—$20,000 and $15,000 in trophies.
Attendance—100,000.
Winning Car—Peugeot.
Winning Driver—Goux, France.
Time—6:31:33.45.
Average—76.59 miles an hour.
Second Car and Driver—Mercer, Wishart.
Third Car and Driver—Stutz, Merz.
Fourth Car and Driver — Sunbeam, Guyot.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—The United States fell before France here to-day when Jules Goux, a Frenchman, driving a French car, the Peugeot, won the third annual 500-mile automobile race at the Speedway, in 6:31:33.45, an average speed of 76.59 miles an hour.

No fatal accidents marred the running of the race, although two were seriously injured when the Mason, driven by Jack Tower, upset on the back turn, due to a tire blow-out. Tower's right leg was broken and Lee Dunning, his mechanician, received three broken ribs and internal injuries. The physicians at the Methodist Hospital, where the two men were taken after the race, were not sure as to the extent of Dunning's injuries to-night.

Charles Merz, who finished third in a Stutz, brought the biggest thrill to the crowd, estimated at 100,000, when he drove the last lap of the race with his car on fire. The flames broke out in the upper stretch turn, and Merz refused to stop at the pits until he had circled the track another time and finished the race. Coming down the home-stretch in the finish Harry Martin, Merz's mechanician, climbed out on the hood of the car and unbuckled the straps so the pitmen could extinguish the flames immediately.

Four out of the eight foreign cars entered finished in the prizes, the other four being forced out by broken parts.

An American car, a Mercer driven by Spencer Wishart, finished second, seven laps behind the winner. The Sunbeam, an English car, driven by a French-man, Albert Guyot, came in fourth. The other foreign cars in the money were Ballot's Mercedes - Knight (German,) which was fifth, and Mulford's Mercedes (German,) seventh. The three Italian cars were forced out of the contest.

The race was a little more than ten miles shorter than last year's contest, which was run in 1912. It was due, it was said, in a large measure, to the intense heat, which necessitated many changes of tires. Another thing which caused a slower time was the fact that this year the piston displacement was limited to 450 cubic inches, while last year the race was a "free-for-all." The Speedway records for the class of cars were broken up to 250 miles, when the many stops at the pit began to cut down the average.

Goux, the winner, complained at every stop at the pits because his manager refused to let him put his car to its highest speed. He asserted that he could have made much better time, but his manager contended that as he was in the lead from the 140th mile there was no use to let the Peugeot out. Goux, after getting the lead from Burman, when he stopped for oil and gasoline, was never headed and finished far in the lead of his nearest competitor. Anderson's Stutz pushed the leader hard until the 187th lap, when the car was forced out by a broken magneto shaft.

Goux first won fame as a race driver in France, where he was victor in a 402-mile race. Before coming here he went to the Brooklands track in England, where he made 106 miles 307 yards in 60 minutes in the same car in which he raced to-day. His record in the 402-mile race broke all European records for the distance, while his performance at the Brooklands track broke all world's records.

Burman, who was the favorite in the betting, ran a hard-luck race.

In the fifty-fifth lap his car caught fire in the back stretch. He put this out and ran to the pits, where he had to change carbureters. He had to make several other stops at the pits, and was relieved at the wheel by Hughie Hughes, who was still on the track about twenty laps behind when the tenth car finished.

Early in the race Evans Mason turned completely around on the lower turn, but the car stayed on its wheels, and Evans continued until near the end of the contest.

Besides the prizes and trophies offered by accessory concerns, the following prizes were taken by the Speedway management to the winners, which, their time, follow in order:

| No. | Car and Driver. | Time. | Prize. |
|---|---|---|---|

Burkett Wins Denver Race.

DENVER, Col., May 30.—Garwood Burkett of Denver won the "Mountain Marathon" here to-day. His time for the 10 2-5 miles was 1:07:31.

Exeter and Andover in a Tie.

ANDOVER, Mass., May 30.—For the first time in the history of the event, the athletic meet between Andover and Exeter ended to-day in a tie, both teams scoring 48 points. R. W. Hitchcock of Exeter broke the pole vault record by clearing 11 feet 6¾ inches. The old record was 11 feet 2¾ inches, made by Buck of Andover in 1912. Exeter captured all the field events, but the team failed to come up to expectations on the track.

Drew Runs 100 Yards in 9 3-5.

BANGOR, Me., May 30.—The timekeepers gave Howard T. Drew, the Springfield (Mass.) runner, a mark of 0:9 3-5 in the 100-yard dash, which he won at the games of the Old Town Athletic Association to-day. W. A. Meanix of Colby College was second.

ENGLISH SHEEPDOG WINS.

Brentwood Hero Captures De Mund Trophy in Bench Show.

A massive, shaggy, old English sheepdog, Brentwood Hero, won the honor of being the best of the show at the Long Island Kennel Club's annual exhibition, which was held at the Sheepshead Bay race track yesterday. Hero was the centre of attraction for the big crowd. His hair is so long that it completely hides his face and legs. A curious woman spectator walked around the dog four or five times before she discovered where his head was. With Brentwood Hero's victory goes the Dr. De Mund silver trophy.

The show was the largest that the Long Island Kennel Club has ever held, and more than 650 dogs were on exhibition. The attendance was much larger than at former shows.

Mrs. W. W. MacLeod of Philadelphia, while judging the Bedlington terriers, was badly bitten on the index finger of the right hand by Miss K. P. Newbold's terrier Tiny Chum. The dog was in bad temper, and made two wounds, one of which was serious. They were cauterized and Mrs. MacLeod finished judging her classes, although she suffered much pain. One of the Great Danes also got ugly, and, although tied to the railing, sprang upon a woman and tore a large hole in her coat.

A competition new to dog shows was introduced by the German sheepdogs which are used in the European capitals as police dogs. The Elmview Kennels, William Neuhoff and B. H. Throop, put their dogs through a demonstration of their police talent. They chased fugitives, jumping upon their backs and dragged them to the ground, leaped over high walls, found lost articles, and permitted revolvers to be shot off right under their noses without as much as winking an eye. The dogs showed remarkable intelligence, and their exhibition brought forth much applause from the big crowd.

There was a large entry in the English bulldog classes, and Thomas W. Lawson's high-priced importation, Dreamwold Centaur, carried off the blue ribbons among the dogs, while Harry Rushton's champion Princess Merlow scored a notable win in defeating another Lawson importation, Dreamwold Juanita in the winners' bitches class.

Miss Marion Kennedy's Parkneuk Black Thorn, formerly known as The Black Prince, added another blue ribbon to his string in the Pomeranian class. Mrs. Frank T. Clarke's Fairfax Wee Lynx also won a blue ribbon. Among the Boston terriers Mrs. F. A. Dallen's Dallen's Sensation, and Franz J. Heilborn's The Empress, which was named the best at the recent Boston Terrier Show at the Hotel McAlpin, both won blue ribbons in their classes, but did not compete in a common class.

Mrs. Charles Durnell's Pekingese spaniels won several blue ribbons. Sun of Llenrud won among the winners' dogs, while Ton Shi of Eghem of the same kennel won first honors in the bitches' class.

Mrs. Samuel Willet's Sealyham terrier Star carried off first honors in its class, with Fuller Chenery's The Varmint reserve. The Hercuveen Kennels' St. Bernards scored a victory over Jacob Ruppert, Jr.'s entries two different classes, and the Boreas Kennels gained most of the honors with a splendid pack of Russian wolfhounds. ## TRAVIS DEFEATS OLD GOLF RIVAL

Former National Champion Wins from Travers in the Tuxedo Tournament.

Jerome D. Travers, who recently won the metropolitan amateur championship for the third time in succession, fell before his old rival, Walter J. Travis, erstwhile champion of two continents, in the semi-final of the annual invitation tournament of the Tuxedo Golf Club yesterday. The margin was 3 up and 1 to play. Travis, incidentally, went round in 70 with one hole approximated, four strokes lower than the record made by Travers on Thursday.

Travis, the veteran, who has always had a great liking for Tuxedo, went out finely for a 37, but came back in 33. His putting was deadly, and only once or twice did he falter on the greens. Travers found difficulty on the tees at times, notably the first, where he topped his drive, his ball striking a rock and bounding clear back into the automobile shed across the driveway.

All square at the turn, Travis lost only one hole returning, that being the sixteenth, where his brassie found the brook and he picked up.

In the other half of the bracket of the principal division Edward P. Rogers of Baltusrol eliminated W. R. Simons of Garden City by 4 up and 2 to play, and will meet Travis in the thirty-six hole final match to-day.

The summary follows:

First Sixteen.—Second Round—Jerome D. Travers, Upper Montclair, beat W. W. Pell, Canoe Brook, 4 up and 2 to play; Walter J. Travis, Garden City, beat E. B. Schley, Morris County, 3 up and 3 to play; W. R. Simons, Garden City, beat McKim Hollins, 4 up and 3 to play; Edward P. Rogers, Baltusrol, beat G. G. Mason, Tuxedo, 4 up and 3 to play.
Semi-Final Round—Travis beat Travers, 3 up and 1 to play; Rogers beat Simons, 4 up and 2 to play.

HILTON'S GOLF HONORS.

Captures Amateur Championship for the Fourth Time.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 30.—Harold H. Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club to-day won the world's amateur golf championship, beating Robert Harris of Acton, England, by 6 up and 5 to play over a thirty-six-hole course. This is the fourth time Hilton has held the title.

Although interest in the tournament for the world's amateur golf championship had been greatly lessened by the elimination of W. Heinrich Schmidt of Worcester, Mass., and the other American competitors, the match for the championship still retained some international attraction, as Harold H. Hilton is an Englishman, and Robert Harris is a Scotsman, a period of twelve years has elapsed since a similar Anglo-Scottish contest had been fought in the final of the championship at St. Andrews.

Scotsmen had hoped that Harris would prove the winner, but Hilton's victory was a very popular one.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS PLAYERS IN FORM

Australian and American Cracks in Hard Matches—Play for Manhattan Cup.

International tennis players split up yesterday. The Australians played on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, while the Americans were seen in action at the Country Club of Westchester. Raymond D. Little, the fourth member of the United States Davis Cup team, took part in the tournament of the Rockaway Hunt Club. Stanley N. Doust and Horace Rice played some lively tennis at West Side, but A. R. Jones, who has been indisposed at Boston, is expected to join his countrymen to-morrow. Maurice E. McLoughlin and Harold H. Hackett will have R. Norris Williams on the team with R. D. Little Monday, and the representatives of the two countries will then begin the last stages of practice on the court where the match will be played.

Capt. Doust of the Australians had a warming up set in the morning with Charles E. Haggett, the West Side professional, and won, after a hard struggle, 9—7. Rice then took his countryman's place, but did not fare so well, losing two sets to Haggett by the scores of 6—4, 6—3. In the afternoon Doust and Rice played a match, best two in three sets, the former winning in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3.

The Australasian Captain did not approach the net, but played the back court entirely, and devoted considerable attention to volleying. He made a number of clever gets, and showed an improvement in his ground strokes. Rice, who is one of the most effective players in the Antipodes, was particularly strong with his backhand strokes, while he covered the court in brilliant fashion, making a number of clever gets. The pair impressed the big gallery with their general all-round excellence. The only point of discussion was their service, which lacks the speed of the American players.

It is understood that the Australians will insist upon the close observance of the English tennis rules in the Davis Cup matches regarding the time between the sets. In the event of any of the matches requiring more than three sets, no rest will be allowed between the third and fourth set, but the match will be continued to a conclusion.

On the Westchester Country Club courts Maurice E. McLoughlin, the National singles champion, lost a three-set match to Charles E. Haggett, the West Side Club professional. McLoughlin did not extend himself, but devoted most of his attention to the back court work, which department of the game he is perfecting for the Davis Cup matches. Haggett captured the first two sets, 6—2, 6—3, when McLoughlin varied his play and took the third set, 6—3.

McLoughlin then took Harold H. Hackett as a partner and defeated Haggett and George Adee. The contest was an interesting one and proved excellent practice for Hackett. The professional and Adee were forced to deuce before winning the first set, 6—4. McLoughlin and Hackett, running away with the next two games, 6—3, 6—3.

Tennis players put in a busy day on the Marine and Field Club courts at Bath Beach, where a number of the best racquet wielders in the metropolitan district took part in a singles invitation tournament. The best match of the day was between W. Hasday and R. T. Bennett of Morristown, the former winning two sets to three, 6—2, 2—6, 8—6. The summaries:
Men's Singles—Preliminary Round—G. Gordon defeated O. H. Riggs, by default; M. A. Noble defeated W. H. Dewey, by default.

YACHT RACING ON IN EARNEST

Harlem Yacht Club's Annual Regatta Brings Out a Fleet of Thirty-seven Boats.

With a fleet of thirty-seven yachts at the starting line, a good breeze from the northwest that blew the last boat home considerably less than three hours after the warning signal, and just enough of a jump in the sea to make it lively, the thirty-first annual regatta of the Harlem Yacht Club—the first open regatta of the season—held off Execution Reef in Long Island Sound yesterday, was an event that gave great satisfaction to the race officials and to the amateur sailors who participated in it.

The starting line was established at the northeast buoy off Execution Reef. Yachts of Class P, the first and second divisions of the handicap class and the Buzzard's Bay class sailed to racing buoy A, off Parsonage Point, thence across the Sound to buoy E 1, off Week's Point, and thence to the starting line, a distance of eleven nautical miles. Those of Classes Q and R, the Sound schooner class, the third and fourth divisions of the handicap class and the Larchmont Inter-Club class, sailed to the gas buoy off Scotch Caps, thence to buoy D 2, at the western entrance to Hempstead Harbor, and thence home, nine nautical miles in all. Boats of all the smaller classes were sent to the buoy off Delancy Point, thence to the bell buoy off Prospect Point, and thence home, a six-mile course. The first two legs of each course were reaches, and the last leg was windward work.

The warning signal was set at 1 o'clock, and the first classes to start, the Buzzard's Bay and first division of the handicap, were sent away at 1:10 o'clock. Alert was first across the line, and, to windward, followed fairly close by Sally IX., Senora, and Gypsy, all of the handicap class. Zingara and Wahtawah, of the Buzzard's Bay boats, were sluggish at the start and were about two minutes late in crossing the line. It was a close race in each of these classes, Wahtawah winning by less than a minute, while Senora, without her time allowance of 1 per cent., won from Alert, the scratch boat, by nearly three minutes. The Class P boats were also slow at the start, but two of them made a close race, with Wianno first at the finish by slightly over a minute, ahead of Amorita, and Ediana, beaten by twenty minutes.

Two of the Sound schooners also sailed in close company, Rival having the best of it at the finish by a minute and sixteen seconds, and there were snappy finishes also in several of the smaller classes. Summary:

Bayside Y. C. Opens with Regatta.

Yacht racing was the principal feature in connection with the official opening of the Bayside Yacht Club yesterday. After the usual ceremonies, twenty-one boats, all enrolled in the organization, held the first regular regatta of the year. The craft sailed over the club's courses in Little Neck Bay in a wind from the west that was both light and flukey. Summary:

Bang-and-Go-Back Race for Boats.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., May 30.—Eleven members of the Red Bank Motor Boat Club entered their boats in a bang-and-go-back race contested on the North Shrewsbury River here, this afternoon. All the boats started together from a stake off the clubhouse at the signal of an aerial bomb fired from the club dock. When the slowest boat completed two laps of the course of four miles, an aerial bomb was fired, which was the signal for each boat to instantly turn about and return to the starting line, making as many rounds of the course as when going out. Harry Coon's Autocraft was the winner, in 89 minutes 13 seconds. George Glostein's Nerlee was second, in 90:08, and Harry Martin's Neried was third, in 91:09. Louis Frick's Louisa F. finished fourth, E. E. Perine's Mohawk fifth, W. V. Lamarshe's Electra sixth, Commodore John Morrow, Jr.'s Scat seventh, Harry Woodall's Minnie M. eighth, Ernest Oliver's Wa Wa ninth, George Frick's Ellen F. tenth, and A. E. Russell's Gadix eleventh. A cup was awarded the winner by the Red Bank Motor Boat Club.

ATLANTIC'S SEASON STARTS.

Small Yachts In Gravesend Bay Regatta—Sea Gate Club Opens.

In a snappy breeze from the west by north that was just right for the racing of small yachts, the opening regatta of the season was sailed on Gravesend Bay yesterday afternoon. As is the custom, the Atlantic Yacht Club managed the race, and the starting and finishing line was off the clubhouse at Sea Gate. The regatta was of unusual interest, as five boats sailed their maiden races.

Interest centred principally in the Q class. In the division was Virginia, the new boat of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton; Irvia, another new craft that was built for Peter W. Rouss; Alice, which belongs to Gherardi Davis; Edgar F. Luckenback's Sueley, and Soya, the old racer of W. A. Barstow. Just after the start Soya carried away her backstay and had to withdraw.

Virginia, in the hands of Capt. O'Neil, was the winner, beating Alice over a 12½-mile course by 2 minutes 20 seconds.

Through a misunderstanding of the course signals, the racing among the new Birds boats was a fizzle. Zeb Mayhew's Woof was the only craft to sail the right course, and so got the prize. Commodore J. Stuart Blackton's Eaglet and Oriole, which belongs to Dr. Atkinson, were both disqualified. Summary:

Many of the members of the Atlantic Yacht Club who arrived at Sea Gate yesterday to take part in the formal opening of the club were astonished to find that there had been built a handsome addition to the clubhouse. The new building is a dancing pavilion and a theatre. Yesterday it was presented to the organization and last night it was dedicated by the first dance of the Summer.

The club went into commission at noon. Just prior to the hour, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton left his flagship Paula and came ashore accompanied by Fleet Capt. Nickerson and Vice Commodore Taylor. The flag officers were met by the other members and with the usual ceremonies the burgee was mastheaded and saluted by the craft at anchor.

ACUSHLA LEADS YACHTS.

Close Victory on Special Seawanhaka-Corinthian Race.

A closer or more exciting yacht race has seldom been seen on the Sound than the special one of yesterday arranged by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club for the fifty-foot and thirty-foot one-design classes of the New York Yacht Club. G. N. Heckscher's fifty-footer Acushla proved the winner by only sixteen seconds from J. P. Morgan's Grayling, which led H. P. Whitney's Barbara by 31 seconds. J. DeForest's Nepsi won in the "thirties" by 1 minute 6 seconds from J. A. Mahlstedt's Okee.

Eight of the new "fifties" came to the starting line off Lloyd's Neck, at the entrance to Oyster Bay, and they were sent away on signal from Commodore August Heckscher's steam yacht Anahma by the regatta committee in a fresh breeze from the northwest that made them heel at times until their lee rails were almost awash.

J. P. Morgan's Grayling had the weather berth at the start. To leeward of her came W. E. Dodge's Samuri, and between them, but astern, the Ventura crossed the line. The Acushla and Barbara crossed at the lee end of the line with the Pielone and Spartan last.

At a dinner at the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club last night the cups which had been offered by Harold S. Vanderbilt were presented to the winners of the race. The summary follows:

CRUISER RELAY RACE.

White Team Wins Motor Boat Contest to Croton Point.

Four teams of four motor boats each took part in the cruiser relay race yesterday from the Columbia Yacht Club headquarters, Eight-seventh Street and Hudson River, to Croton Point. The contest was won by the White, or Team C, composed of Columbia Yacht Club 2, New York Motor Boat Club 1, Tappan Zee 2, and Tarrytown Yacht Club 1. The distance—thirty-five miles—was covered in about two and a half hours, and a dinner at Croton Point followed the race. The flagship of the winning team was Vice Commodore Warren's Minnie W. III. of the Columbia Yacht Club.

Commodore Wheeler's Empress of the Columbia Yacht Club and flagship of the Red relay team fouled a mooring in front of the clubhouse at the start, and was put out of commission.

Bensonhurst Yacht Club Opening.

With the usual ceremonies that go with an opening of a yacht club, the Bensonhurst organization went into commission at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was an important occasion for the lower bay organization, as it was the official opening of its new home at Westlawn. Commodore George R. Le Sauvage mastheaded the burgee and made a short speech. The club gives its first regatta to-day. As is customary, the start and the finish will be off the Atlantic Yacht Club at Sea Gate. When the club went into commission, there was at the anchorage Miana, Clare, Joy, La Cubana, and a dozen or so more craft. All "dressed ship" immediately after the burgee was up.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 30.—A. M. Billings's While-Away won the first race among the new Stamford class of schooners this afternoon over a fifteen-mile triangular course in a moderate northwesterly breeze. He captured the standing broad jump, the shoe race, and the hop, step, and jump contest. In the race for men over 60 years old, Michael Larkin, who says he is 65, won the event, defeating a large field. John Shay won the fat man's race, while J. S. Dowling captured the 100-yard dash. In the three-legged race Dowling and Neil Quigg won, Dowling also captured the one-mile run.

PENN AND CORNELL ATHLETES LEADERS

Honors About Even Between Them in Qualification Contests of Intercollegiates.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 30.—It was under good conditions for first-class performances and satisfactory racing that the trials of the intercollegiate track and field games were held in the Harvard stadium this afternoon. The preliminaries in eleven of the thirteen events were run off, and the showing made by the athletes assures that tomorrow's finals will not only bring out some wonderful competitions, but that the smashing of several records well may be looked for.

As was expected, Pennsylvania and Cornell made a fine showing to-day; not that they put more men into the finals than did some of the other colleges, but on the calibre of the work done by the men from Philadelphia and Ithaca. Michigan did well to place nine men, as did Yale and Dartmouth, but the New Haven team had several disappointments, and of Harvard's qualifiers most of them are due only to win minor places in the finals.

The happiest thing that happened for Pennsylvania to-day was to have Mercer come through in the broad jump and to clear 23 feet 1 inch. Mercer also got into the finals in the 220-yard dash with Lippincott and Patterson, the Quaker sprinters who look so good. In the sprints, however, Lippincott will have to do his best work to beat men like Sargent of Michigan, Wagner of Johns Hopkins, and Reller of Cornell, all of whom appear to be real champions. John Paul Jones and Norman Taber could not be compared to-day as the Brown University middle distance man decided not to enter the half-mile event. Jones ran a pretty half in 1:55 4-5, finishing easy. Brown of Yale had a lot of speed also and will be a real contender to-morrow. Potter of Yale made the fastest time in the low hurdles, being the only man who finished under 24 seconds, while in the high hurdles Potter and Hammitt, the latter from Pennsylvania State, were the only two men to run in 16 seconds flat.

There was some great racing in the quarter-mile run, in which Wilkie of Yale made the best time, 50 3-5 seconds, this, however, being only a fifth of a second better than the time made by Jonsen of Michigan and two-fifths of a second better than that of Haff of Michigan, who evidently is right back in his best form and one of the favorites for the finals.

Barron of Harvard did not extend himself in the 440, but he will have to be at his very best to beat either Wilkie or Haff.

In the pole vault five men qualified at 12 feet, while in the high jump four competitors did 5 feet 10 inches. Not among these, however, were Sargent of Michigan and Douglass of Yale, two men who were picked to get points. These two had to jump off for the fifth qualifying place, the vantage finally being won by Sargent at 5 feet 11⅞ inches, after each man had cleared 5 feet 11 inches. Cable of Harvard and Englehorn of Dartmouth both did better in the hammer-throw than Shattuck of California, Cable's best throw was 156 feet, the Californian and Englehorn of Dartmouth both doing better than 148 feet. Beeson of California got into the high jump and high hurdles, but Coolidge, the other Western hammer man, did not qualify.

The shot-putting was of a high order, there being no upsets except that Roos of Yale did not get into the finals. Pennsylvania did not qualify Murphy in the hammer, Barker in the pole vault, or Jack in the high jump, but Griffith showed good form in the hurdles.

Dartmouth did some good placing, but fell down badly in the high jump and in the "quarter." In the half mile Granger was fast, and Marceau looks like a place winner in the half mile.

Things have broken about even between Pennsylvania and Cornell so far, so that to-morrow's outcome all the more is likely to be decided on the performances of Jones and Speiden of Cornell in the half and runs between Madeira and McCurdy of Pennsylvania in the two-mile and mile events.

Those qualified in each event were:

100-Yard Dash.—H. M. Wagner, Jr., Johns Hopkins; T. H. Cornell, Yale; D. P. Lippincott and J. E. Patterson, Pennsylvania; H. H. Ingersol and C. A. Beller, Cornell; J. E. Bond, Michigan; J. P. Harlan, Princeton. Best time—0:10, by Lippincott.

Harvard Wins at Lacrosse.

In a fast, clean game of lacrosse Harvard defeated Stevens Institute at Castle Point Field yesterday by the score of 4 to 0. The weather conditions were perfect for good lacrosse. The first half ended with the score of 3 to 0. Repeated attempts at goals were made by both sides, but the good work on the part of the goal keepers had a tendency to make the score small. The work of both teams in the second half was very even, but Harvard succeeded in pushing one past Karst near the middle of the half. Then both teams tightened up, and no further scoring was done. Forlstall of Harvard and Moss of Stevens excelled for their respective teams. The summary:

| Harvard. | Position. | Stevens. |

Model Fortune In Straight Heats.

Special to The New York Times.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., May 30.—The Flemington Fair Association's races to-day attracted a large crowd from different parts of the State. The track was fast, and each heat was attended by close finishes. Model Fortune, the bay mare owned by H. L. Stout, won the 2:22 trotting and pacing class in three straight heats.

NEW YORK HORSES WIN.

Tuxedo Horse Show Attracts Many Society People.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., May 30.—The opening day of the Tuxedo Horse Show was favored with ideal weather. A large gathering of society people, who are attending the week celebration at Tuxedo were in attendance in large numbers. House parties and luncheons were held by many of the residents, and the club house is filled to overflowing. W. M. V. Hoffman and Pierre Lorillard, Jr., received the largest number of blue ribbons, and Mrs. David Wagstaff, William A. McGibbon and Miss Cynthia Kearney of New York each came in for their share in many classes.

The competition was very keen in each class. The drawing card was the racing in the afternoon, which attracted many persons from Orange County. Judge Seeger was the winner in two events, carrying off first honors in the handicap mile trot and taking second prize in Class D trotting.

The open combination class, to be shown in harness, then in saddle, was very attractive, Mrs. Edwin Gates Babcock of New York winning with her black gelding Woodford. In the breeding class, B. A. Bulkley of New York took first with Red Moko. W. M. V. Hoffman's Kalavia took the blue, P. Lorillard, Jr.'s Notice B. was second. Miss Marie L. Rodewald won the loving cup in the ladies' saddle class with Patiria from a field of seven, and Mrs. David Wagstaff was second with Country Boy.

The show will continue to-morrow. The hunters will be shown in the morning and ladies' saddles and saddle championship will be judged in the afternoon. The awards:

TORONTO'S FINE LACROSSE.

Canadians Beat Crescent Athletic Club by Score of 8 to 4.

Lacrosse players of the Crescent Athletic Club lost the first game of their annual international series at Bay Ridge yesterday. The team of Toronto University was the visitor, and the students from across the border took the New Moon clubmen into camp by the score of 8 goals to 4. The first period of play ended 5 to 3 in favor of the victorious twelve.

The absence of Dufresne, the regular goal-keeper of the Brooklyn clubmen, principally was responsible for the defeat of the American champions. Dufresne has been sick for the last two weeks with a slight touch of pneumonia. His place was taken by Klep, an attack player. Although the substitute did the best that he could, he found that the Canadians were far too clever at scoring for his ability. Line-up:

| Price | Goal | Klep |
| Dobby | Point | McMahon |

TED MEREDITH WINS AT THREE-QUARTERS

World's Half-Mile Record-Holder Beats Kiviat and Others in Fast Time.

Ted Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania was the winner yesterday of the special three-quarter mile footrace decided at Celtic Park under the auspices of the Irish-American A. C. when he breasted the tape two feet in front of Abel Kiviat, the one mile National champion, in one of the fastest outdoor contests seen at the distance since the days of Conneff.

Among the others who trailed home the world's title holder were Homer Baker of the New York A. C., and Joe Driscoll, the Buffalo lad, who was credited with having beaten the world's indoor record when he beat Kiviat one night last Winter in 3:07. Meredith's time yesterday was 3:08, with Driscoll last of the field of four, and so decisively beaten as to be compelled to pull up about a hundred yards from the finish when he was far behind the others.

From the pistol which sent the men on their journey to the 1,000-yard point, the order was Kiviat, Driscoll, Meredith, Baker, with the men runing in tandem fashion a stride apart. At the top of the backstretch, with an eighth of a mile to go, Meredith attempted to pass the leader, being closely pressed by Baker. Kiviat responded to the challenge, and held his forward position to within forty yards of the tape, where the Pennsylvanian nailed him.

They ran as a team for twenty-five yards, Meredith slowly but surely gaining, so that at ten yards from the worsted he was a foot in front, which he increased at the finish to two feet. Kiviat, run out to the last ounce, was five yards in front of Baker. The intermediate quarter miles were 60 3-5 seconds, 2:05 3-5, and 3:08.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finn, annexed the honors in the five-mile handicap race, winning comfortably in 25:13 4-5, and under normal conditions he probably would have beaten the best American record at the distance. As it was, a gale of wind which blew up the homestretch nullified the efforts of the would-be record breakers, and although there were a number of fine performances, Father Time's book was left unsullied.

Close finishes were the order throughout the afternoon, and the handicapper came in for much praise because of his sterling work in giving the judges more than they were loking for in the adjudications. The last race, the 1,200-yard relay, brought about a neck and neck finish, and one in which a dead heat was pronounced by many who were just a bit off the angle.

A. T. Meyer of the Irish-American A. C., and Dick Edwards, New York A. C., were the men chiefly concerned in making the race which resulted in a victory for the Winged Foot club by inches only after the pair had raced head and head for the final 200 yards of their relay. Edwards managed to stay a bit better, and earned the decision.

Matt McGrath and Pat Ryan, the Irish-American A. C. hammer throwers, had their duel with the sixteen-pound missile, and the finish was as named, with McGrath getting the hammer out the fine distance of 185 feet 7 inches. Fat McDonald, the Times Square policeman, came within 2¾ inches of beating the world's record with the fourteen-pound shot, when he heaved the sphere 51 feet 4 inches, which fine put earned him out third place in the final, the winner turning up in the person of Al Reich, the amateur champion heavyweight boxer, who got the weight out 45 feet 9 inches, which, with his handicap of 6 feet 6 inches, warranted his victory by a couple of inches from Julian Elliot.

A. T. Meyer and Jim Rosenberger, the Winged Fists' best sprinter, got into the second round of the century dash, but failed to make impression enough on the long start men to get into the final. There were big fields in every event, and about four thousand persons witnessed some fine sport. The summary:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by F. Moen, Presentation Club, (7½ yards;) J. L. Kirby, Irish-American A. C., (5½ yards,) second; L. Cohn, Mohawk A. C., (8½ yards,) third. Time—0:10.

One-Mile Walk, Handicap.—Won by F. R. Plant, Long Island A. C., (8 seconds;) W. Berner, Irish-American A. C., (23 seconds,) second; T. Maroney, Glencoe A. C., (45 seconds,) third. Time—6:46.

Three-quarter-Mile Run, Special, Scratch.—Won by J. E. Meredith, University of Pennsylvania; Abel R. Kiviat, Irish-American A. C., second; Homer Baker, New York A. C., third; Joe Driscoll, Buffalo, fourth. Time—3:08.

One-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by Dennis Daly, Pastime A. C., (70 yards;) H. Seeman, Presentation Club, (90 yards,) second; O. Gibbons, New York A. C., (20 yards,) third. Time—4:29 2-5.

Hop, Step, and Jump, Handicap.—Won by L. De Beet, Salem Crescent A. C., (5 feet,) with 43 feet 10½ inches; H. Oltman, National A. C., (30 inches,) second, with 16 feet 2⅝ inches; J. Rothschild, unattached, (5 feet,) third, with 41 feet 9 inches.

880-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by C. Blush, Knights of St. Anthony; A. Johnsen, Norwegian Turn Society, second; J. E. McEneny, unattached, third. Time—2:12 4-5.

CANADA REJECTS NAVAL AID.

The Naval Aid bill which Premier BORDEN was able to carry through the Dominion Commons only by a reduced majority he cannot carry through the Senate at all. By a vote of 51 to 27 the Senate has resolved that it is not justified in giving its assent to the bill until after it has been submitted to the judgment of the country. The prospect of a popular mandate being asked may be judged by the following extract from The Ottawa Journal, whose editor is an intimate of the Premier:

> If the Borden proposition were to be submitted to a plebiscite, the mass of the Liberals, and all the Nationalists, all the voters arrived more or less recently from the Continent of Europe and the United States, all "peace-at-any-price" people, all the Socialists, would vote against it. Defeat would be more than probable.

The Naval Aid bill, therefore, may be considered dead because people and Parliament are against it. This is the result of an attempt to give the Mother Country a pledge of loyalty as a substitute for the commercial agreement with the United States, which was represented as treason to the Empire. Instead of a Naval Aid bill approved without distinction of party, including both LAURIER and BORDEN, England was flattered by a proposal which Parliament has rejected, and on which the risk of a vote of the electorate cannot be taken.

The proposition which is so unpleasing to the Dominion was urged under a plea of an imperial emergency which had no real existence, and was thanklessly received on its own merits in the Motherland, although it received a certain support from Germanophobes and British protectionists, who were in the last ditch themselves. The proposal simply was that Canada should bear the interest charge on $35,000,000 of money to be borrowed in England, to be spent in British shipyards, for the mere shells of ships, which were to be manned and maintained by the home country, and were to be attached to Gibraltar as a base, for use at the will of the British Admiralty in wars not of Canada's seeking. Clearly, there was nothing in that for Canada. The Dominion would rather have spent that considerable sum in its own shipyards, and have had the use of the ships in Canadian waters, on Canadian issues. On the other hand, the upkeep of the ships was so much more than the interest on their cost that one thankless London journal on Wednesday declared "Great Britain would be relieved if Canada were to go back to forming a navy instead of planting the maintenance of £7,000,000 worth of battleships on our estimates."

The United States will, as it should, preserve an attitude of detachment and observation regarding this family quarrel. It is not necessary for us to point out to our cousins above the border that it is idle for them to protest that their primary interests lie across the ocean. It is rather lip service than loyalty to pretend that they will sacrifice their interests to those of England. They will not do so in such a matter of politics as Asiatic immigration. They will not do so in such commercial matters as the enactment of a tariff. They will give England a preference up to the point where Canadian interests are threatened, and then the British preference becomes a Canadian preference. There is not the slightest doubt that they will sell to us all that our lowered tariff will allow, and count it gain. But the same party whose naval policy is discredited deceives itself, and deceives the country, into the belief that it would be treason to lower the Canadian tariff to enable Canadians to buy in this country, and make another profit on the other half of the bargain.

THE REVIVAL OF RACING.

Horse racing was revived in New York yesterday when Belmont Park was thronged, and the gayety of the assemblage was dimmed by no shadow of the gloom that fell on the near-by tracks three years ago. The Metropolitan Handicap was run again, and the spectacle was as exhilarating as of old—or nearly so. Horse racing is good and honorable sport, no shame should be attached to the breeding and training of thoroughbreds, and the new and earnest attempt to renew racing without any of the associations which formerly brought it into disgrace deserves encouragement and watching. The object of the Agnew-Hart bill was not to suppress racing, but to abolish the system of race-track gambling which had brought shame and ruin to many homes, had started thousands of ignorant and weak young men on the path to perdition, and sullied the fair fame of the sport.

Other cities can have horse racing, so why should New York be compelled to forego its excitements and pleasures? It is not true, and it never was true, that racing cannot be enjoyed without gambling. In this revival all bookmaking is strictly prohibited, there can be no public show of betting. Private gambling can never be suppressed anywhere, but it will be both the duty and the pleasure of the track managers at Belmont Park, who are anxious to re-establish racing on a profitable but honorable basis, to make sure that any private betting there may be is kept private.

SENATOR THOMAS ON PANICS.

A cynic might read with a grin, a fool with approval, but an intelligent and sincere man only with disgust and indignation the report printed in The Congressional Record of a speech made in the Senate by CHARLES S. THOMAS, Senator from Colorado, on May 15, in which he set himself the task of proving that the panic of 1893 was deliberately created by the bankers. "It was a panic," he said, "deliberately produced in this country for the purpose of doing away with a statute of the United States, the operation of which was objectionable to the great financial powers of the country." The statute in question was the Sherman act for the compulsory purchase of silver by the Treasury, the repeal of which Mr. THOMAS declared to be "the most colossal tragedy of the nineteenth century." In support of his contention Senator THOMAS declared that eight days after the inauguration of President CLEVELAND in 1893 this circular was sent to the National banks in the United States:

> Dear Sir: The interests of National bankers require immediate financial legislation by Congress. Silver, silver certificates, and Treasury notes must be retired, and the National banknotes upon a gold basis made the only money. This requires the authorization of $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 of new bonds as a basis of circulation. You will at once retire one-third of your circulation, and call in one-half of your loans. Be careful to make a money stringency felt among your patrons, especially among influential business men. Advise an extra session of Congress for the repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman law, and act with other banks of your city in securing a large petition to Congress for its unconditional repeal, as per accompanying form.

There is more to the circular, but this is enough to enable every banker in the land to recognize the ancient and hoary fraud. Mr. THOMAS was bombarded with questions from his fellow-Senators. Mr. ROOT inquired if it was not an anonymous circular, to which the Colorado Senator replied that he did not think it was anonymous, but added the insulting insinuation that perhaps the New York Senator knew better than he where it came from.

Senator REED SMOOT of Utah added to many public services of value by instituting an inquiry into the origin and history of this peculiar circular. The results of his investigation were presented in a speech made in the Senate on May 22. He discovered, what Mr. THOMAS had in fact avowed, that the Colorado Senator had found it in a muckraking publication issued more than a year ago, and there the circular was attributed to the American Bankers' Association. From the General Secretary of that organization Mr. SMOOT obtained a good deal of information. The circular had indeed been issued in March, 1893, and it had been denounced as spurious by the American Bankers' Association at its meetings held in 1894 and 1896. It was pointed out that the circular was dated on the Sabbath, that it was unsigned, and the Bankers' Association repudiated it altogether. Mr. J. R. SOVEREIGN, the General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, read the circular in a speech made in Little Rock in 1894. The American Bankers' Association informed him that the circular was a fraud, and he honorably offered to return to Little Rock and make the necessary correction of his speech. Mr. BRYAN, more cautious, wrote to the Secretary of the association in 1896 about the circular and was informed that it was not authentic, and so far as the association is informed Mr. BRYAN never made any use of it.

This showing was absolutely destructive of Senator THOMAS's argument, so far as it was based upon the circular, but he is much too resolute in his hostility to the money power to be daunted by such trifling circumstances as the fraudulent quality of his evidence. In the running debate he was asked if, notwithstanding the documents submitted by Senator SMOOT, he still believed that the circular was issued by any responsible person. "Yes, I do," was his answer. A Senator who would believe that would, of course, believe anything. Still it might be felt that even a Senator from Colorado would have his doubts about the authority and authenticity of a command issued in this way to all the bankers to call in half their loans and retire one-third of their circulation. We should be loath to believe that Senator THOMAS would yell with fright at the sight of the stuffed mountain lions in the Denver Museum, yet the degree of credulity he exhibited in exploiting this spurious circular, often exposed and on its face a fraud, could not easily be surpassed.

Thoughtful men have feared that the Constitutional amendment for the popular election of United States Senators would result in a deplorable lowering of the statesmanlike quality of the Senate. That may be possible in some States. We should hope it would work the other way in Colorado.

THE QUEST FOR THE LOBBY.

The danger involved in hunting snarks when boojums are in the neighborhood is well known to every reader of "Alice in Wonderland." You pursue your game with ardor, but when you catch the animal you discover that he is not at all what you thought he was, in fact you would much rather not have caught him. The Democrats of the Senate, by their foolish amendments to the Cummins resolution, have simply filled the woods with boojums. As offered by Senator CUMMINS, the resolution provided for an inquiry into the conditions set forth in the statement of the President, who declared that there was an active and insidious lobby at work, with unlimited money, trying to mislead Congress by its falsehoods about the effect of the Underwood Tariff bill. It would seem that every virtuous Senator, Democrat or Republican, should have given hearty support to such a resolution. The result of the inquiry would have dispersed the lobby, it would have protected the Senators against its evil influences, or it would have shown that the President was mistaken. But Mr. KERN's amendment and the other amendments make the resolution ridiculous. The Senate will be inquiring now not so much into the existence of the lobby as into the virtue of its own members. The Finance Committee will have to ascertain whether Senators are financially interested in any article mentioned in the Tariff bill and whether they have tried to interest their colleagues, and the Lippitt amendment brings into the field of inquiry Senators who are "professionally" interested in any item of the Tariff bill, that is those who have been legal advisers of any protected interest.

The President's statement was directed in the main against supposed lobbyists who were trying to prevent the removal of the duties from sugar and wool. Prof. ROY E. BLAKEY of Cornell University makes this disclosure in an article in The Independent of May 29:

> Most of the activity of the present campaign for free sugar, at least so far as it has gotten into the public light, has been financed and managed by the Federal Sugar Refining Company of New York, and has been opposed most actively by the organized beet sugar manufacturers.
> Everybody knew about the efforts of the beet sugar manufacturers to secure the retention of the duty on sugar, but the unveiling of a sugar refining company as "lobbying" in favor of the removal of the duty is awkward. This sugar refining company is distinctly a boojum, for it is a lobbyist on the wrong side, on the Democratic side, on the President's side. The Finance Committee would have preferred that the Cornell professor should keep still about it. But the hunt as now organized includes so much undesirable game within its scope that we may safely assume that the chase will not be overzealous. The amendments to the resolution have robbed the investigation of all its charm and interest.

DR. FRIEDMANN'S SECRECY.

The effect of the resolution passed by the Board of Health prohibiting the use of living bacterial organisms in the inoculation of human beings without complete data regarding the use and nature of the vaccine is to enable Dr. FRIEDMANN to disclose the nature of his treatment without impairing his legal rights. He can tell the Health Department confidentially, and the officials would be bound to keep the details of the preparation from professional and commercial competitors. There is nothing in the preamble of the board's resolution condemning the Friedmann treatment, except this passage:

> Evidence is already at hand to show that the so-called remedy not only does not fulfill the promises of efficiency and safety under which its use was at first permitted in this city, but, on the contrary, during its administration many patients have suffered serious and unduly rapid progress of their disease.

But in this passage there is nothing to warrant the hasty exclamation of Director RAMBAUD, formerly of the Pasteur Institute in this city, that "they have tried, condemned, and executed this remedy without giving it a chance to be heard." If the treatment finally proves to be valuable and even curative in the majority of cases, the board has nothing to unsay. The patients treated in the Government test were divided into classes, and it was remarked that a very large number of cases in the third and most dangerous stage of the disease were selected by the Government physicians. It was necessary to test the treatment on this class of patients, and, being a powerful vaccine, its effects may have materially hastened their end. If the cases of patients in the first and second stages have reacted unfavorably after a sufficient lapse of time, there is nothing in the official pronouncements of the doctors to indicate it. THE TIMES published soon after the last injections were made in the Government tests a semi-official communiqué stating that no report on the condition of patients could be in any degree conclusive until three months had elapsed; that is, not until the end of June can anything of value be definitely known for or against the remedy.

Probably this time must be much extended, since, according to the preliminary statement of the Federal physicians and the recent resolution of the Board of Health, the action of Dr. FRIEDMANN in safeguarding the secret of his treatment, its nature, and the methods of employing it, must impair the scientific value of the report. It is fortunate, both for him and for the officials concerned, that a feasible way of disclosing the secrets of the Friedmann treatment has been found. Because largely of official ignorance of its qualities, the virtues of the vaccine treatment against smallpox were seriously impugned by the physicians of the Smallpox Hospital of London, and Dr. JENNER was for a time discredited.

MILK PUNCH.

Our correspondent at the scene of strife in Marquette, Mich., says that "a look of pain crossed the faces of many of those present" when Mr. JAMES R. GARFIELD, having declared that the Colonel's milk punch was made "as I suppose milk punches are always made," described it as "a teaspoonful of brandy in a glass of milk." The prodigal waste of good brandy aside, Mr. GARFIELD'S idea of milk punch is worthy of "Sandford and Merton," a veritable Rollo book beverage. We have no doubt that it is, precisely, the Colonel's idea of milk punch. Probably it compares favorably with his idea of mint julep. He confesses to mint julep, but particularizes only the mint.

There is mint in a julep, to be sure; there were three lumps of sugar, if memory serves, in the deputy Shepherd's favorite "wanity." But the drift of the evidence at Marquette convinces us that the plaintiff in a celebrated case knows as much about the alluring charm, the entrancing spell, the incitement to the imagination, and the peril that lie within the frosted cup of which mint, and that unbruised, is but one ingredient, as he does about milk punch. Milk punch, indeed—a glass of milk and one teaspoonful of brandy! Why lug in the "punch"?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Typical Foe of Vivisection.

A woman whom in kindness we will not more closely identify than by saying that she lives in Farmington, Conn., and writes a hand fallaciously indicative of intelligence and courtesy, has sent us an abusive letter worthy of—well, of an anti-vivisectionist, which she is.

It begins in highly characteristic fashion with the statement that THE TIMES has "never been fair-minded enough to publish both sides of any question, as far as my observation and experience go." This assertion is preposterous, however interpreted, since the woman has no right to make it if her "so far" is a minute distance, while if it is long enough to cover a single week the charge is ludicrous in its falsity, as every reader of this paper knows.

We have even printed letters from anti-vivisectionists—not often, it is true, and then usually because particularly wild absurdity made them in some way interesting. If their communications have much more often gone into the waste basket it was because they contained nothing except revelations of a familiar ignorance or slanderous accusations that have been refuted a hundred times, in courts and out of them. When they have something new, and even possibly true, to say, our columns will be open to them, as to others with whom we disagree. Till then we prefer and purpose to give to anti-vivisection no more of space or attention than is needed—with the help of all sane, honest, and decently enlightened people—to foil the efforts of its advocates to interfere with or suppress the animal experimentation upon which the progress of medical and biological science in large measure depends.

It illustrates anti-vivisection indifference to facts that the Farmington woman protests against "attack" on Miss LIND-AF-HAGEBY on the ground that the latter is "a high-bred and cultivated lady of noble character and beautiful, unselfish life." As a matter of fact and record, Miss LIND-AF-HAGEBY is a person who, an English court has just decided, can with impunity, in spite of the rigorous English libel laws, be charged with deliberate and systematic falsification—with plain lying, in short.

Illustrative of anti-vivisection ignorance is the horror our Connecticut critic expresses over the "torture" of animals "for the benefit of vile and immoral creatures whom the world would be infinitely better without." She really thinks, seemingly, that only "vile and immoral creatures" suffer from what has been called "the most baneful disease of man."

Must Watch Your Bankbook.

In the current number of Bench and Bar, JULIAN T. DAVIES, Jr., collates with enlightening comment the curiously varying decisions of the New York courts on a subject of interest to everybody who keeps a bank account, large or small. A problem that may confront any one of them at any time is that of recovering from the bank money which it has paid out on forged or altered checks—the question, in other words, whether, in such cases, the responsibility of the bank is complete, or whether, in some and what circumstances, that responsibility is lessened or voided by acts or negligences of the depositor.

The first decision of the Court of Appeals on these points was rendered in 1854, the case being entitled Weisser's Adms. vs. Denison. The bank's defense was that the forgeries went on because the depositor had failed to examine his passbook and account and so failed to notify the bank of what was going on, but the court ruled that he was under no obligation to do this and that the bank could be held for any payment made on a false signature or indorsement. This decision stood as a guiding precedent for many years, but beginning with 1878 the courts began to modify it in recognition of the depositor's duty to assist his bank in the discovery of forgeries, and to hold him negligent if he allowed frauds to go on that he would have detected had he exercised reasonable care. At first he was only expected to examine his vouchers as returned at the periodical balancings of his accounts, but gradually the demand upon his attention was increased and "reasonable care" was made to include one precaution after another on the theory that the presentation of his passbook to be written up was a demand for the bank's version of his account and that failure to protest warranted the presumption of its accuracy.

It is not enough that he intrust the verification to another, for that other may, and often has been, the forger, and the latest decisions, including one rendered this month in the case of Morgan vs. United States Mortgage and Trust Company, lay special emphasis on the requirement that the depositor shall make his passbook and check list, as they come from the bank, the basis of his verification, and not the returned checks or comparison of them with the stubs from which they were torn. The reason for the preference is that the checks and stubs may be manipulated by a dishonest employé.

A Misfortune with Mitigation.

Evidently the passing of the old Astor House is a cause of sincere regret to many people, but as evidently their sorrow will not save the building if it has survived the possibility of profitable use as a hotel. And it has. The value of the land on which it stands is so enormous that the sort and amount of patronage to be secured so far downtown offer little hope to the sorrowing sentimentalists who are petitioning to be saved from the necessity to break their established habits. The many distinguished ghosts seen by them in the dining rooms and corridors contribute no income applicable to taxes and other unescapable charges, and the listing of their names must be characterized as more interesting than important, at least from the investor's point of view, which must be controlling.

Many New Yorkers still thoroughly alive can well remember when the immediate vicinity of the Astor House did not concentrate all its activities in the daylight hours—when there were theatres and other places of amusement both better and worse near by in large numbers, and when almost anybody, resident or visitor, was about as likely to be met there as anywhere else in the city. That time is past, presumably never to return, and while there may be towns that would preserve the Astor House as a "monument," this isn't one of them, especially as its architectural claims to such preservation are not obvious to the eye that sees what is, unglorified by what was.

And the memories and associations of the old hotel are not altogether inspiring. Bad men as well as good went there in the lamented "best days"—the notorious as well as the famous. The painful truth is that they were days the evanishment of which is a blessing not at all disguised.

APPRECIATE TIMES INDEX.

Col. Harvey Would Give Prize—Expert Testifies to Its Character.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The index published by THE TIMES is more valuable, probably, to me than to most people, because I keep a file of THE TIMES in my reference library and use it constantly. It is no small compensation when facing a tax upon income to have a tax upon memory removed. Whoever conceived this admirable idea deserves a prize. If you will give me his name, I will send him one. This is a fact. I will. It is worth it. The index is a fine thing—second only to the literary supplement which you inaugurated years ago.

GEORGE HARVEY.
New York, May 29, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a special cause for congratulation that THE NEW YORK TIMES has undertaken to index its contents, since, with its book supplement, it is generally conceded to be the best newspaper for libraries to preserve, and is read by all intelligent people throughout the country. The issuance of a good index to a good newspaper is an important event, as newspapers are original sources for writing history, and a reliable index will save much labor.

THE TIMES's index seems to be very completely done. For instance, about two months ago information was wanted about the "Blue Sky" law. The library staff remembered having seen something in THE TIMES about it, but the date was not remembered. The existing indexes had a reference under Kansas, but not under "Blue Sky," and material was not easily found. THE TIMES index has the entry under "Blue Sky." It is hoped that the final issue of the year will cumulate all the previous entries.

Defends Yale Fraternities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I do not defend all the so-called iniquities of the Yale senior societies, but I timorously dissent from the learned dictum of Henry Barrett Hinckley that the emphasis should be placed on scholarship and scholarship alone. I warn him in real seriousness that if you take away all incentive toward achievement in other lines than scholarship, even though that incentive be toward somewhat superficial achievement, you run the grave danger of intruding upon the "golden leisure of college life" the debasing standard of unadulterated loafing.

FOREIGN WILD BIRDS.

Why We Should Lead the World in Stopping Their Slaughter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the letter to THE TIMES from Messrs. Feiner & Maas, in the issue of May 29, the attorneys for the group of dealers in aigrettes, which have been called the "white badges of cruelty," close their statement with an error. They say:

> The Underwood provision [to prohibit the importation of wild birds' plumage for milliners' use] was not suggested as the result of any scientific or legislative inquiry of the subject, and it is truly a subject which calls for a comprehensive knowledge of conditions existing throughout the world. Is it fair that Congress should legislate on so serious a matter without having all the facts before it?

I know that Messrs. Feiner & Maas were well aware that the New York Zoological Society did make a thorough scientific inquiry into the subject referred to; that the appalling facts revealed are recorded in full in a book called "Our Vanishing Wild Life," particularly in two chapters of twenty-nine pages, entitled "Extermination of Birds for Women's Hats" and "The Bird Tragedy in Laysan Island," packed full of lists and figures, and adorned by twenty-seven illustrations; and that along with the brief submitted by the undersigned, the Ways and Means Committee published both those chapters in full for the information of Congress, in "Tariff Hearings No. 23."

During eighteen months of travel and explorations in the Far East, Mr. C. William Beebe, Curator of Birds of the Zoological Park, visited the jungles and the principal seaports of Southern and Eastern Asia, Borneo, and Java, in all of which he paid close attention to the doings of "the feather trade." He finished his researches in the feather market of London, with excellent results, and to the book mentioned above he has contributed a special chapter devoted to "The Destruction of Birds in the Far East."

On May 22, in our "hearing" before the Senate Committee on Finance, I saw a copy of "Tariff Hearings No. 23" in the hands of Mr. Feiner, and I know that he had perused our portion of it very attentively. Now, why does Mr. Feiner try to convince the readers of THE TIMES that Congress is not in possession of "the facts" in this case? The Zoological Society has placed in the hands of every member of Congress a copy of its campaign book, mentioned above. We went before the Ways and Means Committee because we had the facts with which to prove our case, and we have been assured that it was because Mr. Underwood's committee was in possession of "the facts" that it acted so promptly! Our investigation of the feather trade occupied an entire year, and revealed many things that we have not published.

The representatives of the Audubon societies asked for a measure to protect American birds solely because they were afraid that a larger request might be refused. Mr. Pearson said in his testimony:

> "Dr. Hornaday is asking for the whole loaf. I am asking for half a loaf; but I want the whole loaf!"

It is the noble-minded, God-fearing women of America who to-day are voicing the great demand for the house-cleaning of the United States in the matter of bird slaughter for millinery. The State and National Federations of Women's Clubs are making this cause their special matter. I have been told by members of Congress that from every corner of the United States letters are pouring into the capital from the wives and mothers of America, urging, and even demanding, that the odious millinery traffic in the feathers of slaughtered birds be prohibited. If this movement wins out, the victory must be credited to the women who have asked for it.

The proposals to admit the plumage of game birds and of birds killed as pests are both utterly inadmissible. At one time I tried to convince myself that the former would be possible; but the adoption of such an amendment would throw open our doors to the importation of at least 250 species of Old World game birds, and an indefinite number of other species killed in certain countries as "game," contrary to all civilized shooting ethics. For example, in Italy every species of song bird is shot and sold and eaten as "game"! Such an amendment would put an extra premium on the head of every real game bird, also, and countless thousands would be killed for their plumage alone. The ptarmigan is a striking example, and what about birds killed as "pests"? As a matter of fact, that request, if granted, would be the same as offering a cash premium for the head of every eagle, hawk, and owl, and many of the vultures, of the world at large. In our country, out of fifty-two species of hawks, eagles, and kites, only four do so much harm that their good services are clearly overbalanced, and their destruction regarded justifiable. There is no commercial product composed of the feathers of birds that have been killed solely because they are "pests." It is one thing to leave a doubtful species open to casual shooting, but to put a price on its head is quite a different and far more deadly proceeding.

The Zoological Society's clause in the Tariff bill is right exactly as it stands, and should be enacted into law without the slightest change.

The Whiskbroom Pest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the taxicab "abuse" has been corrected, how about the fellow with the whiskbroom in the lavatories at the hotels? Isn't there some way that they can be suppressed? It is a fearful nuisance, and I am told that it is encouraged by the hotels.

THE CALL OF THE WEST.

The day softly wakes and the dream-fetter breaks
From the herd asleep on the hill.
To the meadow lark's strain, o'er the bunch grass plain,
They roam at their own free will.
Wrapped in his blanket the herdsman sleeps
Where no dreams come to bother his rest.
His sightless eyes gaze at the morning skies;
He has answered the call of the West.

In silence he came to the care-free land
That stretched to horizon's rim.
In silence he journeyed away again,
And little it matters to him
Though the herd scatters far on the bunch-grass plain,
And the coyotes sob and wail.
He is seeking a spot to build his camp
By the side of the shadowy trail.

'Tis a nameless spirit born of the West,
A delirium sweet and wild,
That wraps men about in a blanket of bliss
Like the butterfly-race to the child.
Little they care though the night winds sob,
And home scenes grow dim and pale.
They are following the wraith of the Golden West,
O'er the line of the dim-drawn trail.

TO STOP VANDALISM IN PARKS

Policemen in Civilian Garb Will Watch for Offenders.

Visitors to Central Park yesterday were so careless in their treatment of lawns and shrubbery as to provoke an indignant protest last night from Alexander H. Spencer of 200 West Fifty-seventh Street, chairman of Mayor Gaynor's Park Advisory Committee. This citizens' committee includes representatives of the City Club, the Bar Association, the Chamber of Commerce, Citizens' Union, Parks and Playgrounds Association, Zoological Society, Botanical Society, Agricultural Experts' Association, Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, National Society of Architects and the Society of Landscape Architects.

"It is the intention of this committee and of the Mayor and the Park Department to put an end to vandalism in the parks of this city," said Mr. Spencer last night. "To-day at the Maine Monument celebration the lawns and shrubbery in the vicinity of Columbus Circle were trampled under foot by citizens and soldiers. I am not criticising this occurrence, however, because it was probably unavoidable. It was tacitly understood that the paraders must have some space to stand at ease and so far as the spectators were concerned it was a special occasion.

"It does seem, however, that in other parts of the park common decency would have prevented visitors from littering up the lawns. Thousands of persons placed newspapers on the grass, on which they sat, and left the newspapers lying there on their departure, together with paper bags, luncheon packages and other refuse. This is inexcusable. If the parks are to be kept in proper condition and their natural beauties maintained unimpaired, such carelessness must cease.

"Mayor Gaynor has turned over to the Park Department and this committee the services of 150 policemen in plain clothes who will take especial care of the so-called picnic parks such as Central Park, Riverside Park, Prospect Park in Brooklyn, and others. This notice is in the nature of a friendly warning to the public.

"We would rather use persuasive measures than coercion, but if such vandalism continues harsher methods than those adopted hitherto will be used. Offenders who leave behind them on the lawns a litter of newspapers, paper boxes, and other debris will promptly receive summonses to appear before a magistrate. They will never know when they are under observation because policemen in civilian garb will be on the watch to detect them.

"We want the people to enjoy the parks, but we also desire to keep the parks in condition for them to enjoy. If it is too much to ask park visitors to deposit rubbish in the receptacles provided for it, then we will see what a little coercion will do in compelling them to be decent and less selfish."

PROTECTORY ANNIVERSARY.

Cardinal Farley and 600 Guests at Golden Jubilee Exercises.

The golden jubilee of the New York Catholic Protectory was celebrated yesterday in the magnificent grounds of the institution at Van Nest. At 10:30 o'clock in the morning an outdoor military mass was solemnized by the Right Rev. Mgr. John Edwards, V. G., pastor of St. Joseph's Church, New York. Cardinal Farley was present at this mass and during the entire exercises held thereafter, accompanied by the Right Rev. Joseph F. Mooney, V. G., and the Right Rev. Mgr. Patrick J. Hayes. The sermon was preached by the Very Rev. John P. Chidwick, D. D. After the mass a luncheon was given by the managers of the protectory to about 600 guests.

The luncheon was followed by exercises and drills by the children on the lawn. Speeches were made by Victor J. Dowling, Louis Meyer, Robert J. Wilkin, and Peter Gerry.

The grounds of the institute include about 100 acres, all under splendid cultivation. There are at present about 3,000 children there. Of this number not one is in the infirmary. Lincoln Agricultural School, which is a part of this same institute, has within its jurisdiction 250 boys. It is non-sectarian.

Among those present at the exercises yesterday were George B. Robinson, for thirty-five years President of the Protectory; John D. Crimmins, John F. Cross, Justice Philbin, Justice Delany, Justice Giegerich, Justice Zeller, Dr. F. J. Quinlan, Congressman C. V. Fornes, and George B. MacDonald.

FEW STEAMBOAT ACCIDENTS

Figures Much Lower Than Those of the Railroads.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES states that the report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission shows that "in three months ended with Jan. 1 the railways of the United States killed 2,967 persons and injured 51,323."

Contrast this with the annual report of the Supervising General, Steamboat Inspection Service, to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor for the year ended June 30, 1912, which shows:

> During the fiscal year 307,692,494 passengers were carried on steam vessels carrying passengers that are required by law to report the number of passengers carried. Taking the total number of lives lost as 264, it is seen that 1,165,501 passengers were carried for each life lost, whether of passengers or crews, and from all causes.

From the above it will be seen that the deaths caused by the operation of railways are about forty-five times as many as those caused by the operation of steamboats.

OVERDUE TAXES.

Seven Per Cent. Penalty Called Unjust to Poor Landlords.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In behalf of hundreds of taxpayers, who have a small sum of money invested in Manhattan property, and, who, by reason of reduced rents and outrageously increased tax bills are unable to meet them till toward the close of the year with interest added, I would like to ask why it is that the city can charge 7 per cent. interest when the legal rate is 6 per cent?

I have been told it is a penalty, but the burden falls upon the poor because the rich can pay their taxes when due. It is so glaring an injustice that, could I realize two-thirds of the value of my holdings, nothing would tempt me to invest one dollar in any part of Greater New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I appreciate the article on the "International Institute for Girls in Spain" which appeared in a recent issue of THE SUNDAY TIMES. I also thank you for the thoroughly fine newspaper you publish. Wherever I may happen to be I hear sung continually the praises of THE TIMES. Not only has it the news complete, but it has the highest standard of character. EMILY S. PERKINS.

The Significance of Baldness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of THE TIMES a correspondent calls attention to the new explanation of baldness; viz., that it is due to worry. Religious people are free from worry, and hence they are not bald.

This recalls to my mind the story of Elisha and the naughty children, who cried: "Go up, thou bald head!" Perhaps Elisha's anger was excited because the children were deriding him for his lack of genuine religion—so plainly indicated by his baldness.

MORE TARIFF DELAY; NO REPORT IN SIGHT

PLANS FOR LOBBY INQUIRY

Judiciary Committee Likely to Name Overman, Reed, and Cummins as Investigators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—All hope that the various sub-committees of the Senate Committe on Finance would complete their preliminary revision of the tariff schedules this week vanished today. It was ascertained that many interruptions have so retarded the sub-committees that the full majority membership can hardly receive their recommendations before the middle of next week. It is considered certain that the full majority will require at least a week to check up the work of the sub-committees, and the Democratic caucus may take as long in discussing the list of amendments the majority membership of the committee will recommend.

The greatest obstacle in the consideration of the Tariff bill so far was the prolonged debate on Senator Kern's resolution calling for an investigation of strike conditions in West Virginia. Since the debate was closed, on Tuesday, President Wilson's announcement of the existence of an industrious and insidious lobby has occupied the attention of the Senators, and the resolution directing an investigation of those charges occupied the Senate all day yesterday.

To-day the absence of Senator Johnson of Maine, Chairman of a sub-committee in charge of five schedules, on account of the death of Representative Forrest Goodwin of Maine, halted that sub-committee's work. The other two sub-committees were busy behind closed doors, rules being adopted by both that no callers would be received. It was understood that progress was slow.

The Senate Committee on the Judiciary will meet to-morrow to consider the course of action on the Senate resolution adopted yesterday directing the committee to investigate the existence of a lobby. It is expected that the real work of the investigation will be done by a sub-committee of three Senators, probably Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina, Chairman; Senator Reed of Missouri, Democrats, and Senator Cummins of Iowa, Republican.

DIRECT ELECTION SIGNING.

Secretary Bryan Invites Supporters of Idea to Witness Event.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Secretary Bryan will sign at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning the formal announcement of the seventeenth amendment to the Constitution, providing for the direct election of United States Senators. The proclamation that the requisite number of State Legislatures has ratified the amendment marks the successful outcome of a movement started eighty-seven years ago, and Mr. Bryan has invited several, who share his enthusiasm over the event, to be present when he signs the document. Among these are former Representative Harry St. George Tucker of Virginia, Chairman of the committee which conducted the fight for the measure in the House in 1892; Representative Rucker of Missouri, Chairman of the House Committee which reported the resolution which has been favorably acted upon, and Senator Borah, long a champion of the direct election of members of the upper body of Congress.

COMMITTEE TO COAL FIELDS

Senate Likely to Send Three to West Virginia to Investigate.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Senate Committee on Education and Labor will meet to-morrow to plan its investigation of strike conditions in the Paint Creek coal fields of West Virginia. Methods of procedure will be outlined, and a sub-committee will probably be named to visit the coal fields and make a personal examination of conditions.

Senator Swanson of Virginia is likely to be Chairman, and Senators Shields of Tennessee and Borah of Idaho the other members of the sub-committee.

It is proposed to have the investigators go to West Virginia next week, and, besides making a personal examination of conditions, call witnesses to testify as to the operations of the military commission established in the strike zone for the trial of persons arrested by the military in connection with the strike troubles.

APPROVES NEW HEALTH LAW

Durand Says New York Measure Is a Step to Uniform Registration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—E. Dana Durand, the Director of the Census, spoke approvingly to-day of the bill just signed by Gov. Sulzer to amend the New York public health law so as to provide for better registration of vital statistics in the State. Mr. Durand regards this bill as a forward step in the movement to provide uniform vital statistics for the entire country.

Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur, Chief Statistician for Vital Statistics of the Census Bureau, says that the State legislation passed this year is, on the whole, more satisfactory than in any previous year, and predicts that at the present rate of progress the entire area of the United States will be covered by fairly adequate laws before the date of the next census.

NO LUNCHEON SEATS FOR WILSON'S PARTY

President on Auto Trip Tried Crowded Baltimore Restaurant, Then Went to a Hotel.

SPENT THE DAY TOURING

Had Declined Many Invitations to Athletic Events Out of Deference to Veterans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—President Wilson to-day began a rest period of two days with a motor trip, in which he was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson, and the President's cousins, Miss Helen Bones and Fitz W. McMaster Woodrow.

The party left the White House at 10:30 o'clock this morning, without announcing their destination. They first crossed into Virginia, where the morning was spent driving over the country roads. Early in the afternoon they drove into Baltimore to obtain luncheon. Arriving unannounced, they first tried a North Charles Street restaurant.

Few recognized the President as his car drew up at the curb in front of the restaurant, and only cursory glances were given the visitors as Miss Margaret Wilson stepped from the car and made her way into the restaurant, the rest of the party following slowly behind.

"Have you a table for our party?" she asked one of the waitresses.

Receiving no reply, according to those who were within hearing, she repeated the question with no better results. Then the President's daughter turned on her heel and walked from the room, telling the others that they could not be accommodated.

The party then re-entered their automobile and drove to a hotel, where they ate their luncheon in the main dining room.

The proprietress of the restaurant was still fluttering with chagrin half an hour later.

"Yes, I know that it was the President and his party in the automobile," she said, "but what could I do? The room was packed. We were full, and before any of the tables could be cleared they had left."

Leaving the hotel about 3 o'clock, the Presidential party started for a run through Green Spring Valley and return to Washington, arriving about 6:30 o'clock.

Secretary Tumulty went to the American League Park to see the afternoon game of baseball between the Senators and the Boston Red Sox, and sat in the midst of a crowd of nearly 20,000, many of whom were disappointed over the absence of the President, whom they had expected to see there. But the President did not attend, and the "fans" had to be satisfied with the twirling of Walter Johnson.

Invitations sent to the President to attend the ball game and other athletic events were not accepted by him out of deference to the objections of veterans to the holding of field sports on Memorial Day.

The President will take another day off to-morrow, transacting no more business than is necessary, his purpose being to keep his Saturdays as free for recreation as possible.

ARRESTED WHILE AT TEA.

Woman Has Miss Langford, Former Actress, in Court for Assault.

"It's the old story of a tempest in a teapot," was the way Mrs. Ruth Langford Hughes, 22 years old, who lives in the Madison Square Apartments at 37 Madison Avenue, referred last night to the charge of assault and battery in the second degree, brought against her by her one-time companion, Miss Elizabeth Eisman. Mrs. Hughes, who was formerly on the stage, and is known to all except her intimate friends as Miss Ruth Helen Langford, was arrested on Thursday afternoon while she was visiting at tea. The warrant was sworn out by Miss Eisman before Justice of the Peace Atkins of New Paltz, a little resort near Newburg, N. Y. She alleged that Miss Langford had assaulted her on May 27 while they were at the Mountain House at Lake Mohonk.

Miss Langford was taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station and released under $300 bail. Yesterday morning she was arraigned in the West Side Court and turned over to Constable Depew of New Paltz. She was taken there yesterday and held for an examination next Thursday. The amount of bail was raised to $1,000.

"Why I really don't know what its all about," said Miss Langford last night after she got back to her apartments. They said the charge was assault and battery in the second degree, and that it would be possible to send me to jail for ten years. Miss Eisman said she wished I would get ten years. Well, I hope I don't. I'm not worrying.

"I went to the hotel to recover from an attack of grip and took Miss Eisman with me as a companion. She had lived here in the apartments with me for the last three months, and I had done lots of things for her.

"We returned to the city Wednesday, and before we parted that night Miss Eisman kissed me good-bye. Then she sent a letter Thursday morning saying that she hoped the trip had benefited me, and that she would call on me in the evening. So you can imagine how surprised I was when a detective arrived and I was dragged off to the police station."

According to counsel for Miss Eisman the trouble occurred when Miss Eisman refused to go horseback riding with Miss Langford on May 27 while they were at the Mountain House. It is alleged that Miss Langford struck Miss Eisman, and the latter displayed a slightly discolored eye and a few scratches to uphold her charge.

500,000 SOUGHT THE OPEN.

That Number of New Yorkers Out on Holiday Jaunts.

Expert observers estimated last night that fully 500,000 persons from New York's five boroughs took advantage of the fine holiday weather yesterday to journey to neighboring seashore and country resorts. Those figures mean that 10 per cent. of the population passed Memorial Day away from home. They include the thousands of automobile parties which throughout the morning and afternoon crowded the Staten Island and New Jersey ferries or went whirling out through Long Island. At the Belmont race track alone 35,000 devotees of the sport gathered to welcome the return of the thoroughbred.

From the Coney Island & Brooklyn railroad, the B. R. T. and the Iron Steamship Company's estimates of passenger traffic to Coney Island it was learned that 200,000 men, women and children visited that resort. Fully 125,000 went to Rockaway and Far Rockaway. The beaches on Staten Island and in New Jersey also drew large throngs.

The Pennsylvania, New York Central, New Haven, and Long Island Railroads all reported heavy passenger traffic, for the most part consisting of small weekend parties.

Thousands of persons patronized the excursion steamers at the Battery, which took sightseers around the fleet in the North River. Other thousands spent the afternoon in ball parks.

ADDITION TO HOSPITAL.

New Building for Beth David to be Formally Opened To-morrow.

A new four-story building, which cost $125,000, has been added to the two buildings already occupied by the Beth David Hospital, 113th Street and Lexington Avenue. The building is ready for occupancy, and will be formally opened next Sunday. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman of Temple Emanu-El will deliver the opening prayer. Others expected to speak at the ceremony are Adolph Lewisohn, Edward Lauterbach, and Dr. Abraham Jacobi. Cantor Marcus Aronos will conduct a choir of twenty-five voices.

The new hospital building can accommodate eighty patients. On the first floor are the main office, public ward, laboratory, and X-ray room; on the second floor public wards and rooms for private patients, and on the third floor operating rooms, ether rooms, and dressing rooms for physicians.

TO STAGE 'IN THE VANGUARD'

Mrs. Trask's Play Deals with the Question of Peace Among Nations.

Henry Miller will produce next season, in conjunction with Klaw & Erlanger, "In the Vanguard," a play by Mrs. Spencer Trask, (Katrina Trask,) which recently attracted attention in book form. Mr. Miller will stage the play, but will not appear in it himself.

"In the Vanguard" deals with universal peace. Its principal character is a young American, who distinguishes himself for bravery in an engagement of an imaginary war which this country has with another power. Prior to impressed with the barbarism and folly of warfare between nations, and returns to his native village. His benefactor, the wealthy man of the neighborhood, upholds his action in the face of adverse criticism. The first act of the play is laid in an American village. The second act shows an encampment prior to a battle, and then the culmination of the engagement. The third act is again in the American village.

IRISH FETE IN CELTIC PARK.

Songs, Stories, and Poem in Gaelic —Drill and Football Game.

An Irish festival similar to the ancient Feis will be given in Celtic Park next Sunday by the Gaelic League of Ireland, in which singers, story tellers, dancers, musicians, orators, and reciters will compete for prizes. Five hundred competitors are entered. Irish industries, Gaelic football games, and drills by the Irish Volunteers will be additional features. Under the rules the singing, reciting, and story telling must be done in Gaelic. The gold medals for the prize winners were designed from the stone carvings at Newgrange, Ireland, said to be over 2,500 years old.

Dr. Douglas Hyde, who founded the league and is its President, has induced the Kildare and Cork football teams to come here for a series of Gaelic football games.

Seeks Aid for Destitute Family.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities is soliciting a special fund to provide for a destitute family, a widow and six children, the youngsters aged 2 to 12 years. The mother has tried to support her children on her earnings, amounting in some weeks only to $3, but the illness of one of them has compelled her to appeal for help. The bureau is giving temporary relief and has co-operated with the church and others to raise a fund so that the children will not have to be taken from their mother and placed in institutions. Contributions may be sent to Manfred, care of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

Women Vote, Town Remains "Wet"

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 30.—The women's vote had little effect on the liquor election in this city yesterday, and in consequence Phoenix remains "wet" by a majority of 352. It was the first time the women had voted on an important question.

BARNARD GIRLS ACT ROBIN HOOD PARTS

Alfred Noyes's "Sherwood" Given on the Campus by a Company of Seventy-five.

ARE FAIRIES AND OUTLAWS

Choruses and Dances Arranged by Student Directors Win Applause of College Audience.

Robin Hood and his followers played by the class of 1913, Barnard College, appeared last night in one of their mediaeval revels in Sherwood forest on the Barnard campus. Fraternity discussions, which have so filled the minds of the students the last few days, were outlawed, like Robin's followers, and the class presented Alfred Noyes's "Sherwood" as their last dramatic effort. It was an effort, for rehearsing was done just at the time of final examinations, and there were seventy-five members of the cast to be collected.

In this version of Robin Hood it is Shadow-of-a-Leaf and his fairy followers who save Robin from the treacheries of Prince John. Edith Barnett carries this Peter Pan rôle with vigor, joyousness, and grace. There was more than one tear shed when she sacrificed her fairy life for Robin and Maid Marion. When the play closes the fairies all pass through the golden gate to Fairyland, but the gate snaps shut before Shadow-of-a-Leaf can enter. The gate was a mass of gold paper and tinsel all concocted by the property mistress. This same inventor had trimmed all the background trees with paper flowers and covered the stage with "bowers of Eden bloom for whispering lovers."

As Robin entered all the choruses sang out "Hail for the Merry Greenwood!" Robin (Viola Turck) was tall and winning in her costume of Lincoln Green. Hers was one of the few voices that found no difficulty in battling with the elements, chiefly street cars and motor 'buses. Robin's outlawry was brightened by Maid Marion, (Marietta Gless.) Marion was lovable and queenly, and it was small wonder that Prince John (Naomi Harris) should have used all his villainous power to try to make her his bride and Queen.

In fairyland Edith London and Esther Burgess had the rôles of Oberon and Titania. They themselves composed the many complicated flying dances which they performed so gracefully together. One of the prettiest parts was where Titania dropped from a tree to meet Oberon springing over the golden gate of fairyland.

As is natural with an open-air performance, the chorus was the chief attraction. The "Tinkers' chorus" was applauded again and again, as was "Brown October Ale." The peasant dances, appearing in all acts, were bright and hilarious, offset by the stately dances of the Court characters.

Among some of the other prominent characters were Helen Dana as King Richard, Eleanor Oerzen as Queen Eleanor, Marjorie Franklin as Little John. The rest of the cast was:

Friar Tuck, M. Stewart; Will Scarlet, H. Bernays; Reynold Greenleaf, H. Crosby; Much, the miller's son, E. Halfpenny; Alan-a-Dale, H. Foland; Blondel, King Richard's minstrel, G. Morris; Sheriff of Nottingham, H. Selbert; Fitzwalter, father of Marion, E. Parks; Arthur Plantagenet, nephew to Prince John, M. Allen; Iris, a fairy, D. Kinch; Jenny, maid to Marion, B. MacDonald; Serf, H. Goldman; Orchis, fairy trumpeter, L. Waring.

The performance will be given again to-night for guests; last night's performance was for the college only.

BARNARD TELLS OF DISPUTE

Sculptor Returning Brings Relics from Ruins of Cloister.

George Grey Barnard, the American sculptor, who has been abroad living for some time at Prades in the south of France, returned yesterday on the France, bringing with him works of art from the cloister of St. Michel de Cuxa, on which he set a value in his customs declaration of $2,100. In speaking of his recent dispute with the French authorities over the cloister itself, which he desired to bring to America, Mr. Barnard said that he had bought the old ruin six years ago, which was the sixth time it had been sold since the French Revolution.

"I ended the dispute," said Mr. Barnard, "by giving the cloister to the City of Prades on condition that it be placed in front of the church in a prominent position. The French newspapers seize upon the slightest action of an American in France to-day to make a sensation."

VANDALISM ON IMPERATOR.

Reports of Damage to Carpets and Other Fittings by Workmen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, May 31.—A correspondent of The Chronicle says that grave news concerning the Imperator, which is now lying near Cuxhaven, has reached the northeast coast through German shipmasters.

Apparently strong efforts are being made to prevent information regarding the real state of affairs being sent through the customary channels; but if the statements of responsible masters of German trading ships are to be accepted, irreparable damage has been viciously perpetrated aboard this magnificent vessel.

Statements have been deliberately made by several shipmasters to their brokers in this country that carpets which were of regal splendor, pictures of almost priceless worth, and other furnishings of great cost have been wantonly cut and slashed to such an extent as utterly to ruin them, and that liquid cement has been poured into the water pipes and allowed to harden, rendering the water system useless.

This infamous work is believed to be the result of a plot to destroy the Imperator's fine internal equipment. It is already known that the Kaiser will not now go on the vessel on her maiden voyage, which has been indefinitely postponed.

The shipmasters advance a singular explanation for the work of wanton spoliation. The Imperator, they say, was taken to a comparatively desolate part of the coast in the neighborhood of Cuxhaven, after grounding in the Elbe, and among the 2,000 workmen aboard were some who were angered at being cut off from their ordinary pleasures. In a spirit of revenge, it is supposed, they planned and carried out these extraordinary crimes.

Scores of secret agents are now aboard the ship endeavoring to discover the delinquents.

MISS EDITH LOGAN TO WED.

Granddaughter of Gen. John A. Logan Will Marry Dewees Dilworth.

Mrs. John A. Logan, Jr., has announced the engagement of her second daughter, Miss Edith Logan, to Dewees W. Dilworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Dilworth of 22 West Fifty-fifth Street. The announcement was made last evening by Mrs. Logan at a dinner given at her home in Youngstown, Ohio, Mr. Dilworth being among the guests. While no date for the wedding has been arranged, it is expected that it will take place in the Autumn.

Miss Logan is the granddaughter of Gen. John A. Logan. Her father, the late Major John A. Logan, was killed while leading his men into action near San Fabian in the Philippines in November, 1899. Six of his men fell with him, and another officer and twelve men were wounded.

Major Logan married Miss Edith Andrews, daughter of the late C. H. Andrews of Youngstown, Ohio, in 1901. Miss Logan's sister married Henri St. Paul de Sincay of Paris and Brussels.

Miss Logan was introduced to society last Winter. Her mother gave a large reception for her at her home, 17 West Fifty-sixth Street, and she was prominent in the younger set and at the opera, where Mrs. Logan had a parterre box. Mrs. de Sincay spent a part of last Winter with her mother and sister.

Mr. Dilworth's family is well known in Pittsburgh and this city. He is a Yale graduate and is in business in this city. He belongs to several clubs.

Mrs. Logan and her daughter expect to remain in Youngstown about three weeks longer.

Major Hill is the United States District Attorney for Baltimore. He has bought a house at 11 Eager Street, Baltimore, where he will take his bride to live.

The wedding will be very small and quiet, owing to the serious illness of the bride's maternal grandmother, and none but relatives and a few intimate friends will be invited. Miss Carroll will have no attendants.

The engagement was announced on May 20.

HONOR MR. AND MRS. STRAUS

Meeting Held in Memory of East Side Association's Patrons.

More than 1,000 persons gathered at the headquarters of the East Side Protective Association, at 1 Avenue B, yesterday afternoon to participate in a memorial service in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus. Mr. and Mrs. Straus, who chose to die together when the Titanic sank, had befriended the institution and many of those present. Harry H. Schlacht, Superintendent of the association, presided. The exercises opened with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by public school children, and the salute to the flag. Then the audience arose to pay a silent tribute to their benefactors. American flags were used as decorations, trimmed with black ribbons.

Addresses were made by Supt. Schlacht, Samuel Goldberg, Dr. Sidney Matthews, Lewis Nadel, and Abraham Karp. Letters of regret from Secretary of Commerman, Attorney General Thomas Carmody, State Senator Robert F. Wagner, and Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle were read.

Gustav Amberg will speak of the foreign performances of Gilbert and Sullivan works, and Sydney Rosenfeld will give some personal reminiscences as one of the first producers here of the English collaborators' comic operas.

2,500 HORSES PARADE ON FIFTH AVENUE

A Prancing Steed of 37 Years Proudly Wears a Blue Ribbon.

GREAT SHOW OF WORKERS

Automobiles for Two Hours Have to Take to the Side Streets—Prizes in 111 Classes.

For two hours yesterday, from 10 o'clock until noon, Fifth Avenue, from Washington Square to Madison Square was turned over to the lover of horses. The seventh annual work horse parade, held under the auspices of the New York Women's League for Animals, had the right of way. Scores of policemen under the command of Capt. O'Brien of the traffic squad ordered all drivers of automobiles to seek the side streets. Even Police Commissioner Waldo's big limousine was hustled out of the way when the Commissioner drove up in the direction of the reviewing stand. Fire Commissioner Johnson ordered his automobile parked half a block away. As the chauffeur was seeking a quiet spot a tire blew up with a loud report and the crowd jeered, and then applauded. It was evident that for the time automobiles were not popular.

Mrs. James Speyer, President of the league, estimated the number of horses in the parade at 2,500. There were 1,075 entries, but several of the entries were teams or great trucks drawn by three or four horses. Because of the fine weather there were few horses "scratched." Horse owners and horse lovers pointed to yesterday's parade as the best illustration that it will be a long time before automobiles will entirely replace the horse in New York.

The parade formed in Washington Square and on the side streets, at 9:30 o'clock, and headed by the divisions from the New York Police Department in command of Lieut. David McCarthy, who rode Watercure, and as usual captured a blue ribbon, started up Fifth Avenue at 10 o'clock. These horses, the pick of the animals of the department, were greeted with hearty applause by the crowds which lined either side of the avenue. After the ribbons had been awarded by Mrs. Speyer, the policemen were directed to ride again before the reviewing stand, this time in single file.

Following them came the splendid horses of the Fire Department. Deputy Chief John Binns, with his horse, Dick, was the first fireman to win the blue ribbon. Three spirited horses, Mormon, Madstone, and Robinhood, driven by Fireman James Creighton of Hook & Ladder Company 7, were the next to carry off first prize.

A Prancing Steed of 37 Years.

The police arrangements for the parade were perfect. During the next two hours the line was not interrupted. Every horse in the long line was fat and sleek. Even Joe, a great bay stallion, the oldest horse in the parade—he was thirty-seven years old some months ago—was seized with the spirit of the occasion and pranced about until he all but shook from his bridle the blue ribbon he had just received. Joe, is owned by W. A. Franke. Next came Jim, thirty-six years old, owned by Edelmeyer & Morgan. They were in the "old horse class," along with thirty others, ranging in age from twenty to thirty years. The spectators looked hard and long at their programmes before they believed that any of these horses were out of the youngster class. The representatives of the league said they showed what care and good food could accomplish. The parade each year, they said, proved an incentive to owners to care properly for their horses.

Mrs. Speyer occupied a seat in the centre of the reviewing platform, on the west side of Fifth Avenue, near Twenty-fourth Street, with Commissioners Waldo and Johnson on either side. Among the other officers of the league on the stand were Miss Ella Mabel Clark, First Vice President; Robert G. Mead, Mrs. F. W. Whitridge, Honorary Vice President; Miss Edith M. Aims, Mrs. Cadwalader Jones, and Mrs. Grenville Parker, Directors. Their guests included Mrs. Edward Robertson, Mrs. H. Winthrop Grey, Dr. Blair, former Health Commissioner Darlington, Mrs. F. S. Witherbee, Miss Witherbee, Commissioner William H. Edwards of the Street Cleaning Department, Mrs. Henry Clews, Mrs. Lawrence Keene, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Miss Burchenal, Director of the Girls' Department of the Public Schools Athletic League, and Frank Steinert.

Standing on the reviewing stand was Jasper, a dog who, despite the fact that he has no long pedigree, has enjoyed the distinction of being the guest of President Wilson at Washington. Jasper is owned by Dixie Traylor of Richmond, Va., and, because of the unusual intelligence he possesses, has become widely known. He shared the honors as mascot of the occasion with a diminutive goat owned by James McCorkle, a boy who rode in the parade behind Ajax, entered as No. 705 in the class for "pair and trainer." The goat was taking nourishment from a bottle, and Mrs. Speyer asked to have it brought to the reviewing stand. She gave it a light-blue ribbon. Jasper got a light-blue ribbon, also, and still another went to Trixie, a dog which saved the family of James Harcourt of 1,848 Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn, in 1910, when the Harcourt home was destroyed by fire. Trixie wore a bronze medal awarded for bravery at the time.

There were 111 classes in all and four prizes, on an average, either ribbons or money, were awarded in each class. The horses were judged before the parade started at Washington Square, but the prizes were given under the eye of Mrs. Speyer at the reviewing stand. Few objections were made to the decisions, although now and then a complaint was heard. A protest was made by Louis Flamboy, who drove "Mike," a veteran of twenty-five years, in the "old horse" class. "Mike" was capering around like a two-year-old, and was so fat and sleek that the freshly-painted wagon to which he was attached looked like an ash cart in comparison. Flamboy was keenly disappointed when he did not win.

"That guy," he called to Mrs. Speyer, pointing out one of the judges, "doesn't know as much about a horse as this kid I have here with me."

Centenarians Ride in Parade.

An incident which attracted much attention was the appearance in the parade of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Oppenheimer of 485 East 140th Street, who rode with their son, Alexander Oppenheimer, behind Lady Kate, a mare aged 21, entered in the "old horse" class by John C. Schmieder. Mr. Oppenheimer is 101 years old and his wife is 103. Their son is 61. When Mrs. Speyer saw the centenarians almost hidden in the big covered wagon, she asked to have the wagon stopped in front of the stand. During the conversation Mr. Oppenheimer said that he and his wife had lived in New York for seventy-nine years and celebrated their seventy-fifth wedding anniversary recently.

Several of the horses wore the ribbons won in former parades and these animals received generous applause when they were driven by. Among these horses were a team of huge dapple grays owned by the Jacob Ruppert Brewing Company. Driver John Felten had his hands full holding them down long enough to seize the blue ribbon. Six tiny and very shiny little ponies which jogged by also were popular.

There were so many ribbons and prizes awarded yesterday that a complete list was not obtainable. Most of the prizes consisted of ribbons and brass wheel ornaments. The money prizes in certain classes were $25, $20, $15, $10 and $5. In the veteran drivers' class the first cash prize went to Carman Seaman, who had been in service thirty-five years, eight months and 20 days as a driver for his firm. Whenever Mrs. Speyer personally gave the prizes to the drivers she thanked them in the name of the league for the splendid condition of their horses. Mrs. Speyer said that she considered it the most successful parade which had been held under the auspices of the league.

KRIS KRINGLE MISSED PARADE.

Fort Hamilton Police Horse Died While It Was Going On.

Kris Kringle, one of the horses at the Fort Hamilton Police Station, died yesterday morning, just at the time a number of his companions in police work for the past fifteen years were winning prizes in the work horse parade.

Mounted Patrolman James P. Neftor went to the stall occupied by Kris Kringle yesterday morning and found the old horse lying ill on the floor of his stall. A veterinary was called and he did his best to save the horse but his efforts were unsuccessful.

FOG HAMPERS THE FRANCE.

Made an Average Speed of 22 Knots—Mrs. Atherton Returns.

The French liner France arrived yesterday afternoon with 178 first, 313 second, and 914 third class passengers after making the passage from Havre in 5 days 20 hours at an average speed of 22 knots an hour. Her best day's run was 575 miles from noon Tuesday to noon Wednesday at an average speed of 23.18 knots. Capt. Poncelet said that she would have averaged 23 knots for the voyage if she had not been delayed by fog.

Among her passengers was Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, the novelist, who has been abroad for ten weeks. She spent a good deal of the time in working on a new novel. She said that it was her intention at once to start for the West to visit the small town where the scene of the novel was laid. Mrs. Atherton declined to tell anything about her new story except to say that it would not be about suffrage.

The show cases in the corridor and lounge on the upper promenade deck of the France were filled with works of modern French art including vases, drinking flagons, tapestries, and a novelty in the shape of a necklace which, it was said, was made from hair plucked from a royal Burmese elephant's tail.

GRABBED RUNAWAY BY NOSE

Policeman Was Dragged 150 Feet Before He Stopped Team.

By seizing the nose of one of a team of runaway horses and holding on while he was dragged 150 feet, Sergeant Thomas J. O'Grady, of the Tremont Station succeeded in stopping the animals at 171st Street and Webster Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon. The driver of the truck, Amedo Robeniti, of 2,233 First Avenue, had been thrown from his seat and was hanging to the wagon tongue, between the horses, when the policeman ran to stop them. He was thrown to the ground on one side of the truck before the horses were brought to a standstill. Both the driver and O'Grady were bruised and scratched, but neither was seriously injured.

The horses were hit by an automobile and started running up Webster Avenue, at 169th Street. At 170th Street they passed a north-bound Webster Avenue surface car, on which Sergeant O'Grady was riding. He saw the driver fall from his seat. Running to the front platform of the car, he told the motorman to put on full speed and catch up with the runaways. As the car got even with the truck, O'Grady jumped off and seized the nearer horse by the nostrils.

AUTO BREAKS HIS LEG.

Memorial Day Visitor from Ossining Hurt in the Bronx.

Ehrich Luiblaum came yesterday from his home at 115 Main Street, Ossining, N. Y., to attend the Memorial Day celebration in New York. Afterward he went to visit a daughter in the Bronx. As he was crossing Southern Boulevard at Fordham Road an automobile struck him, knocking him down and breaking his right leg. He was picked up by Patrolman King of the Bronx Park Police Station and carried to the Fordham Hospital.

The automobile was owned by Mrs. Phebe Van Voast, a physician, of 352 East 200th Street, and was driven by Mrs. Dora S. Bogart. As Mrs. Bogart, it was said, was running the automobile without a license, a summons was served, ordering her to appear this morning in the Morrisania Court.

Prison for Two "Joy Riders."

WASHINGTON, May 30.—"Joy riding" by irresponsible persons in automobiles "borrowed" from their owners received a decided setback when Seymour Anderson, a negro youth, was taken to-day to the penitentiary to serve a three-year term for such an infringement of the law and Charles Jefferson, a negro chauffeur for Representative Mondell of Wyoming, began a six-months' sentence for a similar infraction.

No Waterbury Divorce Yet.

PORTLAND, Me., May 30.—The announcement that Mrs. Lawrence J. Waterbury of New York had obtained a decree of divorce was at least premature, as Judge Haley still has the case under advisement.

SELF-STYLED BARON PUZZLES NEW YORK

Firms Here Unable to Account for Le Gay's Assertion That He Is an Agent of China.

NOW HE HAS DISAPPEARED

Posed on Shipboard as a Parisian Doctor with a Plan to Found $7,250,000 Sanitarium.

John Allan Townshend, who came to this city not long ago from London, and who lives at 319 Court Street, Brooklyn, is anxious to learn the whereabouts of Capt. Charles E. Etti, also known as Dr. Etti of Paris and as Baron Charles Le Gay, who, Mr. Townshend says, represented himself to be a purchasing commissioner for the republic of China and the ordnance officer of the Chinese army.

Mr. Townshend first met Baron Le Gay on the steamship Majestic, which sailed from Southampton on April 30 and arrived in New York on May 8. On the ship the "Baron" was known as Dr. Charles E. Elli, and his name so appeared on the second cabin passenger list. He said he was a Parisian physician and that he was going to America to build a large sanitarium at La Paz, Mexico, which was to cost $7,250,000. He offered to make Eugene Paul Metour of 53 Mackay Avenue, Port Washington, L. I., architect of the sanitarium. To W. Hardenburg, another steamship acquaintance, a civil engineer, he proposed to give the contract for the construction of the building. Learning that Mr. Townshend had been employed by the Indian Government in connection with medical research work he offered to make him his private secretary.

None of these men, it was said yesterday, considered the "Doctor's" offers seriously, as Mr. Metour, who is familiar with Paris and Parisian physicians, trapped "Dr. Elli" in several misstatements. Their confidence was not restored when he exhibited a custom slip on his arrival here which purported to show that he had paid $180 duty on surgical instruments.

Three days after landing Mr. Townshend was standing at Broadway and Forty-fifth Street, conversing with two fellow-pasengers, Mr. and Mrs. Philbey of Boston, when "Dr. Elli" met him and told him that he had a job in view for him. The "Doctor" told Mr. Townshend to meet him the next Monday morning at the Hotel Knickerbocker, saying that he always lunched there. Mr. Townshend kept the appointment, but "Dr. Elli" failed to appear. Two nights later, Mr. Townshend met his steamship acquaintance in a Broadway restaurant and the "Doctor" was profuse in his apologies, saying that he had been prevented from keeping the previous appointment. A second engagement was made for the next day at the Eastern Hotel in Battery Place.

There the "Doctor" confided to Mr. Townshend that he was really "Baron Charles Le Gay," an ordnance officer in the Chinese Army and a purchasing commissioner for the Chinese Government and the "Reform Organization of China." He obtained desk room in the Offices of the International Realty and Business Exchange in the Longacre Building, at Forty-second Street and Broadway.

The realty company was organized some time ago to dispose of realty holdings comprising the residue of the once large estate of W. Newton Bennington, noted as a turfman and stock operator. Mr. Bennigton was discharged more than a year ago from the Middletown State Homeopathic Hospital, of which he was an inmate for five years, and, with the assistance of John Bittner, proprietor of the Eastern Hotel, he began the task of managing his fortune. Mr. Bennigton is President of the International Realty and Business Exchange, but Mr. Bittner says he is President and Treasurer, conducts most of the business of the corporation.

"Baron Le Gay" gave Mr. Bittner the same account of himself that he gave to Mr. Townshend, and he showed them documents covered with seals and inscribed with Chinese characters. Mr. Townshend learned that one of his duties as Secretary was to obtain members for a branch of the "Reform Organization of China," which was to be established in this country. Exporters were to be invited to join the association on the payment of $50. This payment insured to such exporters part of the orders obtained on behalf of the Chinese association by "Baron LeGay." Townshend was to retain $5 from each initiation fee obtained as his commission. He was to be assistant editor of a trade paper to be published by the organization for its members, and to be known as the East and West Review, and he was to receive a generous commission for all advertisements which he obtained from American manufacturers and exporters. Under his contract he was to receive $18 a week on a drawing account.

Mr. Townshend accepted the place offered to him, but he did not obtain any members for the association. Meantime, both he and Mr. Bittner became suspicious of the "Baron," and Mr. Townshend asked the Chinese Consul in this city about him. He was told that the "Baron" had shown no credentials there to uphold his assertion that he was an agent of the Chinese Government. Last Saturday Mr. Bittner ousted the "Baron" from his office, and since then the man has disappeared.

For three days a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES has been tracing the "Baron's" movements in this city to ascertain whether he succeeded in establishing relations with any of the firms he visited. The reporter found that the man had approached twelve concerns in this city.

Vice President Babcock of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, dealers in machinery, when asked about the supposed Baron's relations with his firm, summoned Mr. Clark, one of the concern's sales managers. Mr. Clark said that the "Baron" had introduced himself as an ordinance engineer of the Chinese Army, and had sought prices on milling machines and cranes for arsenal purposes. He demanded confirmation of prices quoted, Mr. Clark asserted, and obtained such information as he requested, although his credibility was questioned because of his apparent lack of technical knowledge. In negotiating for certain milling machinery, the "Baron" was unable to give exact specifications to Mr. Clark as to the nature of the machines desired and his representtions were not considered seriously thereafter.

An officer of the Shaw Electric Crane Company, a subsidiary concern of the Manning, Maxwell & Moore Company, told the reporter that "Baron Le Gay" had visited his office. To this officer, the "Baron" presented an impressive card with gold beveled edges, bearing his name in Chinese characters on the back.

"I do not know what his motive was in approaching this corporation," said Mr. Babcock, "because he must have known that we would not ship any machinery until the transaction was confirmed and his credit was established. I believe that what he desired was correspondence upon our letterheads."

At the Chinese Consulate at 18 Broadway it was said that many inquiries had been made concerning the "Baron" and his reliability.

It was found that the "Baron" had attempted to enter into negotiations with a large gun manufacturing concern in lower Broadway, and with an electric clock company, as well as a steel construction firm.

A. Kessel, Jr., President of the New York Motion Picture Company, told the reporter that the "Baron" had sought to have him ship a supply of films to a Hong Kong firm on a bill of lading at two months' acceptance, but that he had refused to do so, saying that it was a rule of the company to do business on a strictly cash basis.

At the Hotel Astor, where the "Baron" asserted he had quarters, it was said that he had never registered there.

"He called here on one or two occasions to see a prominent Japanese who was stopping with us," an official said. "He told this man that he had been at one time an interpreter at the American Legation at Tokio, but the Japanese did not believe this story because the self-styled 'Baron' spoke Japanese imperfectly. Soon afterward mail began to come here addressed to him in our care, but we declined to handle it and returned it to the Post Office. It is a rule of the house not to accept mail for a person who is not registered and about whom we know nothing."

The "Baron" is said by those who have met him to be short of stature and of slender build. He has dark eyes, black hair, and a sallow complexion. He is smooth-shaven and has two prominent front teeth. He dresses neatly, but is not ostentatious either in manner or garb. He speaks French and German fluently and has a slight knowledge of Japanese. English he speaks with a pronounced accent. He said he was familiar with Chinese, but gave no evidence of such knowledge when he visited the Consulate in this city.

CHILD PARALYSIS SPREADS.

Mortality Percentage, Too, Larger Than in 1911.

An increase in the percentage of deaths from infantile paralysis last year as compared to the number in 1911, and a tabulation showing the relative frequence of such deaths among various classes of the city, is shown in the weekly bulletin issued by the Department of Health to-day.

In 1912 504 cases were reported, with 57 deaths, a mortality of 11.1 per cent., and a case incidence of 9.8 per 100,000 of the population. In 1911 only 358 cases were reported, and there were 9 deaths, a case mortality of 2.5 per cent., and a case incidence of 7.2. The increase last year occurred chiefly in Manhattan, where the case incidence rose from 9.2 in 1911 to 14.4 per 100,000 in 1912. The bulletin explains that inasmuch as there were many delays of months or even one or two years in reports of cases by physicians, some of the cases for 1912 really began in 1911, but that discrepancy would be equalized by the operation of similar delays in 1911 and 1913.

The districts in Manhattan which exhibited a case incidence equal to or exceeding that for the whole borough, and the percentage of such cases in various classes of the citizenship, are set forth in the bulletin as follows:

Below Fortieth Street, east and west, not considering the almost purely business district, the incidence slightly exceeded the borough figure, running a little heavier on the east side. Above Fortieth Street, and extending to 125th Street, on the east side, the figures were relatively very high, 28 per 100,000 of population, as compared to 14 for the borough. The remaining portion of Manhattan, i. e., western and northern above Fortieth Street, had a case incidence of about 7 per 100,000 of population. As regards nationality, Jews from Russia, Hungary, Austria, (Poland,) Germany, and Bohemia, furnished 40 per cent. of the cases, Italians 20 per cent., Irish 8 per cent., Americans 25 per cent., the small remainder being scattered among Germans, English, West Indians, and French. That the more congested centres of population would be principally involved, was in a way to be expected, though it is not always so with other infectious diseases.

There were 1,572 deaths from all causes, and a death rate of 15.27 per 1,000 of the population in the last week, as against 1,471 deaths and a rate of 14.83 in the corresponding week of 1912, an increase of 101 deaths and .44 of a point in the rate.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Anvils Too Tiny for Use Must Pay More Duty—Cut in Caskets.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday overruled a protest by W. A. Brown & Co., relating to the classification under the Tariff act of 1909, of diminutive steel anvils, nickel-plated, intended for distribution by the Swedish Iron and Steel Corporation to customers for use as paperweights. Collector Loeb assessed 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199, as manufactures of metal not specially provided for. The importers asked to pay 1½ cents a pound under Paragraph 140, covering anvils. Judge Fischer held that the anvils were so tiny that they were incapable of being put to practical use.

A protest by Flowers, Anderson & Co. of Chicago was sustained on wooden jewel caskets covered with surface-coated paper, and lined with cotton velvet, or silk. The Collector returned them under Paragraph 418, act of 1909, at 45 per cent. ad valorem, as boxes. The importers advanced Paragraph 411, on boxes of wood or other material, covered with surface-coated paper. Sustaining this, the board held that the duty should have been at 5 cents a pound and 30 per cent. ad valorem.

The board also sustained Corsi, Zumstag & Co. on hinged tin cigarette boxes, imported empty. Collector Loeb exacted 4 cents a pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem on boxes printed lithographically. The importers asked 60 per cent. under Paragraph 475 on smokers' articles.

Everyone has read or heard of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde", Robert Louis Stevenson's wonderful story of double personality. It was the literary sensation of its day.

Here is another story, different of course, but with the same theme and the same intense interest.

The Girl With Two Selves

By F. H. COSTELLO

JOHN HAMIL, American gentlemen traveling abroad, is claimed as her husband by a lovely girl he has never seen before. He falls in love with her almost at first sight, but just then an extraordinary transformation takes place in her personality. Her whole identity changes, and she no longer cares for him. The clearing up of this strange situation makes an altogether unusual story.

WEATHER PROVERBS SHOWN TO BE SOUND

Lunar Control of Weather Limited —Unerring Prescience of Fishermen and Woodsmen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The idea that old weather proverbs and traditional natural signs are of no value, in these days of scientific weather forecasting, is not sustained by such an authority as W. J. Humphreys, professor of meteorological physics in the United States Weather Bureau. In an article entitled, "Some Useful Weather Proverbs," printed in the year book of the Department of Agriculture, just issued, he gives credit to the weather prescience of fishermen, woodsmen and others who make a practice of depending upon natural signs to give them knowledge of impending weather changes.

Prof. Humphreys says a good word for such old-time proverbs as "Frost year, fruit year; year of snow fruit will grow," and "A year of snow, a year of plenty."

"That these and similar statements commonly are true," he writes, "is evident from the fact that a more or less continuous covering of snow, incident to a cold winter, not only delays the blossoming of fruit trees till after the probable season of killing frosts, but also prevents that alternate thawing and freezing so ruinous to fruit and Winter grains. In short, as another proverb put it, 'A late Spring never deceives.'

"A red sun has water in his eye," is well founded, according to Prof. Humphreys. He gives a scientific explanation showing that a red sun commonly indicates the presence of rain elements.

"If the evening sky, not far up, but near the western horizon, be yellow, greenish, or some other short wave-length color, then all the greater is the chance for clear weather, for these colors indicate even less condensation, and therefore a drier air than does red. Hence we can accept the following lines from Shakespeare as the expression of a general truth:

> The weary sun hath made a golden set,
> And by the bright track of his fiery car
> Gives token of a goodly day to-morrow.

"If, however, the evening sky has none of these colors, but is overcast with a uniform gray, then we know that numerous water droplets are present, and that the dust particles, in spite of the heat they absorbed from sunshine, have become loaded with much moisture. Obviously, then, to produce this effect the atmosphere at considerable elevations must be practically saturated, a condition that favors rain and justifies the familiar proverbs:

> If the sun set in gray
> The next will be a rainy day.
>
> If the sun goes pale to bed
> 'Twill rain to-morrow, it is said.

Prof. Humphreys says that many proverbs foretelling rain and bad weather are based on the appearance of solar and lunar halos and coronas, and as these form only when there is much moisture in the air and some condensation the proverbs of this class are well founded.

"The nearer the ring the bigger the wet," is one of these. A halo that appears small, he explains, is due to clouds far removed from the storm that produced them, while one that seems large, since it is caused by relatively low and therefore slow-moving clouds, usually indicates that the storm is comparatively near.

Prof. Humphreys proceeds to demolish one old belief about the weather.

"Many people have supposed, and some still hold, that the moon appreciably controls the weather, and there are numerous proverbs based on this assumed relation. But careful study of the records shows that the moon's influence on the weather, beyond a very small tidal effect on the atmosphere, as indicated by the barometer, is negligible, if, indeed, it has any influence at all."

However, the appearance of the moon depends upon the conditions of the atmosphere, and therefore proverbs based upon phenomena of the natural, he says, are more or less sound, and have much value.

"Clear moon, frost soon," "moonlight night has the heaviest frosts," and others of this class are true enough, he says, "because on the clearest nights the cooling of the earth's surface by radiation is greatest, and hence most likely to cause, through the low temperature reached, precipitation in the form of dew or frost."

Prof. Humphreys defers to the saying that "sharp horns do threaten windy weather," and gives the following explanation of this weather sign:

"When the air is clear bad seeing is due to atmospheric inequalities, which the free mixing by winds will eliminate. When the moon's horns appear sharp—that is, when the seeing is good—we know that these inequalities do not exist, and the natural inference is that they have been smoothed out by strong overrunning winds, which later may reach the surface of the earth."

There are many more old sayings about the weather explained by Prof. Humphreys, who finds in most of them a good deal of truth and wisdom.

BUTCHERS COMPLAIN.

Say Conditions Make Them Sell Meat at a Loss.

According to figures compiled by Philip Storminger, President of the Bronx Master Butchers' Association, the high price of meat brings hardship not alone to the public, but also to the retailers, who complain that they are transacting business without profit. William T. Hornidge, Secretary of the New York State Association of United Master Butchers, last night made public statistics in support of the contention that retailers were contronted by a situation which would force many out of business unless they got relief.

The present average prices of meat prevailing in New York were made the basis for the inquiry. A forty-pound lamb carcass at 17 cents a pound cents, the retailers $6.80. To this, Mr. Hornidge says, must be added the cost of doing business, figured at 17 per cent. of $6.80, or $1.15. The carcass is cut up and sold at retail as follows:

| Lbs. | Oz. | Cuts. | Retail Price. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 12 | 12 | Legs | at 20c | $2.55 |
| 12 | 0 | Chucks | at 14c | 1.68 |
| 4 | 4 | Rib chops | at 25c | 1.07 |
| 1 | 12 | Breast | at 12c | .21 |
| 3 | 8 | Haslets | at 15c each | .15 |
| 0 | 12 | Set Sticks | at .. | ... |
| 1 | 4 | Waste | at .. | ... |
| 40 | | | | $6.79 |
| Cost | | | | $6.80 |
| Sold at | | | | 6.79 |

Cost of doing business, 17 per cent. of $6.80=$1.15.
Loss on each lamb, $1.16.

For a 600-pound steer, the retailer pays 12½ cents a pound, or $81. The transaction from retailer to consumer, according to the retailers, is as follows:

|---|---|---|---|---|
| 40 | 8 | Sirloin steak | at 24c | $9.72 |
| 84 | 8 | Porterhouse | at 28c | 9.66 |
| 26 | 12 | Top sirloin | at 19c | 5.09 |
| 26 | 0 | Round steak | at 25c | 6.50 |
| 23 | 0 | Bottom round | at 20c | 4.60 |
| 20 | 0 | Rump | at 14c | 2.80 |
| 9 | 0 | Flank | at 16c | 1.44 |
| 9 | 0 | Leg beef | at 15c | 1.35 |
| 7 | 0 | Hornshoe | at 16c | 1.12 |
| 4 | 0 | Flank steak | at 18c | .72 |
| 16 | 4 | Chuck rib | at 15c | 2.45 |
| 15 | 4 | Plate rib | at 18c | 2.75 |
| 29 | 0 | Prime rib | at 20c | 5.80 |
| 43 | 0 | Chuck steak | at 18c | 7.74 |
| 27 | 4 | Cross rib | at 18c | 4.91 |
| 11 | 12 | Shoulder beef | at 18c | 2.12 |
| 6 | 12 | Shin beef | at 15c | 1.02 |
| 40 | 0 | Soup chuck | at 16c | 6.40 |
| 37 | 0 | Breast beef | at 12c | 4.44 |
| 54 | 0 | Plate and navels | at 9c | 4.86 |
| 2 | 0 | Beef kidneys | at 16c | .32 |
| 18 | 0 | Beef suet | at 5c | .90 |
| 60 | 0 | Shop fat | at 2½c | 1.65 |
| 600 | | | | $88.36 |
| Cost | | | | $1.00 |

Profit ..... $7.36
Loss ..... $6.41

Of the staple meats, veal remains. The carcass of a 100-pound calf at 17 cents costs $17 at wholesale. As in the case of beef and lamb, Mr. Hornidge purports to prove that the retailers take a loss as follows:

| Lbs. | Oz. | Cuts. | Retail Price. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 14 | 0 | Veal cutlet | at 28c | $3.92 |
| 6 | 0 | Bones | at .. | ... |
| 6 | 0 | Boneless veal | at 20c | 1.20 |
| 11 | 8 | Rump | at 20c | 2.30 |
| 16 | 8 | Shoulder | at 16c | 2.64 |
| 10 | 8 | Breast | at 16c | 1.68 |
| 9 | 4 | Rib chops | at 24c | 2.22 |
| 8 | 0 | Loin chops | at 24c | 1.92 |
| 8 | 0 | Neck | at 14c | 1.12 |
| 9 | 8 | Skin | at 26c | 2.47 |
| 100 | | | | $19.47 |
| Cost | | | | 17.00 |

Cost of doing business, 17 per cent. of $17 ..... $2.89
Profit ..... 2.47
Loss ..... .42

Mr. Hornidge says that retailers are continuing in trade solely in the expectation that conditions will improve.

Contractors Will Help One Another

Contractors of the Bronx, engaged in excavation work, met yesterday in the club house of the P. J. Kane Association, at 602 Westchester Avenue, and organized the Bronx Contractors' Association. One purpose of the organization will be to extend the credit and assistance of members to each other for mutual protection against dishonest contractors and builders and for the improvement of business conditions. These officers were elected: President, J. B. Malatesta; Vice Presidents, P. Indelli and Louis Smith; Secretary, S. Peloso, and Treasurer, J. Figliuolo.

Of this the total of American is 2,653,685 against, 2,797,392 last week, and 3,025,774 last year.

AUTO ROUTE FROM BOSTON TO PORTLAND

Regular Road Is Under Repair, So Maine Association Gives an Alternate.

Some motorists have gone to Maine already for the Spring fishing and others doubtless will be following them soon for the Summer sojourn. It is for the convenience of these tourists that the Maine Automobile Association has outlined a route between Boston and Portland through its touring bureau. The main line between the two cities, by way of York, Portsmouth, Newburyport and Newburyport turnpike, is being rebuilt at intervals all along the route. The alternate suggested by the Maine association for use until July 1, at least, is as follows, beginning at Portland:

Take the main road to Biddeford and turn right at Five Corners to Alfred Road and a large yellow sign. One mile beyond, turn left to the so-called Mountain Road to Kennebunk and Wells; there turn right, around the Post Office and past Wells Beach railroad station to North Berwick. Go through South Berwick to Dover and then, at Dover Point, bear right into Newington, Greenland, Northampton, Saybrook and Smithtown. There turn sharply to the right and continue through Amesbury, Merrimac, Haverhill and Bradford. From this place to North Andover take the road leading out of Essex Street, leaving Great Pond on the right. At Soldiers' Monument, Andover, bear left into the square and from this point on follow the straight road into Boston through Reading, Stoneham and the Fellsway into Somerville, and on through Cambridge. The route can simply be reversed traveling from Boston.

A novel use for a motor truck is as a sample truck for traveling salesmen. A truck is in use for this service by a San Antonio, Texas, company, and replaces the former canvas-covered wagon of four-mule power. The first trip of 250 miles proved entirely successful, it is said.

***

One of the odd sights on Fifth Avenue recently has been a big limousine which carries on its front seat two men, one the chauffeur, in ordinary sack suit and cap, the other a footman, in livery and beaver. The gulf, socially, between the chauffeur and the footman was bottomless, to judge from the manner of the former.

According to A. Elliot Ranney, an automobile dealer here, there is more power to be derived from low-grade than from high-grade gasoline.

"The power of gasoline," he said yesterday, "is measured by the number of B. T. U., or British Thermal Units, it contains. There are more of these heat units in low-grade gasoline than in fuel of a higher grade, and there are more in kerosene than in gasoline of any grade, so that if kerosene ever becomes a popular fuel, it will show more power per gallon than the present fluid. The power of an engine depends more on design, however, than on the quality of the fuel used."

GOLD YIELD $5,000,000.

Klondike Records Since 1907 Broken, with Brighter Prospects for 1913.

Gold yield from the Klondike last year was the largest since 1907, reaching the handsome sum of $5,225,235, according to a report to the Department of Commerce at Washington from Consul George C. Cole, stationed at Dawson City. The 1907 yield, only $2,983,835, was the lowest since the fields were discovered, but since then the output has been of increasing value, with prospects for 1913 of reaching the $6,000,000 mark.

Of the more than $5,000,000 yield of 1912, all the bullion but $1,000,000 was shipped to the United States, Mr. Cole says. He gives this table, showing the exports invoiced at the American Consulate at Dawson for shipment in 1912, compared with those of 1911:

"While the Yukon Gold Company," continues Mr. Cole, "will operate the same number of dredges this year as last, it will also increase the capacity of its hydraulic plants so as to handle a much larger quantity of gravel. The Canadian-Klondyke Mining Company will have its two new dredges in operation this season, which will more than double the output of last year, as they have a capacity of handling 10,000 cubic yards each daily. The two dredges, located on the waters of the Fortymile River, were in rich gravel at the beginning of March of this year, and give promise of good returns for 1913. From other smaller plants are expected greater results this season than in 1912.

"The Lone Star Company, Ltd., has been mining some rich ore, and it is now operating a four-stamp mill. For September, 1912, the production of this mine averaged $3.74 to the ton, mine run, and the total cost of operation was $2.81, leaving a net profit of 93 cents per ton. The facilities for mining and handling the ore are not the best at present, and when the necessary improvements are made the operating expenses will be greatly reduced.

"High-grade ore has been found on Stewart River, and it will be thoroughly tested this season. Should it prove what is claimed for it in quantity and quality it will equal the Cripple Creek or Leadville mines of Colorado.

"The Five Fingers Coal Company did a fair business last season, supplying the domestic trade as well as some of the steamers. The Northern Light, Power and Coal Company mined more coal in 1912 than in any previous year, and there was a ready sale for all coal mined over that used for light and power purposes. The demand for coal in Dawson for domestic use is greater than ever, and it retails at $13.50 and $15 per ton.

"Potatoes constitute the principal farm crop raised here, and the output is sufficient to supply about one-half the quantity consumed. The home grown retail at five cents per pound, while imported ones retail at eight cents per pound. Cabbage, cauliflower, celery, lettuce, carrots, and turnips of fine quality are also extensively raised."

Travel Service That Satisfies

The Lehigh Valley Railroad, New York to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, enjoys the unique reputation of dropping its passengers down at their destinations—unwearied of body, untravel-stained, happy and contented.

Physical facts are responsible for this reputation.

Lehigh Valley trains are the last word in railroad construction, in comfort and travel luxury. The highest degree of care for bodily welfare is constantly maintained.

Piercing the Blue Mountains of Pennsylvania the Lehigh crosses the backbone of the east—the Switzerland of America—rich in wonderful landscape pictures.

On either side of this great divide stretch valleys that are full of historic interest—the land formerly held by the Delaware Indians, the Mohawks, the Iroquois and the Oneidas famous in Cooper's Leather-Stocking Tales.

OPPOSE REOPENING OF MONEY INQUIRY

Wilson and Underwood Also Against Embodying Pujo Remedies in Currency Bill.

WANT NO OUTSIDE ISSUES

House Leaders Fear Their Inclusion Will Jeopardize Money Reform—Denial from Untermyer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Democratic leaders in the House of Representatives, to whom President Wilson will look for results when the proposed currency reform bill is brought forward for consideration, will not brook any interference with the plans of the party through the introduction of collateral issues relating to monetary matters.

On this score they have in mind the embryonic movement in which Representative Robert Lee Henry of Texas, Democratic Chairman of the House Rules Committee, and Representative Charles A. Lindbergh of Minnesota are desirous of launching in the near future for a resumption of the investigation of the so-called money trust which the Pujo committee began in the Sixty-second Congress. Mr. Lindbergh is not a Democrat, and though he was elected to Congress as a Republican, he is acting and voting with the third party group in the House of Representatives He was the author of the resolution for an investigation of the concentration of money and credits alleged to exist in New York City, which resulted in the Pujo inquiry.

Representative Henry, as Chairman of the Rules Committee, presided over the sessions of that committee, before which Samuel Untermyer of New York appeared, and which ultimately resulted in the adoption by the House last year of a resolution directing the investigation. The Pujo Committee made what was described and intended to serve only as a preliminary report, suggesting therein that the investigation be resumed and continued in the present Sixty-third Congress.

Representative Henry is now drafting a resolution, which he will shortly introduce, providing for a reopening of the inquiry where it was left off by the Pujo Committee. It is understood that Mr. Henry thinks it important that this inquiry be resumed before any banking and currency legislation is enacted, so that Congress can have the benefit of such additional material as may be culled from further examination of witnesses along lines suggested by the Pujo report.

Mr. Henry is credited with believing that this investigation should be made by a special committee to be elected by the House. He is also drafting a Currency bill which will embrace some of the recommendations contained in the Pujo Committee's report.

For Excluding Such Legislation.

These statements have been brought to the attention of Representative Oscar W. Underwood and other Democratic leaders in the House. Like President Wilson, they do not look favorably upon the amalgamation of the Money Trust recommendations with the proposed Currency bill, and are also opposed to any Money Trust investigation at this time by a special committee.

The House leaders might countenance such a continuation of the Money Trust inquiry as the new Banking and Currency Committee itself might decide to make, but do not regard it as wise to start any such investigation by a special committee. The personnel of the House Banking and Currency Committee, though not yet announced, has been completed by those leaders of the House who are members of the Ways and Means Committee, and the Banking and Currency Committee can be counted on to work in harmony with President Wilson and Chairman Underwood on all matters relating to the proposed currency reforms.

Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, who is to be the Chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, in place of former Representative Pujo, is in harmony with the Administration on currency affairs. Mr. Glass does not think that any collateral matters should be associated with the Currency bill to delay its enactment or even jeopardize the success of the legislation.

One of the collateral issues which some members had thought of pressing for consideration with the Currency bill was the idea of providing a Federal guarantee for National bank deposits. Chairman Glass is now in favor of joining this matter with the Currency bill. If his ideas are followed, the bank guarantee proposal, if advanced, will be considered as a separate item of legislation after the propcsed currency law has been enacted.

The proposal of Messrs. Henry, Lindbergh, and a few others for a continuation of the Pujo Money Trust inquiry, and the incorporation of certain of the Pujo Committee recommendations into the Currency bill, is the other collateral matter that the House leaders are prepared to oppose as an outside issue that might jeopardize the Currency bill.

The House leaders feel that the consideration of legislation based on the recommendations of the Money Trust investigators should be undertaken separately on its own merits.

DENIAL FROM UNTERMYER.

Not Planning Legislation Based on Pujo Money Report, He Says.

Samuel Untermyer issued the following statement yesterday relative to a Washington dispatch published in New York newspapers with respect to currency legislation:

"There is no foundation for the stories except that while in Washington Tuesday on a professional engagement I paid a social visit to Congressman Henry. We did not discuss the currency. I have never discussed that subject with him, nor am I in favor of or in any way concerned with him or anyone else in endeavoring to embody the reforms recommended by the Pujo report in currency legislation or in postponing currency legislation.

"I am, on the contrary, most anxious to see currency legislation enacted at the present session, and have repeatedly so expressed myself when approached on the subject by members of Congress. I do not believe that it should be complicated or made the subject of controversy by linking with it the proposed bills recommended by the Pujo committee. They can well await the regular session, where they can secure the study and discussion to which their importance entitles them. They embody essential reforms in our archaic banking laws and financial system, and I have no doubt of their eventual passage, but they have no necessary relation to currency.

"Prompt action on the currency is of paramount importance at the moment to offset the temporary disturbances that will necessarily accompany the enactment of the Tariff bill. Nothing will do so much to stimulate business confidence. Nobody but a vicious marplot would deliberately seek to delay or complicate that result under the existing tense and delicate conditions, which demand immediate relief.

"I hope such a bill will be passed, even if it becomes necessary, by reason of the hasty consideration involved, to perfect and supplement it by further legislation at the regular session, so as to complete a comprehensive system of financial reform. The New York financial interests are so obsessed by the fear that the Stock Exchange and Clearing Houses will be subjected to incorporation and regulation that their industrious press bureaus see a 'nigger in the woodpile.' There could be no better evidence of the great and increasing recognition of the value of the work of the Pujo committee than the continuous campaign of abuse to which it and those connected with it are being subjected from certain directions. Happily, the people are not fools."

Japan's Cotton Imports Increase.

Imports of American cotton into Japan in 1912 amounted to 249,631,600 pounds, according to Consul General Thomas Sammons of Yokohama, as compared with 98,236,800 pounds in the previous year. Exports of cotton goods from that country in 1912 were valued at $44,303,365, compared with a valuation of $35,425,936 in 1911. Of these exports nearly $11,000,000 worth went to China, supplying in a large measure the trade that formerly drew its merchandise from the United States and Great Britain. Australia, Hawaii and the Philippines were also buyers of Japanese cottons and yarns, according to Mr. Sammons.

LACE IMPORTERS PROTEST.

Say New Appraisement Rules Will Raise Embroidery Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A delegation representing the Lace and Embroidery Importers' Association of New York, had a hearing before the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, J. F. Curtiss, yesterday, to protest against the new regulations in regard to the appraisement of Swiss embroideries. These regulations are the result of a long and technical inquiry into the methods of valuation abroad, and the practices in making up invoices for exportation to the United States.

A new set of regulations, effective July 1, will modify appraisements of thirty-four different classes of laces and embroideries. The effect of these new regulations will be an advance in amount of duties amounting to 30 per cent. Six of the thirty-four articles were made the subject of a protest by the New York association.

The delegation was headed by Max Newburger of Newburger & Co. There was no discussion of the details involved in the matter, as the Treasury officials here desired to have the advice of the appraisers in the New York Custom House. The brief filed by the delegation was forwarded at once to New York for examination and report.

WORKERS HAVE FIELD DAY.

2,000 from Macy's at Sheepshead Bay—Bloomingdales Entertain.

Two thousand women employes of R. H. Macy & Co. had a field day at Sheepshead Bay race track yesterday. They assembled at the Brooklyn Bridge at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and boarded two trains reserved for them. There were morning and afternoon games.

About 150 juniors participated in the fifty-yard dash. Mary Milan, the winner of the first prize, made her run in 6 3-5 seconds and received a gold watch.

About 200 girls entered in the 100-yard dash. Three prizes were awarded, Mary Stigenbauer captured the first prize—a silver meshbag; Helen Manning, the winner of the second prize, got a pair of silk stockings; and Helen Connolly received a bottle of perfume.

This concluded the morning games and luncheon was served. In the afternoon there was a sack race, won by Anna Coyne, and a three-legged race, won by Anna Klein and Celia Ginsberg.

The funniest game of all, which brought forth a roar of laughter from the entire crowd, was the obstacle race. The signal given, the contestants scrambled through barrels, then underneath a large blanket, jumped over half a dozen crisscross ropes, ran about fifty yards, and jumped through a large hoop. Dorothy Kennedy captured the first prize, a gold watch; Margaret Goldstein, a silver manicure set, and Freda Podusney, a set of books.

The last game played was the shoe race. Those who participated were obliged to remove their shoes, which were collected and thrown in a heap. The girls made a scramble for their shoes, endeavoring to put them on and run for the goal. Hannah Singer won.

Sylvester Fyrnes, general manager, and Percy Straus of the firm motored from Red Bank, N. J., to view the games.

The junior employes of Bloomingdale Brothers assembled behind the closed doors of the big store on Fifty-ninth Street yesterday to participate in the annual frolic provided for them by the firm. At 9:30 the merry crowd entered wagons and cars and, accompanied by a band, started on a sightseeing tour of the city. The party returned to the store at noon and refreshments were served to the accompaniment of a band concert. Following a session of romps and games the company, in charge of seniors, marched to a neighboring theatre where they enjoyed a vaudeville programme largely made up in their honor.

STUPENDOUS GAINS OF EXPORT TRADE

Total for Past Ten Months $2,107,873,911—Greatest Ever Known.

INCREASE OF $217,165,302

Gain in Manufactures Alone Is $154,086,415—Europe, Canada, and Mexico Best Buyers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Officers of the Government are elated over the rapid extension of the American export trade during the past ten months. During the period beginning July 1, 1912, and ended with May 1, 1913, the grand total value of American exports was $2,107,873,911, as compared, with $1,890,708,608 during the corresponding ten months of the fiscal year 1912.

On all exports this represented an increase of $217,165,302, or nearly a quarter of a billion dollars increase in ten months. Already, with the two months of May and June yet to be heard from, American exports have thus far this year gone ahead of the grand total of any entire previous year in the history of the country.

Particularly gratifying is the showing for the export trade in American manufactures. The total value of the exports of manufactures alone for the ten months was $1,253,201,623, as compared with $1,099,115,208 during the corresponding period in 1912. These figures show an increase in exports of manufactures alone of $154,086,415.

Average Increase of $15,000,000 a Month.

This is an average increase per month of $15,000,000 and means that throughout this ten-month period the increase in American manufactures exported was at the average rate of $500,000 daily. With sixty-one days of the months of May and June yet to be heard from, this rate of increase, if maintained until the end of the current fiscal year, will add approximately $30,500,000 more to the increase in manufactures exported and swell the total increase for the year to about $184,586,415.

The details, however, as submitted to Secretary Redfield by the statistical experts of his department, are even more interesting. There is a falling off in the total exports of manufactured foodstuffs of a little over $4,000,000, but there is an increase in exports of manufactures for further use in manufacturing of more than $62,000,000 for the ten months, and in the item of manufactures ready for use there is an increase in excess of $96,000,000.

| Exports. | 1912. | 1913. |
|---|---|---|
| Foodstuffs, manufactured | $275,847,856 | $271,726,527 |
| Manufactures for further use in manufacturing | 278,403,749 | 340,478,584 |
| Manufactures finished ready for use | 544,863,603 | 640,996,512 |
| Total manufactures | $1,099,115,208 | $1,253,201,623 |
| Foodstuffs, crude, and food animals | 92,769,669 | 161,761,083 |
| Crude materials for use in manufacturing | 666,509,260 | 655,178,548 |
| Miscellaneous | 6,949,357 | 7,228,524 |
| Total domestic exports | $1,865,343,494 | $2,077,279,778 |
| Foreign merchandise exported | 25,365,115 | 30,594,133 |
| Grand total exports | $1,890,708,609 | $2,107,873,911 |

There has been, therefore, an increase in our sales of manufactures for further use in manufacturing at the rate of more than $6,000,000 a month for the last ten months, and an increase at the same time in the single item of manufactures sold abroad, ready for use, at the rate of more than $9,600,000 a month.

It appears that in the lines where it is sometimes claimed America has the least competing power, the increase in her trade is greatest. Not only are our exports of manufactured goods making progress at the average rate, thus far through the fiscal year, of $5,000,000 every working day, but these sales have been increasing over former records at the rate of nearly $300,000 daily throughout the ten months thus far elapsed.

Volume for Ten Months, $3,655,913,374.

The total volume of our trade for the ten months, in both imports and exports, was $3,655,913,374. The imports amounted to $1,548,039,463, and the exports, $2,107,873,911, leaving a trade balance in our favor for the ten months of $559,834,448. This is equal, if the same ratio is maintained through the last two months of the fiscal year, to a trade balance in our favor for the entire year, which will end on June 30 next, in excess of $670,000,000.

This means that we have been selling American manufactures in foreign markets at the rate of $125,000,000 monthly, and that American foreign sales of manufactured products are being made at the rate of $5,000,000 daily, not including Sundays and holidays. It is estimated that the sales for the twelve months which is to end June 30 will be $1,500,000,000 for the exports of American manufactures, exclusive of other exports of unmanufactured or crude products and foodstuffs not manufactured. This is greater than the aggregate value of all American exports of domestic merchandise ten years ago, which was $1,302,231,302 in the fiscal year 1903.

The foodstuffs partly or wholly manufactured in which these increases appear include such articles as flour, dried fruits, dairy products, canned vegetables, &c. The manufactures for further use in manufacturing include naval stores, wood in various forms, leather, steel bars, rods and the like, cement, copper, and similar articles, while the manufactures ready for use included a wide range of articles.

Breadstuffs Gained $64,000,000.

During the past ten months there has been an increase in the exports of breadstuffs amounting to more than $64,000,000, of which more than $32,000,000 is in exports of wheat flour. The exportation of automobiles has increased about $4,000,000. The exportation of cars for railways has increased more than $5,000,000. The increase in cement exports is in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. There is an increase of nearly $2,000,000 in exports of chemicals. The showing for exports of coal is an increase of more than $5,000,000. For pig copper the increase is around $30,000,000.

Cotton manufactures exported increased about $3,000,000, mainly in wearing apparel; but there was a slight falling off in exports of cotton cloths. More than a million increase is shown for earthenware exportations; more than $5,000,000 for electrical machinery; slight increases appear in fertilizers and explosives; an increase of more than $1,000,000 in manufactures of vegetable fibres; more than $1,000,000 increase in exports of fish products, mainly in salmon, oysters, herring, and cod; upward of $5,000,000 increase in fruits and nuts, mainly in canned fruits, prunes, oranges, and apples; about $2,000,000 increase in furs and their manufactures, and about $1,000,000 for glass manufactures.

For manufactures of India rubber the increase was more than $1,000,000; for enamel ware, including bath tubs, it was about $1,000,000; approximately $1,000,000 for firearms; nearly a million in exports of cash registers; about $2,000,000 in those of engines; more than $3,000,000 for exports of locomotives; more than $3,000,000 in exports of metal working machinery; more than $2,000,000 for milling machinery; approximately $2,000,000 for sewing machines; about $1,000,000 for sugar mill machinery; nearly $1,000,000 for typewriters, and for all kinds of machinery, including the preceding, the increase is more than $20,000,000 for the ten month period.

Steel Rails Gain $2,000,000.

The exports of steel rails amounted to more than $10,000,000, or an increase of more than $2,000,000. There was an increase of more than $2,000,000 in steel plate exports; about $3,000,000 increase in structural steel exports; about $2,000,000 for leather manufactures, besides an increase of about $3,000,000 in exports of boots and shoes; and there were slight increases in other leather products.

There was a falling off in exports of meats and dairy products, though hams show an increase of more than $1,000,000 in exportation and pickled pork an increase of nearly $500,000, while lard subsitutes gained over $2,000,000. Naval stores show a falling off of nearly $1,000,000, while mineral oils show a gain of more than $20,000,000, of which the increase for gas and fuel oil exceeded $3,000,000, naphthas and gasoline showing an increase of more than $8,000,000, illuminating oils an increase of more than $5,000,000, and lubricating oils an increase of about $4,000,000.

There was an increased exportation of paints amounting to nearly $1,000,000; an increase of more than $2,000,000 in exports of manufactures of paper; an increase of more than $2,000,000 in paraffin exports; a slight falling off in exports of photographic goods; an increase of more than $5,000,000 in silk manufactures; an increase of more than $2,000,000 in tobacco leaf; an increase of about $7,000,000 in wood and its manufactures, and of about $1,500,000 in manufactures of wool.

Europe and our North American neighbors proved to be the best American customers concerned in this growth of American trade. The increase in exports to Europe increased from $1,186,780,201 to $1,294,108,150, an increase of $107,327,951. The greatest growth of American trade with any European country was with the United Kingdom, with which our trade during the ten months was $524,259,531, an increase of $23,941,144. There was a notable extension of American trade with the Netherlands, where the increase amounted to $18,078,310 in ten months, placing that country second only to England in the growth of American exports. The amount sent there was $108,341,257.

The increase in our trade with Germany was $15,859,967, with France $12,499,647, with Italy $9,434,035, and with Belgium $13,180,011, while with Russia the increase was only $1,994,688.

Our trade with North American countries amounted to $508,181,320, almost what it was with the United Kingdom, an increase of $91,178,892, and $76,674,406 of this growth was in American exports to Canada. Our Asiatic exports aggregated $99,829,795, an increase of only $6,224,888. The export trade of the United States with China fell over $4,417,247, but with Japan our export business increased $2,412,050.

With South America our export business aggregated $122,128,475, an increase of $12,727,517, Brazil being our best customer there in point of increase. Brazil took $35,824,192 worth of American exports, an increase of $9,079,891. Argentina took a greater volume of American exports, aggregating $44,082,557, but this represented a loss of $1,597,013, compared with 1912.

QUEENS HAILS ELEVATED.

Elaborate Plans to Celebrate Signing of Contracts.

City officials, traction magnates, and others who have at heart the future of Queens after the completion of the elevated extensions of the dual rapid transit system there, and the assurance of the early opening of the Steinway tunnel, will co-operate with the people of Queens on next Saturday, when a celebration will be held at Long Island City to mark the signing of the contracts.

Bridge Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keefe has granted permission for the erection of a stand for speakers and a band at the Long Island end of the Queensboro Bridge. Borough President George A. McAneny of Manhattan, Chairman of the Rapid Transit Committee of the Board of Estimate, and Edward E. McCall, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, will be among the speakers. G. Howland Leavitt, Chairman of the general committee in charge of the event, has been assisted by several sub-committees, and the details of the celebration are now complete.

The programme includes the unveiling of tablets to be put on the first pillars constructed on the Astoria and Woodside-Corona extensions; the unfurling of a new flag symbolic of the history of the county; luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce at the Bridge Plaza, to which bankers, builders, manufacturers and civic workers have been invited.

Because of the widespread interest in the celebration the committee found it advisable to change one feature of the plans. It was intended to have the grand stand erected in the Thomson Hill section, more than half a mile from the bridge, but the committee, realizing that it would be difficult for the only traction company that operates there to handle the large crowds that are anticipated, decided to shift the centre of interest to the Long Island end of the bridge.

For the first time since the construction of the bridge the northern promenade will be open on that day at both ends. More than 100 automobiles have been placed at the disposal of the committee to convey people from the plaza to the scenes of the unveiling of the monuments on the Astoria and Woodside-Corona lines.

All parts of the borough are represented on the committee of more than 200 which is preparing for the event. Jamaica is represented by Robert W. Higbie, Chairman of the Executive Committee; Long Island City by William H. Williams, George J. Ryan, and Arunah Clonin, who are Chairmen of the Speakers', Automobile, and Grand Stand Committees; Woodside by Louis Windmüller, Chairman of the Music Committee; Corona by William J. Hamilton, Treasurer of the General Committee; Flushing by George W. Pople, Chairman of the Tickets Committee, and C. G. M. Thomas, Chairman of the Luncheon Committee.

Flushing men promise to show even more interest than they are taking now if the Board of Estimate, at its meeting next Thursday, gives its official sanction to the extension of the Corona line to Bayside. Every civic association in the district is co-operating in demanding the extension, and several members of the board have inspected the proposed route. George W. Pople, who has been foremost in agitating the matter, said yesterday that he was confident that the officials would approve of it.

"The people of Queens never had more reason to rejoice," said Mr. Pople, "than they have now over the beginning of work on the dual system and the assurance of the early opening of the Steinway Tunnel."

SALE OF 3,000 LOTS.

Old Morris Park Race Track Property to be Sold To-day.

Facilities unusual with public auctions will be provided for those who attend the sale of 3,000 building lots at Morris Park which begins this morning.

The ballroom of the old clubhouse has been arranged as the main salesroom, and a room has been set apart for the signing of papers and attending to the details in connection with the closing of purchases.

Joseph P. Day and J. Clarence Davies, who are handling the sale for the New York State Banking Department, realize that, with a sale extending over several days, there will be many persons who will want to attend, yet who will require some means of keeping in touch with their offices.

For their accommodation, a special room in the clubhouse has been equipped with telephones, so that one may keep in touch with his business affairs. Besides the members of Auctioneer Day's forces, who will be stationed throughout the salesrooms, there will be a special information bureau. Special accommodations have also been arranged for women.

Higher Wages for Trolleymen.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 30.—Motormen and conductors employed by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company will have their wages increased 1 cent an hour on Sept. 1, according to an announcement made by the company. When the increase goes into effect the rate of wages will be 24 to 29 cents an hour, according to the number of years the men have been in the company's service. A further increase is promised on Jan. 1.

London Market Flat—Quiet Trading in Paris—Good Tone in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, May 31.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"The demand for short money was active. Owing to several causes, the supply proved not quite adequate, it being necessary to borrow a small amount from the Bank for a week. Terms for loans extending over a month were perceptibly higher than they had been, because they cover June 30. The India Council raised the charge for monthly loans of 1-2 per cent. to 3 1-2 per cent. Discount quotations were unaltered. Bills were scarce, but not much sought for.

"Expectations of an early conclusion of peace failed to stimulate the stock markets at the outset, or to prevent a further decline in prices in the leading departments. Consols again lost ground, partly owing to the fact that the contango ruled appreciably stiffer than at the last account, and that renewed liquidation of Canadian Pacific shares was again in progress. With a two days' holiday in Wall Street, the American market was idle and dull in consequence. Toward the close the home railway market took a slight turn for the better, the recent liquidation having apparently come to an end. Elsewhere the flatness of Brazil Railway common was again a notable feature. Continental operators also sold foreign railway bonds to a moderate extent. The downward movement in Marconi shares was checked and a moderate rally ensued. In spite of vague talk of difficulties, the final arranging of the account was accomplished without trouble. The news of the signing of the preliminary treaty of peace was without effect in the house."

PARIS, May 30.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 85 francs 25 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, May 30.—Trading was restricted, but a good tone prevailed on the Bourse to-day. Shipping shares were again strong on the anouncement of higher steerage rates to Canada. The proposed increase in wages weakened Canadian Pacific.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

11,008. DRY DOCK.—The American Consul at Quebec has forwarded newspaper clippings calling for tenders for a dry dock to be built at Quebec for the Canadian Government. Bids will be received until June 23. Copy of the report accompanying the advertisement, as well as the advertisement itself, can be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

11,009. REINFORCED CONCRETE WAREHOUSES.—A report from an American Consul in Mexico states that a firm in his district will shortly give out contracts for the erection of four large reinforced concrete warehouses at that city. The necessary ground has already been purchased, and construction will be begun at once. Particulars can be secured by addressing the firm direct.

11,010. CHOCOLATE, COCOA, CARAMELS, AND CONFECTIONERY.—A business man in Italy informs an American consulate that he will be pleased to entertain offers from prominent American manufacturers of chocolate, cocoa, caramels, and confectionery who may be desirous of extending business to that country. He will only consider direct representation. Although the market is at present controlled by Swiss and Italian manufacturers, it is believed that the American product can be successfully introduced. The annual consumption of chocolate alone in Sicily is estimated at over 700,000. Quotation should, if possible, be in lire and per kilos, cost, insurance, and freight some Italian port. Correspondence should be in Italian, or at least in French.

11,011. AUTOMOBILE FIRE APPARATUS.—The American Consulate General at Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, has forwarded a clipping calling for tenders for automobile fire apparatus for the departments at South Vancouver and Vancouver. Tenders will be received until June 12 for two city service trucks and one combination hose wagon and chemical, each motor driven. Particulars and specifications can be obtained at the office of the Fire Chief, Seymour Street, Vancouver.

11,012. ROLLING STOCK, RAILWAY SUPPLIES, &c.—The American Minister at Bucharest, Rumania, reports that specifications are being prepared for about 100 locomotives, most of which will be specially designed to climb steep grades. Large orders are also contemplated for rails, to replace those now in use. The plan calls for a large amount of construction work, such as enlargement of repair shops, new turntables, weighing scales, car sheds, storehouses, petroleum reservoirs, stations, freight platforms, &c.

11,013. COTTONSEED OIL.—An American Consul in a European country reports that a local agent handling edible oils has requested to be put in touch with American producers of cottonseed oil. Large quantities of cottonseed oil are used in the local margarine and fish-packing plants.

11,014. AUTOMOBILES FOR WAR USE.—The Ministry of War in a foreign country has appropriated $40,000 for the purchase of automobiles for the use of the local army. An American Consul has forwarded the name of a business man from whom plans, prices, catalogues, &c., showing the class of machines manufactured for war purposes can be obtained.

11,015. PNEUMATIC TIRES FOR RICKSHAWS.—A report from an American Consular officer in the Far East states that there is a considerable market for wheels for rickshaws. A local company would be glad to hear from manufacturers of these wheels, with a view to taking an agency. The specifications furnished by this company are as follows: Wheels, 32 inches in diameter from rim to rim, not counting pneumatic tire or cover; hubs, extra strong, 4 inches between flanges, having ⅞-inch spindles, or screwed right and left to suit tubular axle; rims, 32½x2 inches, to take tires 36x2 inches, made of steel, 17½ gauge; axle, tubular, either plain or screwed right and left to suit hub spindles; spokes, best quality, strong gauge, tangent spokes, and nipples to suit.

11,016. ICE-MAKING MACHINE.—A resident of the United Kingdom informs an American Consul that he would like to obtain a block ice-making machine that would make 112 pounds of clear ice in about three hours. He can obtain one in England that will make 336 pounds of clear ice in eight hours and cost $852, but does not require that amount of ice or care to spend such an amount for a machine for his home. The Consul suggests that prices should be quoted delivered at some English port, and that the fullest possible description of the ice-making machine should accompany any proposition.

11,017. JETTY CONSTRUCTION.—The American Consulate General at Ottawa, Canada, reports that the Department of Public Works has advertised for tenders, to be received until June 17, for the completion of the jetty at Steveston, at the mouth of the Fraser River, New Westminster, British Columbia. Plans, specifications, and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa.

COREY RETURNS FOR POLO.

Revision of Tariff, He Says, Will Reduce Cost of Food.

William Ellis Corey, former President of the United States Steel Corporation and husband of Mabel Gilman, the former comic opera singer, returned yesterday on the French liner France, after a two months' visit to Europe. Mr. Corey said that he had spent the time at his château, near Paris, and in an automobile trip to Nice. He said that he had returned to see the polo games. Concerning the tariff Mr. Corey said:

"A reduction of the tariff has been promised by both parties for some years past, and it had to come. I approve of the Underwood bill and do not believe that it will affect business unfavorably in this country except in isolated cases. This talk by certain firms of closing up their mills and starting to manufacture abroad is all pure bluff. The revision of the tariff will not decrease wages, but will certainly decrease the cost of food and clothing."

With regard to business conditions in Europe, Mr. Corey said that trade generally was at par, but was not above it. He declined to make any comment regarding the appointment of a receiver for the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company except to remark that the action was expected. He also denied the reports that he had lost large sums at cards just before sailing.

Mr. Corey also said that he believed the dispute between this country and Japan would be settled diplomatically. If the Japanese wanted to expand, he said, they could send their people to South America, where there was plenty of room for them, instead of sending them to the United States, where they were not wanted.

HUERTA TO SAIL FOR HOME.

Student Not a Relative of Mexico's President—Has Nervous Collapse.

Carlos Huerta, the young Mexican student, who, following a nervous collapse, was removed to Bellevue Hospital late on Thursday evening from the apartment of his brother, Ricardo Huerta, at 119 West Forty-fifth Street, was much improved yesterday, and will be able to sail for his home in Mexico City on one of the ships of the Mallory Line to-day. Ricardo Huerta was recently appointed Consul General at this port. He explained that he and his brother were not related to the President of Mexico. Their father, he said, was Emilio Huerta, a real estate owner of Mexico City.

Carlos Huerta, according to the Consul General, is a second year student in the Catholic University of America at Washington, D. C., where he has been studying architecture. He came to this city on a vacation trip. He was with his brother and several friends on Thursday evening, when he collapsed. Ricardo Huerta said that he had been in the Mexican diplomatic service for five years.

SPLIT OVER PULASKI ROAD.

Controller Refuses to Permit Change in Specifications.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 30.—The Highway Department and the Controller's office are at odds over the mode of constructing a highway at Pulaski, Oswego County.

The contract for this road was let in June, 1912, and provided for a surface of 4½ inches of Hassam concrete. Shortly after assuming his office Mr. Carlisle, Commissioner of Highways, gave out a statement that no supplemental agreement for changing the mode of constructing a road would be permitted. Although a large part of the Pulaski road has been built, Mr. Carlisle felt that the specifications were inadequate, and asked the Controller to approve of changing the construction from Hassam concrete to waterbound macadam of a depth of eight inches. The Controller's office refused to permit the change, with the result that the contract must be canceled or the depth of Hassam concrete increased.

Excepting and reserving from the land above described, the land conveyed by the Dickson Manufacturing Company to the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company by deed dated July 5th, 1874; also by deed dated September 28th, 1900, recorded in the Recorder's office in Lackawanna County, in Deed Book No. 187, page 221, etc.

Excepting and reserving, however, the coal and minerals beneath the surface of the said above described lots, pieces or parcels of land, with the right to mine and remove the same in such manner and to the same extent as excepted and reserved in the original deeds from the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company for said lands, to the Dickson Manufacturing Company, and its predecessors in title.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances and franchises of the Company thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining, and the reversions, remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, and all the estate, right, title, interest, property, possession, claim and demand whatsoever, as well at law as in equity, of the Company, of, in and to the same, and any and every part thereof, with the appurtenances.

There shall be included, as a part of the property to be sold, all machinery, tools, articles of a permanent character or appliances acquired by the Receiver of the Allis-Chalmers Company, up to the date of the said sale, which property shall during the said receivership have been attached to or used in connection with the operation of any of the manufacturing plants situate in the Middle District of Pennsylvania and directed to be sold by the terms of said decree, all of which property is adjudged to be and shall pass as appurtenant to the real estate and manufacturing plant to which it is attached or in connection with the operation of which it is used.

The Special Master Commissioner will offer the said property for sale as an entirety. The Special Master Commissioner will receive no bid for said property from any one offering to bid, who prior to said sale shall not have deposited with him, or delivered to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid, in the event of its acceptance, the sum of Fifty thousand ($50,000.00) Dollars, or One hundred thousand ($100,000.00) Dollars, in face amount of the bonds issued under and secured by the deed of trust of July 2, 1906, made by ALLIS-CHALMERS COMPANY to AMERICAN TRUST and SAVING BANK, Trustee.

Any deposit of money required to be made with the Special Master Commissioner may be made either in cash or in a certified check therefor on some bank or trust company, having a paid up capital of not less than one million dollars ($1,000,000).

Upon the conditional acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the Special Master Commissioner, in addition to the money so deposited with said Special Master Commissioner, prior to making such bid, or in addition to the bonds so deposited with said Special Master Commissioner, a further additional sum equal to the amount so hereinbefore required to be deposited as a condition of making such bid.

Any bidder or purchaser, in lieu of delivering to the said Special Master Commissioner said bonds, either for the purpose of qualification as a bidder, or on account of the purchase price, in the event of the acceptance of his bid, may deliver to the said Special Master Commissioner a certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company in the City of New York, in the State of New York, or in the City of Scranton, in the State of Pennsylvania, which bank or trust company shall have a paid up capital of not less than one million dollars ($1,000,000.00), that such bank or trust company holds, subject to the order of said Special Master Commissioner, said bonds, to the amount aforesaid.

In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid, upon its acceptance by said Special Master Commissioner, or shall fail after such acceptance to comply with any order of the Court relating to the payment thereof or the consummation of the purchase, then the money or bonds deposited by such purchaser or purchasers as hereinabove provided shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses of the resale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property purchased by him shall be sold at a less price on such resale, or shall be applied to the payment of any deficiency remaining upon account of the bonds secured by said mortgage, in the event that any resale had under the terms of said decree shall not pay the full amount herein found to be due upon such bonds, together with all costs and expenses of this proceeding.

If such sale shall not be confirmed by the Court, such deposit shall be returned to the bidder. The purchaser, on confirmation of the sale by the Court, shall make such payment or payments in cash on account of the purchase price as Court may at the time of the confirmation of such sale or from time to time thereafter direct, and shall pay the entire balance of the purchase price so bid at such time or times and in such manner as the Court shall direct.

Any purchaser who shall purchase the property herein directed to be sold shall be bound by the terms of any contract which Otto H. Falk, as Receiver of the Allis-Chalmers Company, shall have entered into at the time of such sale, for the sale and delivery of machinery or merchandise from such manufacturing plants, where the completion of such contract shall require the use of the manufacturing plant so purchased; and any such purchaser, at the time of the confirmation of such bid, shall enter into such written agreement with the said Receiver, upon such conditions as the Court shall hereafter direct, providing for the completion and carrying out of such contract, upon such reasonable terms as may be fixed by the Court; provided, however, that any such purchaser may apply to the Court, at the time of the confirmation of such bid, or at any time subsequent thereto, to be relieved from the obligation of any specific contract covered by the terms of this decree, upon such terms as may be deemed proper by this Court; this provision in said decree being intended for the protection of the Receiver heretofore appointed by the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Wisconsin, and this provision shall not be construed as vesting any right of action in any person not a party to this suit as against such purchaser, and the Court in said decree reserves the right to require of any such purchaser or purchasers security in such amount and of such form and character as the Court may require, for the fulfillment of any contracts which the Court shall direct that the said purchaser shall assume, under the terms hereof.

Any purchaser, at the sale, may satisfy and make good the balance of his bid above the amount of the amount required to be paid in cash, by the terms of said decree, or by any decree or order of said court, entered in accordance with the provisions of said decree, by delivering to the undersigned Special Master Commissioner bonds duly certified and issued and outstanding under the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust, dated July 2, 1906, made by Allis-Chalmers Company to the American Trust and Savings Bank, trustee, with all unpaid coupons, with interest thereunto belonging, which bonds, if registered, shall be duly assigned or endorsed by the registered holder thereof. Such bonds, whether delivered to the Special Master Commissioner at the time of the sale or subsequently, shall be received at such price or value as shall be equal to the sum which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale, if made for money, to the holder or holders of such bonds for his or their just share and proportion in such character, upon a due accounting and apportionment of such net proceeds; provided, however, if it shall appear that any bond or bonds so presented to the Special Master Commissioner have been theretofore presented to the Special Master Commissioner making sale under the order of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Wisconsin or in and for the Northern District of Illinois, and that any such bond or bonds have been used in the purchase of any properties situate in the Eastern District of Wisconsin or in the Northern District of Illinois, then such bonds, when presented to the Special Master Commissioner, shall be received at such price or value as shall be equivalent to the sum which will be payable out of the net proceeds of such sale, if made for money, to the holder or holders of said bonds, or his or their just share and proportion in such character of such net proceeds, after the amount applied upon such bonds, in connection with the purchase of any property sold under the decree of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Wisconsin or for the Northern District of Illinois, or applicable thereto, out of the proceeds of such sale, shall have been endorsed upon said bonds or charged as the pro rata payment thereof against the amount due upon the said bonds by the terms of the said decree.

For a more particular description of the property to be sold and the terms and conditions of the sale reference is hereby made to the decree entered by the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, in the above-entitled cause, on the 28th day of May, 1913.

GERRY W. HAZELTON,
Special Master Commissioner.

MRS. JAMES C. BISHOP GETS HER DIVORCE

Court Convinced Charge She Makes Against Husband and Mrs. Gwathmey Is True.

ALL ALLEGATIONS NOT TRIED

Defendant's Lawyers Decided to Give Up—Only Questions Now Are Alimony and Custody of Children.

"The court is fully convinced from the testimony that the evidence is clear and convincing that the defendant, James C. Bishop, was guilty of adultery with the co-respondent, Mrs. Gwathmey, at the Hotel Astor on the dates mentioned in the complaint, and judgment is therefore rendered for the plaintiff. There remain only the question of the custody of the children and the question of alimony. The court is ready to hear counsel on these questions."

With these words Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff brought to an end yesterday Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop's divorce suit against James Cunningham Bishop, the banker. The court's words, uttered yesterday afternoon, followed the anouncement by James W. Osborne, counsel for Mrs. Bishop, and Henry W. Taft, counsel for Mr. Bishop, that they rested their cases. George Gordon Battle, counsel for Mrs. Leila Haines Gwathmey, wife of J. Temple Gwathmey, the co-respondent, was silent.

The scene in court followed negotiations which had occupied the morning and part of the afternoon. These negotiations were undertaken at the instance of Messrs. Taft and Battle, who recognized that in view of previous disclosures in the case, a further defense to Mrs. Bishop's suit was likely to prove futile.

The delay, it was apparent, was due to Mrs. Bishop's reluctance to accept her husband's overtures of peace. From the consultation room where she went with Mr. Osborne, her counsel of record, William Travers Jerome, her trial counsel, and Mrs. Schatz, her social secretary, her protests could be heard in the corridor. Once her voice rose to a shriek as she said:

"I won't do it!"

She came into court at 3 o'clock, showing signs of dissatisfaction with her lawyer's determination to allow Mr. Bishop to surrender. Once she sent her private attorney, Arthur Johns, over to Messrs. Osborne and Jerome as if to renew negotiations, and Johns returned with a message which seemed to reconcile her to the fact that accumulated proof against her husband and Mrs. Gwathmey would not be resumed.

Mr. Bishop, who had been much perturbed during the days of the trial, brightened up visibly when Mr. Taft took him to the rear of the courtroom, and explained the advantages of allowing Mrs. Bishop to take judgment. Mr. Taft explained that the concession left open two questions very vital to his client, those of the amount of alimony Mrs. Bishop might claim, and the custody of their children. Mr. Taft appeared to convince him that he would be in a better position on both questions if he allowed the case to go against him yesterday than he would be if he continued to fight the case, and allow additional proof to be adduced against him.

Mr. Taft also explained that a concession at that juncture would save a day and possibly more of further testimony humiliating to himself and Mrs. Gwathmey.

It was agreed among counsel, with the consent of Justice Goff, to adjourn proceedings in the case until Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Criminal Court Building. By that time Messrs. Osborne and Taft both said they hoped to reach a reasonable agreement on the custody of the children and the amount of alimony to be paid to Mrs. Bishop. She has been receiving $10,000 a year since the trial of the suit.

From the discussion which followed Justice Goff's decision, it was apparent that one outcome of the case may be to refer the questions of custody of the children and alimony to a referee for adjudication in case no agreement is reached.

WOMAN MURDERED IN WOOD.

Evidence of Desperate Battle She Fought for Life—No Clue to Slayer.

Mrs. Alviro Cerciello, 20 years old, a bride of four months, of 409 Chester Avenue, Newark, was found murdered yesterday in a wood in Bloomfield Avenue, near Grove Street, Bloomfield, N. J. She had been slashed about the face and head. Her skull was fractured and one hand was almost cut off.

The Bloomfield police and the county authorities believe that robbery was the motive for the crime. Angelo Cerciello, husband of the woman, told Prosecutor's Detective Walter Godfrey that his wife had left her home Thursday night with between $175 and $200 in her possession, receipts from sales of the store owned by both of them. The police are working on the theory that she was in some manner enticed to the spot where she was found. The ground indicates that the woman fought desperately before she was killed.

While the money she is supposed to have carried is missing, four gold rings, gold earrings, a gold locket and chain, and a bracelet, which she wore, were not taken. The whole case is shrouded in a deep mystery so far as the authorities are concerned.

ARRESTED AFTER BEING SHOT

Owned Revolver, Contrary to Law, Which Other Boy Fired.

George Burtche, 16 years old, of 319 East Forty-fifth Street, was accidentally shot in the left breast at his home yesterday afternoon by Henry Geigrich, 17 years old, of the same address, while the two youths were shooting at a target in Burtche's room. Burtche was taken to Flower Hospital, where he was made a prisoner, charged with violating the Sullivan law in having a dangerous weapon in his possession. The shooting was done with a .22-calibre revolver belonging to him.

Geigrich disappeared for a while after the shooting, but went to the East Fifty-first Street Station at 8:30 o'clock last night to give himself up. He was accompanied by his father and also by the father of Burtche. It was made plain to the police that the shooting was accidental, and Geigrich was paroled in the custody of his father.

It was said at the hospital that Burtche's wound was not serious.

MEN SUFFRAGETTES PARADE

Gage E. Tarbell Leads on Nassau Boulevard in Unconventional Dress.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 30.—Decoration Day proved a memorable occasion for Nassau Boulevard. Members of the fire department burned down a bungalow to show what skilled fire fighters they were, and twenty-five men dressed as women paraded this afternoon through the village in a suffragette pageant that attracted much attention. Then there were firemen's contests, a baseball game, a Maypole dance, and a tango tea dinner and supper, which continued until late into the night. The Plaza, a brick-laid court, forming the entrance to the station, was decorated with flags of all nations, and the Long Island Railroad furnished the lights. These consisted of electric bulbs inside Japanese lanterns, which surrounded the entire court.

The suffragette parade was the most important feature of the day's programme. Gage E. Tarbell undertook to lead the procession. He was clad in a white garment which reached to his knees. A pair of socks fastened with a pair of garters were much in evidence. Over this he wore a kimono and a gay hunting jacket. His luxuriant mustache, with an extra twist at the tips, curled out beneath the shade of a wide straw hat. E. A. Pratt rode a fiery charger, dressed as a ballet dancer. A. S. Moore and Swift Tarbell, dressed as clowns, rode a painted horse. William H. Holden, who originated the "pageant," appeared as the "infant of the suffrage cause," dressed as a child. He wore a large hat and a brown calico dress which reached somewhere in the neighborhood of his knees. Charles L. McClave was disguised as a portly woman. He wore a black satin gown.

William Miller wore a yellow gown with an unmistakable split up both sides of the skirt. Aside from that, the skirt was of the hobble style, but he managed to march successfully for women's rights. His costume was topped with a straw hat bearing an ample plume. After the parade the marchers played baseball on the baseball diamond, the married ones lining themselves up against the unmarried. The score resulted in 9 to 6 in favor of the married men.

Earlier in the day fire was started in a bungalow surrounded by a white-washed picket fence, in Nassau Boulevard. The crowd arrived before the fire was announced. It was explained later that the building was stuffed with excelsior soaked with turpentine. The fire spread rapidly, and the companies appeared promptly to fight the flames. This they did with energy, and after the house had burned to the ground the two hose companies proceeded to turn the hose on each other.

SPIRIT OF YOUTH IN BRONZE

Given to Princeton by World's Christian Student Federation.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, May 30.—The spirit of youth is portrayed in the bronze statue commemorating the birthplace of the World's Christian Student Federation that was presented to-day to Princeton University. It was here in the decade of 1870 to 1880 that a few words spoken by an undergraduate led to the founding of the vast movement that now covers the world.

The youth is dressed in football clothes, emblematic of the physical development of the normal boy. Several books in his arm and an academic gown thrown over his left shoulder are the symbols of the intellectual life. The spiritual is typified by the noble carriage of the figure and the refinement of the features.

The statue was designed by Daniel France, one of America's most celebrated sculptors. It is mounted on a granite base, and is on the campus, between the University Library and Dodge Hall.

John R. Mott, Chairman of the Federation, made the presentation. President Hibben of the University accepted the gift.

Woman Who Took Poison Like Walker Is Improving.

The condition of Mrs. Rae Chessman, the young woman who took bichloride of mercury in mistake for a headache remedy on Tuesday evening and whose case was like that of Sanders B. Walker, the Georgia banker who died after a week's fight against the poison, showed improvement yesterday at Fordham Hospital, where she was a patient.

The doctors said they had more hope for her recovery than they had had at any time since she swallowed the poison. They said three or four days must pass before they could be sure of saving her life. Mrs. Chessman is the wife of a druggist who lives at 1,192 Fox Street, the Bronx.

Finest Bison Dies in Fight.

ALLENTOWN, Penn., May 30.—"Comanche," a 2,000-pound buffalo bull, rated by William T. Hornaday, President of the American Bison Society, as the finest specimen of the breed, was killed yesterday in a battle with a younger rival for the supremacy of Col. Trexler's herd at Schnecksville. The victor, "Roaring Frank," was a much smaller animal, weighing only about 1,400 pounds. He was spryer than the older bull, however, and succeeded in goring him three times.

Can't Agree Woman Slew Woman.

NASHVILLE, May 30.—A jury failed to agree to-day in the case of Mrs. Leola Jones, who was charged with the murder of Mrs. Alva Cave. Mrs. Cave was the widow of the son of Gen. R. Lin Cave, former chaplain of the United Confederate Veterans. Mrs. Jones charged that Mrs. Cave had been receiving attentions from Mr. Jones.

COHALAN TO TELL HIS STORY TO-NIGHT

THOROUGH SIFTING URGED

Bar Association Takes the Matter Seriously and Wants Every Phase of It Investigated.

It was announced last night by a representative of Justice Cohalan that he would issue a statement to-night in reply to the charges made against him by John A. Connolly. These are that Mr. Cohalan before he was elevated to the bench obtained $3,940.55 in cash from Connolly, and, after he had repaid this, a note for $4,000. The cash payments Connolly has asserted were commissions for obtaining city work for the Victor Heating Company, and the money was only returned after he had actually had the papers drawn in a suit. The note, Connolly has said, was given by him when he tried to get Mr. Cohalan to aid him to get a political job, but as a matter of fact, he has charged, Mr. Cohalan stood in the way of his appointment to any of the places he desired.

Justice Cohalan was at work yesterday on his statement. He was away from home all day, and it was said early in the evening that he probably would be able to send out his statement last night. However, at 10:30 o'clock, in answer, this announcement was telephoned by a representative:

"Justice Cohalan is engaged on a statement and it will be issued to-morrow night."

Whatever Justice Cohalan says in explanation of the narrative printed in regard to his relations with Connolly will be read with the keenest interest. It is understood that so deeply has the community been stirred by the charges and so seriously has it taken the lack of reply from the Judge after the short statement he gave out in answer to the first installment of the accusations, that one of the matters talked over between Gov. Sulzer and District Attorney Whitman at their long conference on Thursday night was the political effect of the revelations, supposing they could be substantiated. Neither of them has been willing to discuss their deliberations, and it is generally admitted that there is nothing that Connolly has charged, which would be capable of prosecution, even if it could be proved.

The defenders of Justice Cohalan have been during the past week warm in his support, and have pointed to his high standing among the judiciary as enough to show that as soon as he was ready he could put a completely different complexion on the transactions, on which the charges were based. They have seen in their publication at this time a mere political move in preparation for the next municipal campaign. It has been hoped, they urge, to cast discredit on Tammany Hall and its leaders, by making a matter of business out to be a case of graft, and it has been jumped at all the more readily, they say, inasmuch as Justice Cohalan is a close friend of Charles F. Murphy and was his nominee for the Supreme Court bench.

On the other hand, the Bar has been greatly concerned by this aspersion of a Judge and has felt keenly the necessity of a thorough investigation of the whole affair. Justice Cohalan, it is believed by the lawyers, will be the first to court a thorough sifting of his conduct, and the Bar Association will be ready to afford him every opportunity of clearing his name. But those who have the reputation of the Supreme Court of the State at heart admit that there has been enough circumstantiality in the story as published to make it essential that notice be taken of it and every phase of it investigated.

CARD GAME ENDS IN MURDER

Italian, Accused of Shooting a Player, Held the Police at Bay.

A card game in a saloon at Skillman Avenue and Lorimer Street, in Williamsburg, ended last night with the murder of one man, the wounding of two others, and a chase of many blocks after the man charged with the killing, who held two policemen at bay for several minutes before he was arrested.

The murdered man was Raffia Ferbatone, 36 years old, of 33 Withers Street, Williamsburg. He, his younger brother, James, and Marina Boniacio of 65 Lorimer Street, were playing cards at 7 o'clock. Boniacio was dealing, and Raffia Ferbatone accused him of cheating. The dealer drew a revolver, which was a gangster's weapon, with a stiletto on the end, and fired. The bullet entered Ferbatone's heart, killing him instantly.

James Ferbatone was quick to come to his brother's defense. He pulled a stiletto and cut Boniacio on the wrist. The murderer discharged his revolver the second time, the bullet lodging in James Ferbatone's jaw. Then he ran out of the room. Patrolman Bauer and Detective Comisky of the Herbert Street Police Station heard the shots and saw Boniacio running down the street with the revolver still in his hand. They called to him to stop. Boniacio did so, and turned the revolver at them. The street was crowded at the time, and the policemen were afraid to fire for fear of wounding an innocent person. Patrolman Heid, who was on duty near by, ran up and brought down his nightstick on Boniacio's head, stunning him.

The three policemen then disarmed the murderer and brought him to the station, where Dr. Weinberg of St. Catherine's Hospital said that his injuries from James Ferbatone's stiletto were serious. He was removed to the hospital, where he was held on a charge of homicide.

HEFLIN AT GETTYSBURG.

Southern Congressman Brings Eloquent Message of Good-Will.

GETTYSBURG, Penn., May 30.—Ten thousand persons gathered here to-day for the Memorial Day observance.

The exercises at the rostrum included the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address and an oration by Representative J. T. Heflin of Alabama, the first Southerner to make an address here. In part Mr. Heflin said:

"Heroism never had truer representatives than those who made this battlefield immortal. Here the soldier in blue and the soldier in gray read in each other's eyes courage born of convictions, devotion to principle, a willingness to do and die for what they believed was right.

"Here the brave Union soldier checked the march of the hitherto irresistible Confederate soldier. Here in the red glare of destructive battle fire two mighty lessons were taught—one that the Union should be preserved and the other that the Union should be ever mindful and considerate of the rights of the States. So the soldiers of the two armies who baptized this soil with their blood did not die in vain; they started the work of cementing the bonds of an everlasting Union.

"I bring to you a message of goodwill and fellowship from the people of the South. As an evidence of our recognition of the valor of both Union and Confederate soldiers, and as a token of the spirit of fraternal love now permeating the hearts of our people, I bring you floral offerings from the flower gardens of Dixie, one for the grave of the soldier in blue and the other for the grave of the soldier in gray. The sublime valor of the heroes of both armies is the priceless heritage of all."

Of the reunion in July of survivors of the two armies at Gettysburg, Mr. Heflin said:

"What a glorious reunion that will be. The angels will smile upon that gathering and the God of our fathers will bless and approve it."

"Let the living join hands and hearts about a common centre for the good of the Republic," he concluded. "Let North, South, East, West, all work together for the good of all. Here on this battlefield, incarnadined with the blood of patriots North and patriots South, let us, in the language of Lincoln, resolve that this Government shall not perish from the earth."

LEE'S BODY REMOVED.

"Light Horse Harry" Now Rests Beside Gen. Lee at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Va., May 30.—A committee of the Virginia Assembly arrived here to-day from Cumberland Island, Ga., bringing a flag-draped coffin containing the remains of Gen. "Light Horse Harry" Lee, of Revolutionary fame. Escorted by cadets from the Virginia Military Institute, and students from Washington and Lee University, the coffin was borne by cadet and student pallbearers to Lee mausoleum.

There with impressive ceremonies it was reinterred in the crypt beside the body of the Revolutionary soldier's distinguished son, Gen. Robert E. Lee.

PRINCETON COST $4,000.

Average Expenditure of Members of This Year's Graduating Class.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, May 30.—The cost of a four years' college course at Princeton is slightly more than $4,000. This average has been obtained from records of the Princeton class of 1913, about 250 members of the class responding. The highest amount that any one spent was $10,000. One Princetonian says that he paid out in cash only $800 during the entire four years. Of this year's graduating class thirteen supported themselves wholly and fifty-eight paid part of their expenses throughout the course.

Inquiry regarding the habits of the students showed that 184 of the 250 smoke and seventy-six of this number began to use tobacco in college. On the other hand, fifty-one stopped use of the weed during their college course. The answers to the question, "Have you ever kissed a girl?" revealed the highest percentage when 203 confessed. Two hundred and nineteen of the students dance, and nineteen of these consider dancing morally wrong. Of those who acknowledged corresponding with girls there were 206. Only nine men acknowledged that they were engaged to be married. Twenty-four said that they had been rejected.

The 'Varsity letter is worn by twenty-eight men and the class numerals by sixty-five. The "Sporting Page" and "Woman" ran close for the favorite study. The average age of the present graduating class is 22 years and 3 months, the oldest man being 29 and the youngest 20.

POLICEMAN ARRESTS MAYOR

Smallest Man on the Force Overhauls Atlantic City Executive.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 30.—Clarence Smith, the smallest member of the local police force, arrested the Mayor of the city to-day. It is Smith's duty to make automobilists keep within a twelve-mile speed limit in the city limits.

Smith saw a big limousine coming down Pacific Avenue at what he considered excessive speed, and promptly gave chase on his motor cycle. When he got abreast of the automobile the policeman saw that it contained Mayor William Riddle and his wife.

Smith instructed Milton Somers, the chauffeur, to turn around and drive to Police Headquarters. It was not until the Mayor guaranteed his appearance in police court to-morrow morning that Smith permitted the automobile to proceed to Riddle's home. Magistrate Kefer is a close friend of the Mayor, and says he will impose the usual $25 penalty if Policeman Smith proves his charge.

POLICE HEAD DIES IN NEWARK PARADE

Chief Corbitt Collapses in His Saddle as Procession Is About to Start.

GAVE UP AUTO FOR A HORSE

"It May Be My Last Memorial Day Parade," Civil War Veteran Told His Associates.

Chief of Police Michael Corbitt of Newark, N. J., dropped dead yesterday as he was about to give the command to start the Memorial Day parade in Newark. He was stricken with apoplexy while seated on his horse and died in a few minutes.

The chief was at the head of the mounted police escort in front of the Newark Post Office, at Broad and Academy Streets, when he was overcome. Patrolmen who were handling the crowd at the curb saw their chief sway on his horse. He pitched forward on the horse's mane and was about to fall to the street when his men caught him. He was carried into the Federal Building and word was telephoned to Police Headquarters to call Police Surgeon J. Henry Clark.

Detective Harry Corbitt, a son of Chief Corbitt, was on duty at Headquarters. With Lieut. Patrick Ryan the son jumped into the chief's automobile and sped to the home of Dr. Clark, at 12 Walnut Street. A quick run was made to the Post Office, but when the police surgeon arrived Chief Corbitt was dead.

The Chief was stricken in the presence of hundreds of spectators, who lined both sides of Broad Street. A few minutes before the official had galloped up and down the thoroughfare, shouting orders to his men in vigorous tones. It was just a few minutes before the parade was to start on the march down Broad Street that the Chief gave orders to Capt. Oscar Vogel of the Fourth Precinct and Sergt. James Fitch to have a big truck move out of the way of the line of march. He had hardly finished giving his orders when he collapsed in his saddle.

Before departing from Police Headquarters to enter his automobile to go to the First Precinct to get his horse, Chief Corbitt announced that he would not use the auto for the parade. Hitherto he had always supervised public parades from his motor.

"I want to ride a horse in this parade," he announced to his associates, "because it may be the last Memorial Day parade I'll ride in as Chief of Police."

The Chief was a veteran of the Civil War, and took pleasure in riding at the head of the Memorial Day parade. He had been a member of the Police Department for thirty years and had been Chief for six years. He was born in Newark on February 21, 1842.
